President Insists U. N. Is Proving Its Worth

Avows His Faith Despite Walkouts By Soviet Russia, In Congress Report

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

President Truman avowed his continuing faith and confidence in the United Nations yesterday in spite of Soviet obstructions.

Transmitting his annual report to Congress on the work of the U. N. in the past year, he said the recent Soviet walkouts were a "willful flouting" of Charter obligations.

Still, he noted, the U. N. "has taken the common sense attitude of proceeding with its business as usual." And he insisted that the U. N. was providing its worth to America and to the whole free world.

"The power of the United Nations today is that of moral force," he said. "Such force gathers its strength slowly, but it does so surely.

Can't Ignore World Opinion

"No nation can ignore the question of how its actions will appear in the world forums of the United Nations. No nation, member or non-member, attending or non-attending, can void accountability before the United Nations for actions affecting the peace.

"The aroused opinion of mankind, when brought into sharp and immediate focus as it often is in the United Nations, is not lightly to be dismissed, even by a nation that has strong battalions."

In this the President was contradicting former President Hoover's belief that a new U. N. should be set up without Russia or her satellites. And he was indorsing the belief often expressed by Hoover's fellow Republican, John Foster Dulles, that the decisive strength of the U. N. lay in its moral power.

The President recalled that most nations today share the objectives of the Charter and "tend increasingly toward common judgments on the great issues confronting mankind."

Points to Local Conflicts

"The intensity of the East-West conflict has obscured the fact," he wrote, "that certain critical disputes have arisen from purely local conflicts and that many such problems would continue to confront nations even if relations between the Soviet Union and the rest of the world were far different from what they are today. . . .

"We cannot expect from the United Nations immediate solutions of problems as large and complex as many that are before it. But already we have seen how, by its debates and its decisions, it is helping to guide the nations into the ways of peace."

In helping to settle the Indonesian quarrel and in ending the fighting in Palestine and Kashmir, the President went on, the U. N. had saved many lives "in moving such conflicts indoors—from battlegrounds to conference tables."

He dealt more directly with

Six Bandits Raid Cockfight, Get $30,000 or More

Henderson, Ky., May 22 (AP).—Six partly masked bandits held up about 25 men at a cockfight pit near here late yesterday and escaped in a stolen automobile with an estimated $30,000 to $50,000.

The bandits, who fled with the trousers of their victims, abandoned the stolen automobile.

The men reportedly were from Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee. Most of them were reluctant to discuss the holdup but three or four confirmed details of the robbery.

One of the victims, identifying himself as Herschel McClain, Evansville, Ind., bartender, told newsmen the bandits got $1500 to $2000 of his money. He said they threatened to shoot off one of his fingers to get a diamond ring he could not remove.

Much Comment at Capitol

Security Commission Proposal Is Acclaimed

Widespread interest was shown yesterday in The Washington Post's proposal for a "Commission on National Security."

The commission, bipartisan in make-up, would survey the major aspects of national security—the internal menace of the fifth column, civilian defense, development of new weapons, the size and use of military expenditures, and economic restoration of our friends and allies.

It would "take a fresh look at our situation and give the American people a trustworthy, 'unpartisan' statement of the salient facts affecting our security."

Some members of Congress expressed outright approval of The Washington Post's editorial, "The Road Back to America." Others divided on the scope of the proposed survey and the make-up of the commission. Still others suggested variations of the proposal.

Comment follows:

Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.)—"A very good idea. It would give us a sort of royal commission of men who are above the battle. Among the people I would like to see on it are Robert Patterson, Bernard Baruch and William J. Donovan."

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.)—"It's the best editorial I've read in a dog's age and I'm wholeheartedly for the idea . . . Somehow we've got to change our attitude into a constructive, forward movement, as The Post's editorial suggests, instead of this panic we are in.

"I recently suggested that a more limited inquiry be organized on a grand jury basis but now I am inclined to think a bipartisan commission offers the better solution. We would be doing something constructive at last about this panic at home. At the same time we would be reassuring our friends in foreign countries as to just what our purposes are . . . "

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—"The Post editorial is absolutely sound. The idea of an independent, objective, nonpolitical commission is the only way to approach the problem. Such a commission should include men like Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch and Dwight D. Eisenhower. Politics must be kept entirely out of it. Such a commission could make a completely objective investigation and then make a report that would get away from all of this uncertainty."

Senator Smith said he had long been considering introducing a resolution along similar lines and to that end has been studying the British royal commission type of set-up.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—"I am not in favor of appointing an outside group to make a study every time we find ourselves in some difficulty. If Congress is not able to determine these questions, who is? We sleep with these problems all the time, and there is no reason a commission of outsiders, who know nothing about it, should come in and do the job.

"I am not opposed, however, to setting up a Council on Security composed of representatives of congressional committees and vitally interested Government agencies. In fact, I see some merit in that kind of an approach and might introduce a resolution on it. I would be willing to make it nonpartisan. Such a commission should include representatives of the Foreign Relations, Armed Services, Atomic Energy and Appropriations Committees. It should also include the Chiefs of Staff and representatives of the State Department, the Department of Defense, the Atomic Energy Commission and our central intelligence set-up. Such a group would have the necessary information and the ability to correlate it."

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee—"The proposal is somewhat confusing. The Post suggests a commission to look into both our internal and external security. It seems to me they are two different things.

"I don't see why Congress can't handle Senator McCarthy's charges, even though they haven't done too well at it to date. In my view it comes down pretty much to whether or not the Administration is willing to fire these people.

"I agree, however, that a nonpartisan commission such as The Post proposes might have its uses in the matter of defense of the country and on questions of over-all fiscal policy. But even then it would depend altogether on just who were the members of the commission."

Senator Walter M. George (D., Ga.), a ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—"If the problem is approached in that way (through a nonpartisan commission), I think it would give a degree of confidence that the country badly needs at this time."

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Special Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigating the McCarthy charges—"I am in accord with the general objectives of The Washington Post editorial. There were a great many fine suggestions in it. They are certainly worthy of consideration."

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), late yesterday introduced a resolution for the creation of a commission as suggested in "The Road Back to America." He said The Washington Post's editorial presented a challenge to the American Congress and the American people.

Senator Humphrey read excerpts from the editorial, including the passages dealing with the "terror" that has convulsed Washington and the fear and frustration that abound here, and added:

"Unlike many critics and commentators who tell us what is wrong with the state of the Union and describe in detail the nature of our discontent, the editors of The Washington Post have suggested a proposal that affords a means of creating a positive, intelligent and constructive program to revise the dangerous trends which are clearly evident . . . It is a refreshing and encouraging demonstration of the vitality of our democracy.

"The hour is late. The time for constructive action is at hand. We need more than the normal processes of our legislative and executive branches of Government. We need the constructive advice and planning of our most enlightened citizenry. We need

Welfare Meeting Best Cure For Fear of Reds—Saltonstall

By Dorothea Andrews and Sam Zagoria
Post Reporters

An all-day conference held at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday was described by Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) as "the best answer to any fears we may have of a change in our ideologies in the United States."

The Massachusetts legislator, addressing a luncheon session of the first annual Washington Health, Welfare and Recreation Conference, said there has been too much talk of witch-hunting, of communism.

"We hear everything of infiltration: of the FBI being required to go into the lives of everyone who works for the Government.

"Are all these things the best cure for the fear of communism?" he asked.

He declared a meeting of "this character is the best answer" to communistic fears, because the more than 1500 persons who attended the sessions are interested in maintaining United States services, its institutions, its community centers.

Senator Saltonstall began his discussion of communism and its "fears" by a reference to yesterday's "fine editorial of The Washington Post," entitled "The Road Back to America."

His address served to keynote eight conference discussions of the problems which people have in getting along with each other—the problems of both youth and old age.

Those who attended the conference, sponsored by the United Community Services—civic lead-

U. S. Battles For Freedom, Says Barkley

10,000 See 'American Day' Program; Bunche Deplores Democracy's Ills

By S. L. Fishbein
Post Reporter

The perfection of democracy within and its preservation outside America echoed forcefully yesterday across the Capitol plaza, where 10,000 people gathered to celebrate I Am an American Day.

Music and singing and marching and the charm of a pleasant day threw into sharp relief Vice President Alben W. Barkley's description of the foreign challenge to America.

After five years since the conclusion of World War II, he said, there is yet no real peace in the world.

Hints at Larger Army

"As a result of the five years of anxiety and uncertainty which now prevails in all the world, due to the stubborn intransigence of one of our allies in that war, we have been compelled to assume obligations never before anticipated," Barkley continued.

This situation is the explanation, he said, "for the largest peacetime force we have ever been compelled to maintain."

"We have entered into agreements for the protection of ourselves and other free people which will make it difficult to reduce this force and might even require its increase," the Vice President warned.

Wherever our armed forces are stationed, he said, "They are holding the line in behalf of the freedom of man.

Barrier to Communism

"They are holding the line in order that his body, his spirit, his soul and his intellect may not be overcome and completely crushed by the juggernaut of communism and the ruthless theory that man is but a pawn to be crushed by the state for the sake of power itself.

"In the spirit of these historic and ageless human principles we dedicate ourselves today to the task of preserving the ideals of American liberty, of eliminating injustice and inequality in the application of our laws . . . and the strengthening of the democratic ideal wherever it finds seeds and culture."

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, director of the department of trusteeship of the United Nations, declared that I Am an American Day is a good day to take stock of the fact that "the full fruits of American democracy are not yet available to many Americans."

Refers to FECP Debate

"Our frankness with ourselves and our willingness to face our shortcomings squarely and realistically, is an important phase of our national strength," the noted Negro leader said.

Referring to the thwarted attempt to bring up fair employment practices legislation, Bunche said: "In this plaza today one can still hear the echoes of last week's Senate debate which did no credit to a democracy."

"We are assembled here in the Capital of the greatest democracy in history," he went on. "This Capital, of all Capitals, should symbolize and radiate democracy.

"It should be a shining example of democracy in action and a model of democratic living by

Crime Jury Indicts 2 on Tax Charges

Hayden, Lococo Cited By Federal Probers In Kansas City in Evasion Cases

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Federal Government yesterday made use of the income-tax prosecution weapon to strike at Kansas City's multi-million-dollar gambling business.

The Justice Department announced here that the Federal grand jury that has been investigating crime in that Missouri city for some seven months had returned tax-evasion indictments against two men. They are:

Attorney Named

Samuel C. Hayden, attorney and former (1937-41) member of the State legislature, who was fired as an assistant Jackson County prosecutor a month ago after the same grand jury named him as a partner in the city's largest gambling operation.

Thomas (Tano) Lococo, likewise named as a partner in the gambling operation and also identified by the grand jury as owner in a firm distributing horse-race information to bookies. Lococo was known as an "enforcer"—a strongarm man—back in the late Boss Tom Pendergast's earlier days.

Hayden and Lococo were associates, the grand jury has charged, of Charles Binaggio and Charles Gargotta, both murdered in Kansas City on April 5. Binaggio was a Democratic political boss and Gargotta his henchman. The jury said all four men held interests in the Town Recreation, the largest gambling operation in Kanses City, which netted nearly $200,000 in less than a year.

Hayden has denied he was a partner, contending he was merely counsel for the group.

Linked to Death Spot

Lococo was linked to a second gambling establishment in the recent grand jury report. This was the Last Chance Tavern, the spot where Binaggio and Gargotta were last seen alive.

The indictment against Hayden charged him with failure to pay $1023 due on his 1948 income tax. He reported an income of $4500 instead of $10,569, the Government contended, paying only $370 instead of $1393.

Lococo was charged with reporting a net income of $65,588 for the years 1944 through 1948, while he should have reported $130,250. He paid $19,307 instead of the $47,365 due, the indictment alleged. Lococo's biggest income in the five-year period was $58,424 for 1948, the Government said.

Hayden faces up to five years in jail and penalties up to $10,000, if convicted on the one-count indictment. Lococo, indicted on five counts, could be sentenced to as much as 25 years and charged with up to $50,000 in penalties, if found guilty.

Powerful Weapon

The income-tax-evasion weapon, the same one that jailed Pendergast, Al Capone the prohibition gangster, and Moe Annenberg, one-time king of the race-wire empire, also is being used—though belatedly—against Gargotta and Bingaggio.

Tax liens have been slapped on both their estates, for $70,672 against Binaggio and for $38,159 against Gargotta. A similar lien, for $220,374, has been filed against the estate of Wolf C. Rimann, one-

Married 58 Years

Husband, 84, Accuses Daughter Of Alienating Wife's Affection

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

An 84-year-old man accused his son-in-law and daughter in Arlington Circuit Court yesterday of alienating the affections of his wife to whom he has been married 58 years.

In a suit which has split the family of George S. Hulme, the retired civil engineer charged Mr. and Mrs. William P. Ristau have deprived him of the "comfort, companionship, society, affection, conjugal fellowship and consortium" of Mrs. Hulme, two years his senior.

He seeks $10,000 in damages.

During testimony before a nine-man jury yesterday, Hulme testified his wife was "enticed" from their Arlington home to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ristau in November, 1947. Since then, he said, he has been refused permission to see her and the Ristaus have prevented her from returning to him.

Hulme testified that on November 4, 1947, his wife was placed in an automobile by Ristau and another daughter, Miss Mabel Hulme, and driven to the Ristau home. He said the son-in-law and daughter packed Mrs. Hulme's clothes before taking her away.

Miss Hulme, named as a co-defendant when the suit originally was filed in June, 1948, but later eliminated, admitted she drove her mother to the Ristau home but contradicted her father's testimony that Ristau was present.

Payday Funds Plan Is Reported to Senate; Reorganization Wins

Revamping of FTC And FPC Approved; Proposals on Other Agencies Up Today

By The Associated Press

The tide turned, and the Senate yesterday upheld two of President Truman's Government reorganization plans with votes to spare.

One affects the Federal Trade Commission, the other the Federal Power Commission. In each case, the President would be given the power to appoint the commission chairman. They, in turn, would direct the day-to-day operations of their units. At present, these commissions choose their own chairmen.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) sponsored resolutions to reject the two plans, with 49 votes, a majority of the entire Senate membership, needed to sink either one of them. Thirty-four Senators voted for Johnson's resolution to reject the Trade Commission plan, 37 against it. His resolution against the Power Commission reshuffle drew 37 votes, with 36 Senators opposed.

The Senate agreed to begin voting at 1 p. m. today on reorganization plans involving the Department of Commerce, the Housing and Home Finance Agency and the General Services Administration. One hour of debate was provided on each plan.

Johnson contended that the projected reorganizations of FTC and FPC would give the President legislative powers that do not belong to him.

Senate Killed 5 Plans

Before yesterday, the Senate had killed 5 of the 21 reorganization proposals Mr. Truman sent to Congress last March. The remainder are due to go into effect unless either the House or Senate, by a majority of its whole membership, rejects them individually. The deadline for action is midnight tonight.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), who lined up the votes that beat a plan to take away the independent authority of the National Labor Relations Board's general counsel, came out yesterday for the rest of the plans. His influence was believed to have swung a number of Republican votes behind the President's proposals.

The plans are built in general on recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorgaization. Except for the NLRB plan, all are supported by the Citizens' Committee for the Hoover Report.

During the debate on the Trade Commission reorganization, Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) declared there will be any effective reorganization of the Government unless Congress is willing to give the President some leeway. Lucas said the people are "alarmed at what is going on here in the destruction of these reorganization plans."

'Big Earl' Shelton, Illinois Gangster, Shot From Ambush

Fairfield, Ill., May 22 (AP).—"Big Earl" Shelton, member of the notorious Shelton gang, was shot in the right arm today while he and his nephew, "Little Earl" Shelton, were motoring through Pond Creek, near here.

His nephew said they were inspecting oil wells on property owned by the elder Shelton when they were fired on from the roadside by unidentified assailants.

Carl Shelton, brother of "Big Earl," was shot and killed from ambush there about two years ago. Another brother, Bernie, was later killed at Peoria.

A previous attempt on the life of "Big Earl" was made at Fairfield a year ago.

Oil Imports Costing Jobs, Miners Say

Spokesmen for coal miners and operators urged Congress yesterday to curb oil imports, which they said are causing thousands of American workers to lose their jobs.

D. T. Buckley of the National Coal Association and Thomas Kennedy, vice president of the United Mine Workers, protested at a Senate Labor Subcommittee hearing that foreign oil is being dumped in this country at unfair prices.

"The equivalent of a year's work for 50,000 miners in the bituminous coal industry is being destroyed by foreign oil at the current rate of importation," Buckley said.

Kennedy said that 100 million barrels of residual oil—that is, oil used for fuel or industrial purposes—was imported last year and either put 25,000 coal miners out of work or reduced their work week. He said the oil was marketed "at ridiculously low prices."

Buckley estimated last year's oil

Model Atom Defense Plan Set for D. C.

Emergency Measures To Be Drawn as Pattern for Nation

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

An emergency plan to meet a possible atomic bomb attack will be drawn up for Washington and two other cities as a model for the rest of the Nation.

Eric Biddle, consultant for the National Security Resources Board's civilian mobilization office, announced arrangements for the study yesterday at a meeting of the District's Temporary Committee on Civil Defense.

The meeting, held in the District Building, was attended by officials of the District government and representatives of essential industries and the medical profession.

Furnish Ideas

Biddle said that the purpose of the study is to give all cities an idea of how to use both municipal and private facilities in case of atomic attack.

Studies also will be made in Seattle and Chicago to "provide a body of practical data," Biddle said.

He said that the material will be used to prepare "an interim civil defense plan that will be practical and useful until a more permanent plan can be developed."

The plan will show how much can be accomplished by each State and city using only the resources already on hand, he said.

Ordinary City

For purposes of this initial project, Washington is considered as an ordinary city and no special attention is given to special problems as the Nation's Capital, Biddle told committee members.

Civilian defense authorities will plot an atomic bomb raid on Washington, he said, including the number of bombs dropped and the location of each. Since data is available on the effects of atomic weapons, the defense planners will be able to judge the probable amount of destruction.

City officials then will determine what steps they would take under these conditions.

Areas to be looked into include police, fire, essential services,

Hobbs Sees Link to Russia

Secret Record of 1946 Probe Of Amerasia Case Made Public

By The Associated Press

The seals were ripped off the investigation record of the hotly-disputed Amerasia case of 1945 in Congress yesterday. It came amid disputed talk of a "cover-up" in the case that prompted Representative Brown (R., Ohio) to declare there were House rumors that "the fix has been put in again."

Brown spoke out after Representative Hobbs (D., Ala.) told the House he believes there was a connection between the now-defunct magazine Amerasia and Russia. Hobbs made public the long-secret record of a 1946 House investigation into the Amerasia episode, including:

1. Testimony by a Naval Intelligence officer that Naval Lieut. Andrew Roth, one of the principals arrested in the Amerasia case and later cleared, was "suspected or alleged to be a fellow-traveler"—but Ross was "commissioned in spite of that."

2. Testimony that documents found cached in Amerasia magazine headquarters in New York included secrets from British Intelligence, U. S. Naval Intelligence, the State Department and other Government sources.

And that "every one of them bore the stamp that possession of the documents is a violation of the Espionage Act."

The latter testimony, given by a witness named "Brooks," the undercover name used by former OSS Agent Frank Bielaski, declared the warning about Espionage Act violation was "stamped all over" the documents.

On the Senate side, Senator Tydings (D., Md.) insisted that the Money Could Not Go To New Employes Or for New Raises; House Provision Hit

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Senate Appropriations Committee late yesterday approved a "tighter" resolution to allow Federal and District employes to get paid regularly for the remainder of this fiscal year.

It met yesterday morning on the House-approved resolution and postponed action when several members objected to the "loose" wording of the House measure. At an afternoon meeting, however, it approved the resolution with a proviso limiting use of the funds to employes already on the payroll and to pay increases already approved.

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said he would bring up the resolution for a Senate vote today. Should the Senate approve it, the resolution would have to go back to the House for concurrence in the Senate committee changes.

Bars New Employes

As the measure now stands, the funds provided could not be used for new employes hired after passage of the resolution for raises granted subsequent to passage.

A year ago, it was recalled, the Senate delayed a similar resolution for several weeks. The Senate finally acted to prevent additional payless paydays.

The Veterans' Administration hasn't enough money to meet pension payments to veterans due in about a week. All agencies have enough money to meet their payrolls through the remainder of this month. The District and several Federal agencies will miss the June 6 payday unless the Senate acts in the meantime.

After a brief debate, the House approved and sent to the Senate the deficiency bill that carries operating funds through June 30 for many agencies. If the Senate unexpectedly approves the bill this week, there will be no need to enact the House continuing resolution.

Only One Change Made

Only one change was made in the deficiency bill by the House. Additional office allowances for members of Congress were knocked from the bill on a point of order raised by Representative Scrivner (R., Kans.).

The bill carries a total of $625,493,694, including 75 million dollars to speed construction of wind tunnels for supersonic flying tests. Also included are 50 million dollars for economic aid for Korea, and 220 million dollars to meet veterans' pensions and other benefits.

A proposal by Representative Wayne M. Aspinall (D., Colo.) to add funds for fighting forest pests was defeated.

Allied Soldiers Defend Germany Now, McCloy Says

Hannover, Germany, May 22 (U.P.)—United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy today said Allied troops were no longer in Germany as occupiers. Now, he said, they are here rather as defenders.

Asserting that the time had come to stop treating Germany as a conquered enemy and to put her in the Atlantic Pact community, McCloy said:

"There is no longer time or place to speak of conquest and collaboration . . . there is only a time and a place for cooperation and unity because the future of Europe is at stake.

"The German people, I am sure, made up their minds that they are a part of the free world and that they have turned their backs on dictatorship, whether from right or left.

"There is no choice in the world today for a people who seek freedom. All must unite against oppression. A strong Western community of peoples is the best guarantee that Germany will not be turned into a battlefield."

McCloy said Germany must expect a serious economic crisis when Marshall Plan aid ends in 1952 and he gave the Germans little hope they would soon get full control of their foreign affairs.

Inquiry Is Opened In N. J. Explosion

South Amboy, N. J., May 22 (AP).—Mine-clearing operations sent new blasts echoing through South Amboy today while an official inquiry board heard only guesses as to the cause of the munitions disaster.

The harmless detonations were live mines, gathered about the city by Army experts and set off at a safe distance from the populace.

But there was still no official explanation of the rocketing waterfront explosion Friday night that took a toll of dead now listed at 31.

First witnesses were unable to fix the blame.

Shops Reopen

While the experts talked at the Coast Guard inquiry in New York, there was business as usual in this city of 10,000.

Shopkeepers returned to their boarded-up businesses as glaziers and repairmen continued the patching of scarred stores, homes and buildings.

School children were on a holiday, their classrooms damaged beyond immediate repair. They went back to schools anyway to help clear the wecrkage.

State and Army officials continued the search to identify victims and raised the official death toll to 31.

Added to the list of dead was Robert L. Whitcomb, 21, of Brockton, Mass.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced that damage to its dock property, where the blast occurred, was less than $1,500,000. Property damage in the city was estimated officially at $7,500,000.

Harry A. Campbell, chief inspector for the bureau of explosives of the Association of American Railroads, testified at the inquiry headed by Rear Adm. Edward H. Smith. He said the explosion occurred in a string of four barges being used to transport ammunition from railroad cars on the dock to a ship anchored in the harbor.

The munitions included military mines for Pakistan and blasting dynamite for use in Afghanistan.

Mines, Shells Shower City

Mines, fuses and shells had splattered over the city.

The State Department today said the explosives were licensed in accordance with Government regulations and that an investigation has shown no irregularities.

Campbell said the explosion could have occurred if one of the men loading the barges dropped a box containing antipersonnel mines—"if he dropped it far enough and it had no safety device."

One such explosion could have set off a "sympathetic" explosion, detonating two barges partially loaded with munitions, he added.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Joseph B. Schwartz of the Federal District of New Jersey told reporters at the hearing that bills of lading covering the explosives showed they originally were scheduled for Earle, N. J., where a naval ammunition depot is situated.

Campbell testified it was not a violation of Interstate Commerce Commission regulations to unload the explosives at a point other than that shown on the bill of lading.

40 Bodies Found

Peru Quake Deaths May Rise to 60

Cuzco, Peru, May 22 (AP).—Earthquake relief crews dug scores of bodies from the dusty, tumbled stones of this city's ancient relics today and sought to bring aid to the homeless.

Police said 40 bodies had been recovered and that the death list from Sunday's quake would mount to at least 60.

Among ruined and damaged structures in this oldest city of Peru were some famous churches and massive walls of ancient Inca civilization and its Spanish conquerors.

(Pedro P. Diaz, former mayor of Arequipa, on the first planeload of refugees to reach Lima, said the city of 45,000 was 90 percent destroyed. The city looked "as if it had been dynamited from underground," he said.

("It is truly a disaster," he added. The former mayor was among a party of Lions Club members from Chilean cities who were in Cuzco during the earthquake. None of the party was injured.)

Most of those killed were struck or buried by stones falling from church towers. Santo Domingo Church, built in early Spanish colonial days on the ruins of the Inca Temple of the Sun, was almost destroyed.

The ruins of the tower of San Sebastian Church lay in the street. Other church towers that cracked and collapsed were those of Santa Teresa and San Pedro. Several bodies were found beside the damaged churches of La Compania and San Agustin.

The pulpit of San Blas Church, famous for its fine art and carved wood, was damaged.

Many other convents, schools and other attractions to tourists suffered, along with homes, shops and a hospital.

President Manuel Odria assumed personal direction of relief operations from Lima and sent Minister of Health Col. Alberto Lopez to coordinate the work.

Many citizens knelt in prayer after the quake before a statue of Christ on the main plaza. Last night they carried an image of Senor de Los Temblores (Lord of Earthquakes) through the streets.

Separation Plans Blamed for 'Kidnap' Hoax Pulled by Wife of Oklahoma City Policeman

Oklahoma City, May 22 (AP).—A 21-hour kidnap hoax perpetrated by the wife of an Oklahoma City policeman yesterday was called a closed case today by Police Chief L. J. Hilbert.

C. V. Raper, assigned to the vice bureau gambling squad, disclosed that he and his wife, pretty Jo Alice, 33, had planned to separate before she disappeared.

It had been thought for a time by officers that Mrs. Raper was kidnaped by those seeking revenge on her husband.

His offer today to resign from the force was refused by Hilbert, and Mrs. Raper was taken to the home of a relative.

Statements were taken from two women friends of Mrs. Raper who assisted her by writing threatening notes to her husband and making anonymous telephone calls.

No charges will be filed, Hilbert said.

Raper returned home Sunday morning to find his bedroom ripped apart and his wife gone. A note scribbled on the wall said, "How do you like this, Mr. Raper? Is afraid?" His wife's torn nightgown was lying on the floor and a ladder was propped against an open window.

The officer said he had previously received several threatening notes and telephone calls but that his wife had been present when they were received.

Once during her absence yesterday Raper said his wife called him, screamed and hung up the telephone. Later he received two calls, from a man and a woman, saying his wife was being held.

Later Mrs. Raper called her husband from a suburban filling station and said she had been released. Police and Raper picked her up there last night.

She said two men, about 40 and 20 years old, had kidnaped her.

After an hour of questioning by Detective Chief Dwight Brown she admitted the story was a hoax.

ITU Election Again Is Won By Randolph

Indianapolis, May 22 (U.P.).—Woodruff Randolph today held a majority of 7000 over C. G. Sparkman, assuring him of a fourth term as president of the AFL International Typographical Union.

The latest unofficial count, from 669 locals, gave Randolph 36,892 votes. Sparkman of Detroit had 29,871.

ITU Secretary Don Hurd said the votes still out could not possibly swing the election toward Sparkman. Hurd said about 70,000 ITU members participated in the balloting.

Official figures probably will be available next week, Hurd said.

Randolph, a lawyer as well as a printer, was elected president in 1944 after serving eight terms as secretary-treasurer.

Tension Relieved At Winnipeg as River Retreats

Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 22 (AP).—The brimming Red River made another slow retreat today, relieving the tension that has gripped this flood-ridden city for a month.

The waters dropped ½ inch to an even 30 feet—the lowest point since May 12. It was the fourth ½-inch fall in 22 hours.

The evacuation of refugees continued, but only 139 left the flood area Sunday, as compared with 15,000 on May 12.

Labor Barely Wins On Housing Measure

London, May 22 (AP).—Britain's Labor government won a narrow victory in Commons tonight during an attack by the Conservative opposition on the housing program.

Tonight's vote was on a specific proposal to reduce the Ministry of Health's appropriation by a token sum.

Truman Asks 'Basin-Wide' River Projects

President Truman urged Congress yesterday to provide for "basin-wide development" of the power and other resources of the Nation's rivers.

In a special message, he said the legislators failed to give "proper consideration" to Federal agencies other than the Army Engineers when enacting the recent $1,700,000,000 rivers and harbors bill.

Mr. Truman signed the big bill last week. He said he did so because most of the work authorized "is based upon careful planning, and will be of lasting value as an investment in the development and use of our national resources."

"In a number of particulars, however, the act is seriously deficient," his message said. "I expect to take such remedial action as is open to me, and I request further legislative action by the Congress, to meet these deficiencies."

The President criticized particularly Congress' rejection of his proposal for the establishment of a Columbia Valley Administration to supervise development work in the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Truman noted that he directed the Army and the Interior Department nearly three years ago to prepare a joint plan for the Columbia River basin.

He said they recommended a schedule of projects and a "basin account" to permit a unified operation of Federal projects.

Mental Hospital Will Replace One For Paraplegics

The Government announced yesterday it will build a 1000-bed mental hospital at Van Nuys, Calif., where its recent decision to close a wooden general hospital treating paraplegics has been strongly protested.

The news came as a surprise to California wheel chair veterans and others here to carry on the fight against closing the 1600-bed war-built general hospital. Among others, it is treating 200 paraplegics—those paralyzed in the lower half of the body.

Actress Frances Langford recently attempted to intercede with President Truman to save the hospital but reported that he replied "the whole thing's a pressure deal."

Clare Luce Calls Mrs. Roosevelt 'Best Loved'

New York, May 22 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is "the best loved woman in the world," according to Clare Boothe Luce, one of her severest critics.

Mrs. Luce, former Republican Congresswoman from Connecticut and long an outspoken political foe of Mrs. Roosevelt, spoke at a dinner where Mrs. Roosevelt was awarded the annual Williamsburg Settlement Gold Medal.

"The plain fact is," Mrs. Luce said, "Mrs. Roosevelt has done more good deeds, on a bigger scale, for a longer time, than any woman who ever appeared on our public scene. No woman has ever so comforted the distressed—or distressed the comfortable!"

World Trade Show Features 21 Exhibits

The Washington Board of Trade's second annual "World Trade" show opened yesterday noon in the lobby of the Commerce Department Building, 14th st. between E st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Finnish crystal and ceramics, Irish tweeds, licorice-flavored Turkish liquor, and delicate Ceylonese metal work are among the 21 exhibits in the show, which will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily through the weekend.

The show is held in observance of the United States Chamber of Commerce's "World Trade Week."

Present at Opening

Participating in the opening were Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe Morgenstierne of Norway, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Thomas C. Blaisdell, jr.; Thornton W. Owen, president of the Board of Trade, and Jennings Randolph, chairman of the Board's World Trade Committee.

Prominent in the Italian exhibit are two Necchi sewing machines, and a Lambretta motorcycle. Equipped with a 4.3 horsepower motor, the cycle can do 110 miles-per-gallon and has a speed of around 40 miles per hour.

In the Benelux (Belgium, Netherlands, Luxemburg) exhibit are linens, laces, Dutch tiles and pewter, Luxemburgian wines, and a sample of a Liege gunsmith's work—a handmade shotgun loaned by Belgian Ambassador Silvercruys.

Glistening With Gold

In the Turkish exhibit are embroideries glistening with gold thread, and meerschaum pipes. Austria shows crystal, and Egypt elaborate silver jewelry.

Israel's exhibit features blouses, leather goods, and costume jewelry, and even includes a "home grown" sherry.

France's exhibit, dominated by a vivid Aubusson hanging, is highly feminine in appeal, with stationery, perfumes, laces, sequin, handkerchiefs, and china. There are eye-catching gloves, including a pink pair, worked with gold musical notes, created for Lily Pons, a white openwork pair created for Queen Elizabeth, and a gauntlet-type pair made for Pope Pius XI, with his coat of arms in gold. And, oh yes, there is champagne in the French exhibit.

Truman Lauds Fahy Committee's Work

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday commended the success of a two-year effort to provide greater equality of treatment and opportunity for Negroes in the armed services and said it showed his civil rights program is workable.

Receiving a report from a special presidential commission that has been working on race problems in the military services, he urged that Senators consider its achievements in acting on FEPC. A motion to take up such legislation in the Senate has been blocked for two weeks by opponents.

Headed by Judge Fahy

The commission, headed by Associate Justice Charles Fahy of the U. S. Court of Appeals, reported yesterday that new racial policies put into operation by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps since 1948 will provide Negroes with equality of treatment and opportunity with whites "within the reasonably near future."

Mr. Truman commended the group and said its work "shows what can be accomplished by a commission in this admittedly difficult field." He declared the Senate should note this in deciding whether to let the bill to set up a Fair Employment Practices Commission "come to vote."

"Equality of treatment and opportunity in the armed services is right, it is just and it will strengthen the Nation," said the President, and he added: "That is true throughout our entire National life."

Set Up July 26, 1948

The President's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services was set up by Executive Order July 26, 1948. That order declared it was the policy of the President that racial equality should exist in the armed forces and directed that such be made effective "as rapidly as possible, having due regard to the time required to effectuate any necessary changes without impairing efficiency or morale."

The Fahy committee was directed to examine in the "rules, procedures and practices" of the armed services and recommend what changes were needed. In transmitting its report, the group said that all its recommendations had been approved by the President, Secretary of Defense and Departments of Army, Navy and Air Force.

"It is the committee's conviction that the present programs of the three services are designed to accomplish the objectives of the President," it was said. "As the programs are carried out, there will be, within the reasonably near future, equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed forces, with a consequent improvement in military efficiency."

While the group made no recommendations for monitoring the services' racial programs, it will continue in existence for the immediate future at least. White House Secretary Eben Ayers said another executive order is required to disband the commission and that none has been considered or prepared.

Outlining its work, the commission said it first surveyed the Navy, for the sea service in 1945 had adopted a policy of non-segregation, while the Army and Air Force continued segregation. Interviews with Navy commanding officers, petty officers and seamen conviced them, said the port, that shift had been accomplished without trouble and that this was stressed to the Army and Air Force. The Navy was urged to take steps to increase the number of enlisted Negroes in general service and get more Negro Naval ROTC students.

The Air Force next came up with a new program, calling for the eventual breakup of segregated units. Initial steps were taken to put it into effect, on July 1, 1949. During the early part of this year, the Army announced a program opening all schools and job specialties to Negroes, permitting the assignment of qualified Negro specialists to troop units under completely integrated conditions and later abolished quotas for Negroes.

Potential Skills Cited

Reviewing the earlier approved Navy and Air Force plans, the report concluded:

"The range of individual Negro abilities is much wider than the services had assumed prior to the opening of all jobs . . . The services cannot afford to waste these potential Negro skills . . .

"Integration of the two races at work, in schools, and in living quarters did not present insurmountable difficulties. As a matter of fact, integration in two of the services had brought a decrease in racial friction.

"The enlisted men were far more ready for integration than the officers had expected.

"The attitude of command was a substantial factor in the success of the racial policies of the Air Forces and the Navy."

While it "is too early to appraise the effect of the Army's new policy," the committee declared that it "firmly believes" that as the Army carries out that policy "within a relatively short time Negro soldiers will enjoy complete equality of treatment and opportunity."

Astronomer Sees Strange 'Disc' In Arizona Skies

Flagstaff, Ariz., May 22 (U.P.).—A nationally known astronomer today reported he saw through four-power binoculars a "visible disc" moving through southwestern skies.

Seymour L. Hess of the Lowell Observatory here, said he sighted a "bright object in the sky" about 12:15 p. m. Saturday.

"Through binoculars I first got the impression it looked like a parachute," Hess said in a signed statement, "but this may have been just the section of one half of a spherical object, the other half being in shadows."

"The object presented a visible disc to the naked eye. It definitely was not an airplane."

Hess estimated the object to be 3 to 6 feet in diameter, depending on the height of the clouds in front of which it passed.

Big 4 Given 10-Point Plan By Trygve Lie

Lake Success, May 22 (U.P.).—United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie has laid before the leaders of the Big Four a 10-point program for ending the cold war, diplomatic sources said tonight.

The 10 points lay the basis for Lie's plan for a 20-year "program of peace" that he outlined in a speech at Washington several weeks ago.

Informed sources said the 10-point "aide memoire" that Lie gave to President Truman, British Prime Minister Attlee, French Premier Bidault and Russian Premier Stalin was one of several formal diplomatic notes he left behind him on his "pilgrimage of peace."

Details of Lie's 10-point program could not be learned immediately. But it was reliably understood they dealt with the cold war and its settlement in more concrete terms than he has used in any previous communication.

The other notes he delivered to the Big Four powers were understood to have dealt with problems related to the settlement of peace through the U. N.

One of these, it was believed, outlined specifically a proposal on Chinese representation in the U. N. which has led to Russia's boycott and has split the world organization for the past 18 weeks.

Lie has favored admission of the Chinese Communist regime if investigation shows they control the country and "are habitually obeyed" by the bulk of its population.

Red Compound in Frankfurt Fenced in as Retaliation Act

Frankfurt, Germany, May 22 (AP).—The Soviet military mission in Frankfurt was fenced in tonight after five Russians were picked up outside their compound for violating an American ban on their travels.

The mission of 14 men was restricted to its block-square compound by an order issued Friday in retaliation for restrictions on United States officers at Soviet headquarters in Potsdam, who are prohibited from going anywhere except between their offices and homes.

Two of the five Russians—a lieutenant and a sergeant—landed in an American police station and admitted they were aware of the American restrictions but thought their identity cards permitted them to go to other parts of Frankfurt. Col. A. B. O'Connell, Frankfurt provost marshal, told them they were wrong.

The United States Army dispatched 10 military policemen to circle the Soviet compound. As they approached they halted a mission car and nabbed three other Russians—a major and two civilians.

They, too, were taken to the police station but they were found to be members of a Russian reparations mission, which is not affected by the restrictions on the military mission.

All five were released from police custody after Colonel O'Connell had obtained a promise from the Soviet commander, Col. George Pavlov, that the American order would be obeyed in the future. They were escorted back to the mission and the major was allowed to return to his home in another part of Frankfurt.

The Army kept its guard around the mission until O'Connell called on Pavlov. The guard then was withdrawn, leaving two regular German policemen on duty.

Soviet Injects Trieste Issue In Peace Talk

London, May 22 (U.P.).—Russia told the Western powers today further talks on the Austrian treaty would depend on their answer to the Soviet demand for withdrawal of Anglo-American forces from Trieste.

The surprise move, made at the meeting of U. S., British, French and Soviet deputies on the Austrian treaty, was termed "blackmail" by Western officials.

The Western deputies rejected the demand for settlement of the Trieste issue.

They renewed their offer, however, to settle all outstanding issues if this will lead to completion of the treaty and agreed tentatively to meet again with the Soviets on Friday after consulting their governments.

U. S. Deputy Samuel Reber called the Soviet demand "unilateral arrogation" and the British deputy said "the key to progress lies in the hand of the Soviet delegation. At present the door is locked with a triple lock."

The Soviet demand referred to a Russian note of April 20, attacking Western administration of their occupied zone of Trieste, demanding withdrawal of British and American troops and appointment of a governor for the free territory.

Underground Harries Reds In Shanghai

Hongkong, May 22 (U.P.).—Thousands of Nationalist underground workers have invaded Shanghai to carry out sabotage and assassination of Communist officials, reports from the Red-occupied city said today.

The reports said the Communists ordered mass arrests of the Nationalists who came ashore in a series of commando-type operations. Many weapons were reported captured.

The independent Sintao Daily News quoted an announcement by Shanghai garrison headquarters that 1378 underground workers were arrested during the first four months of the year and a dozen of them executed publicly.

Communist reports admit a big increase in anti-Communist activity on southwestern China. The official Communist news agency said 85,000 "bandits" had been eliminated in the provinces of Szechuan, Sikang, Kweichow and Yunnan during April. It said 14,000 were killed, 41,000 captured and the remainder surrendered.

China Reds Reported Massing Near Indo-China

Hongkong, May 22 (NYHT).—Sources considered reliable are reporting the concentration of a big Chinese Communist force—a few hundred thousand men—in southern Kwangsi Province, on Indo-China's frontier.

The reports say roads are being built toward the frontier; that a railway is being constructed for military purposes; that new heavy-duty airfields are being prepared; that material is being moved into Kwangsi fast; that 1000 Chinese Communist troops are informally crossing the Indo-China border daily.

Those who believe these reports think the Communists' aim is to supply Ho Chi-minh with a formal army strong enough to defeat French forces defending Indo-China.

Tibet to Fight to Stay Free, Brother of Dalai Lama Says

Taipei, Formosa, May 22 (U.P.).—Gyalo Thondup, brother of Tibet's Dalai Lama, said today that once the Chinese Communists conquer Tibet "India will fall."

He said Tibet was doing "everything possible" to prepare for the expected Communist invasion and was building the 8000-man militia to a fighting force of 40,000—eventually 100,000.

Thondup, in an interview, appealed for American help, since "we sorely need weapons and ammunition." He said that with United States aid "we feel the Communists will never attack Tibet."

(The Comunist radio today offered Tibet "regional autonomy" in return for "peaceful liberation" and warned the tiny Himalayan country against seeking American and British help.)

Thondup, whose brother is the temporal and spiritual ruler of Tibet, conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today but described his visit as a "courtesy call."

He voiced Tibet's determination to fight if attacked by the Communists, whose armies were reported on Tibet's northern and northeastern borders months ago.

Thondup warned of the consequences of a conquest of Tibet:

"If the Communists capture my country and also take Nepal they will be able to sweep down through India, where Communists are already attacking the Nehru government. Once the Communists take Tibet, India will fall."

Thondup said he might travel to the United States and Britain to present Tibet's case.

He estimated it would take the Communists at least four months to march through the towering mountains, some of whose peaks reach 20,000 feet, and attack.

"We've defeated several Chinese invasions throughout our 1000-year-old history and will repel the Chinese Reds if given sufficient arms and supplies," he said. "The terrain is ideally suited for defensive warfare."

8 Children Die in Parade

Venice, Italy, May 22 (U.P.).—At least eight children were killed Sunday, police reported, when a bridge collapsed at Cavarzere 50 miles south of here during a religious procession. "Many" are missing, reports from the scene said.

I WAS THERE AND I KNOW!

John Wade, information clerk: "A family man has to hunt the best vacation bargain possible — and I've found it! Florida in summer offers everything the millionaires enjoy in winter — at about one-tenth the price. We took lots of sightseeing tours while we were in Miami, and the youngsters sure got a kick out of seeing The Little White House at Key West."

Phyllis Nelson, Production assistant: "Imagine paying only $2 a day for a room in those swank ocean-front hotels! The beautiful room I had costs plenty in winter, believe me. When you work hard the rest of the year, you really appreciate living in such luxury for two whole weeks—I felt like a queen!

Joan Crosby, account executive: "I was a little doubtful about climate when I chose Florida for last summer's vacation, but now I'm sold! There was a cool ocean breeze day and night, and the temperature average was only 80.6°. Another thing I especially liked was the uncrowded beaches. Plenty of space to stretch out and relax!"

Howard Ahlemeyer, Jr., salesman: "Man, oh man, the wonderful fishing that Florida offers in summer! A whole day with a charter group aboard a deep-sea fishing boat, for only $1.50 —and marlin and sailfish just begging to bite. I got in some good golf and tennis, too—I can hardly wait to get to Florida again this year."

Catherine M. Corrigan, sec'y: "I've traveled before, but I've never enjoyed such wonderful comfort and service as on my National Airlines flight to Florida. Roomy seats, wide windows, and delicious food. What makes it best of all is that comfort and service were combined with National's low summer fares!"

Court Voids Racial Order In S. Africa

Capetown, South Africa, May 22 (U.P.).—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court ruled today that the government's so-called "apartheid" regulations separating Negroes from whites on railroad trains were invalid.

The court invalidated the regulations on the ground they resulted in unequal treatment of races.

Some legal experts said the ruling would invalidate all the government's segregation decrees.

But Minister of Transport P. O. Sauer said the regulations invalidated by the court already had been replaced by new ones. The new ones, he said, also will insure the segregation of whites from Negroes and also from the many Indians in this country. Any person who violates the new regulations will be prosecuted, Sauer said.

At present the government enforces segregation in buses and in all postoffices, where police are posted to make sure those who enter do so through doors designated for persons of his color. Natives and Indians are forbidden to enter white bars. Mixed marriages are generally forbidden and a clergyman is being tried here now for marrying persons of different color.

housing, feeding, medical care, demolition, removal of debris, traffic control, public information, public health, administration and mutual aid.

To provide material for the study, Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner for the District, distributed to members of the committee a questionnaire covering 23 fields of activity that would be affected in case of an attack.

He asked committee members in answering the questions to assume that a national emergency had been declared and that Washington had been given at least an hour's advance notice of an atomic attack.

Committee members were to report on the questionnaire what they would need to put their organizations in a state of permanent preparedness, and steps they would need to take when the air raid alert was given.

The questions covered such things as needed personnel, equipment, storage dispersal, safeguarding documents, bomb proofing of buildings and possible sabotage.

Young asked committee members to comment on the need for practice drills and blackout rehearsals. He set Monday as the deadline for return of the questionnaires.

Young said that after the questionnaires have been received the National Securities Resources Board will go a step further by assuming that an atomic bomb attack had taken place shortly after the alert. It will give details of what the attack was like and how much damage was done.

The Commissioner said there was no thought in the minds of National Security Resources Board personnel that an atomic attack is coming or that the Nation will enter a state of emergency in the near future.

"The assumption is simply being made, as an easy way of getting us thinking along the right lines," Young declared.

Grand Jury Hears Remington Deny Being Communist

New York, May 22 (U.P.)— William W. Remington, 33-year-old economist in the Commerce Department, testified for three hours today before a special grand jury investigating subersive activities.

When he left the courthouse, he said the jurors asked him if he ever was a Communist and he told them "I was not." He will testify again Tuesday.

Remington, a graduated of Dartmouth College, who now lives in Arlington, Va., worked in 1937 for the Tennessee Valley Authority in Knoxville.

Another witness before the grand jury today was Mervin (Pat) Todd, 33, of New York City who also worked for TVA in 1937.

President Insists U. N. Proves Its Worth Toward Peace

Russia in mentioning "the policies and acts of the Soviet Union which lead to tension and impairment of security in international relations." He argued that "the great issues of security in the postwar world are between the Soviet Union and the rest of the world at large, and that these issues arise from failures by the Soviet Union to conform its conduct to the purposes and principles of the Charter."

"Our experiences during 1949 in the United Nations provided further demonstration," the President told Congress, "that, as the Secretary of State has recently stated, agreements with the Soviet Union and its satellites are valid only as and when they record existing situations of fact.

"It is not enough to hope for agreement or to make proposals; it is essential to create the conditions under which it will be to the interest of the Soviet Union to enter into and to keep agreements.

"All international activities which create moral, economic and military strength among the nations of the free world will broaden the area of possible agreement and hasten its coming.

"We are endeavoring in the United Nations as in other international actions to make clear to the Soviet Union that we seek to carry out the Charter in deed as in word, and that we ask no more from any other member."

Both the President's letter of transmittal and the 242-page printed report stressed the "constructive" work of the U. N. in nonpolitical fields. The President's letter pictured the U. N. as "increasingly effective in improving the daily life of millions of people," and pointed especially to the U. N. program of technical assistance to underdeveloped areas.

Cotton Swap For Soybeans Called 'Mess'

Representative Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.), yesterday attacked as a "foul-smelling mess" the Commodity Credit Corporation's deal to swap with Chinese Communists American cotton for Manchurian soybeans.

The Agriculture Department announced on May 11 the CCC's plan to make the trade. Crawford said $7,603,000 worth of American cotton would be swapped for 4 million dollars worth of soybeans.

The Agriculture Department said the deal would be made through the World Commerce Corporation, a New York export-import firm. Crawford said available figures indicate the firm will make more than $2,700,000 on the swap. The soybeans are to be used by the United States Armed Forces in Japan.

Crawford asserted he intends to make formal recommendations to Congress for an investigation and corrective action.

Crawford cited Agriculture Department figures to show the United States had 119,663,000 bushels of soybeans on hand when the deal was announced and the CCC had more than 1 million bushels in its own stocks. The CCC stocks, he said, would have been enough to fill more than half the armed forces' needs.

Crawford said the World Commerce Corporation is headed by Frank T. Ryan, New York cotton dealer and broker, and that its directors include Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, wartime head of the Office of Strategic Services, and Joseph G. Grew, former United States Ambassador to Japan.

gued that it is only common sense to put the administration of a Government agency in the hands of one man, the chairman. He said the people are getting restive under the heavy burden of taxation, and he asserted that one way to lighten that burden is to make Government agencies more efficient.

Senator Benton (D., Conn.), a supporter of all the reorganization plans, said the plans were not adequately presented to congressional leaders in advance, and in many cases were not supported vigorously by the agencies involved.

Senator Long (D., La.) observed that some of the reorganization proposals were nothing more than "grabs for power by the Administration."

Mental Hospital Escapee Caught

Crownsville, Md., May 22 (AP)— A "very dangerous" criminal patient surrendered to a posse of police and guards today, 18 hours after his third break from Crownsville State Hospital.

John Henry Ford, 25-year-old Baltimore man, serving a 42-year sentence in the hospital for eight armed robberies, gave up when searchers surrounded his hiding place in woods near Millersville.

Dr. Jacob Morgenstern, Crownsville superintendent, said Ford was handcuffed and returned to solitary confinement in the criminally insane ward.

Ford, described by Morgenstern as "a very dangerous person," scaled an infirmary porch fence while other patients were at supper late yesterday afternoon.

POINTERS for car buyers

HOW EASY ARE "EASY TERMS"?

When you buy a car on time payments, remember—credit costs money and the more credit you use the more your car costs you.

Don't be misled by proposals of "easy terms." They are not easy. If you pay very little down and the balance over a long period, your car costs you more.

The cheapest and safest way to buy on time payments is to pay as much down as you can afford—pay the balance in as few monthly payments as possible.

Ives Explains Government 'Intrusion'

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) keynoted the opening of the fifth national conference on citizenship yesterday by telling critics of excessive Government regimentation to look into the mirror.

In America the voting public is to blame for trends in Government, he told delegates of 500 national organizations at the Statler Hotel. The people are "too often blind" to the "essential political fact" that in a representative democracy "we are our own government," he declared.

The New York Senator said the Nation should be grateful for the conflict between "welfare" government and traditional American individualism, now highlighting political discussions everywhere.

Peculiar to Democracy

This conflict is a problem peculiar only to a Democracy, he said. "In an authoritarian state no such difficulty is encountered," because "freedom of the individual is not of political significance." He conceded the conflict still is a "long way from solving."

To think of government merely as "an intruder" betrays an immaturity of citizenship and an ignorance of the basic principles of our Democratic system," he told his audience.

Another speaker, Professor Harold F. Gosnell, professor of political sciences at American University, spoke on ways to bring nonvoters to the polls. His formula:

"We can get out the vote by reducing poverty, increasing educational opportunities, increasing the number of church-goers, and by making concerted drives to quicken the civic interest of the young voters, women, those in isolated communities, and those who just do not care about politics."

Four "Success Stories"

At the afternoon session, the conference cited four "success stories" in arousing American citizenship.

Mrs. Russell T. Stuart of the Louisville, Ky., League of Women Voters, outlined the success of its recent "Voters' Manual."

Other citizenship enterprises saluted were the Gladwater, Texas, "Democracy Beats Communism Week"; Milwaukee's Eugene Field Elementary School study program of the city government, and the Journal-Transcript of Franklin, N. H., a newspaper credited with doing an "exceptional job in keeping citizens informed about public issues."

'I Speak for Freedom . . .'

Mr. Vice-President.

I am too young to remember freedom—
but I am not too young to speak for it.

I was 3 years old when my country lost its liberty—and 6 years old when my family lost our country altogether.

When we came into the DP camp in Germany, the only souvenirs of our home were six little snapshots.
But we still had our dreams—and like all DPs, they were dreams of living again in a free land.

I speak for freedom because I saw it light up the eyes of refugees when they learned they had a chance to come here to live.

I speak for liberty because I saw it brighten the voices of my fellow passengers on the ship which brought me to America
8 days ago.

I am only one of 150,000 people who had no home until America gave us one—and no assurance of freedom until America promised it to us.

And so I speak for freedom—and may God grant me strength to work for it and deserve it.

to the morale and prestige of the Americans of all colors and creeds.

"It is tragic and it is damaging Nation that these things cannot be said of Washington, D. C.

"As all who believe in democracy must, I hope to see the day when this beautiful city on the Potomac will have removed its undemocratic blemishes and will be synonymous with real democracy."

Switching to the world situation, Bunche said "The United Nations deserves the support and confidence of all Americans. It is our one great hope for a stable, free and peaceful world."

A recent import, to whom the meaning and promise of America was very sharp and immediate, was introduced by Watson B. Miller, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization.

She is the very blond, the very beautiful eloquent Miss Dace Epermanis, a 12-year-old Latvian girl who recently became the 150,000th displaced person to enter the United States.

While the breeze stirred her golden pigtails, Dace told, in her thin, sweet voice and brand-new English, what America has come to mean to her. "I am too young to remember freedom, but not too young to speak for it," she said.

Dace was welcomed by Lydia Fediai, formerly of Warsaw, Poland, who, on October 30, 1948, was the first little girl to enter the country under the displaced persons program. Lydia attends the Buchanan School here.

J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of The Washington Post, introduced foreign representatives of the State Department's information and educational exchange program.

Robert Young of Hollywood fame acted as master of ceremonies.

It Takes a Heap of Hoss To Bring Hopalong Here

Shucks, pardner, every TV fan knows a cowpoke 'aint worth a mess o' burned frijoles thout'n his trusty hoss.

That's the reason Hopalong Cassidy did not appear here yesterday in the I Am American Day celebration, like all the hard-workin' hombres on the committee had figgered he would.

Bob Stabler, Cassidy's manager-pal sidekick, told The Washington Post by telephone that the committee couldn't afford to fly in Hopalong's hoss, Topper, from Detroit where they are performing. Seems like it would cost a purty poke of nuggets.

So, according to Stabler, Hopalong was danged if he'd appear 'thout'n Topper.

Stabler allowed as how Topper was just as much part of Hopalong as is his black suit.

home, insisted she had not prevented the couple from seeing each other. She said the father had been welcome to come to her home, not only to visit his wife, but to live, until he filed the suit against her.

Asked by Hulme's attorney, Roy G. Allman, if Hulme still was welcome to come to her home, Mrs. Ristau answered: "I don't believe I'd want him there now."

She said she and her husband previously had offered her parents an apartment in their home and had evicted their tenants to make the move possible. She said Mr. and Mrs. Hulme later changed their minds about moving after "a meeting of the family."

Her mother's decision to come to live with her "surprised me very much," Mrs. Ristau testified.

Mrs. Hulme was not in court, having been excused after presenting a doctor's certificate that she was too ill to appear.

Hulme's testimony that he had been prevented from seeking his wife was supported by a son, Henry S. Hulme, and another daughter, Mrs. Fannie Fellows.

Supporting the Ristaus' contention that Mrs. Hulme was free to leave their home whenever she wanted were Miss Hulme and still another daughter, Mrs. Stella Wilson.

Hulme at present is living with Mrs. Fellows at 406 Oak st., Falls Church. The Ristaus and Mrs. Hulme live at 4011 20th rd., N, Arlington.

The case will go to the jury following closing arguments slated to start at 10 a. m. today.

Quiz Counsel Will Get Files On N. Y. Crime

New York, May 22 (NYHT).—Rudolph Halley, chief counsel to the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, will receive District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's comprehensive files on big-time criminals and gamblers, the prosecutor disclosed today while meeting with Halley.

Halley flew up from Washington to see Hogan, who has been studying organized crime in New York County for more than a year and is currently conducting a grand jury investigation of Frank Erickson, king-pin bookmaker. Halley said he intends to see "every prosecutor who can give us any help," including Miles F. McDonald, district attorney of Kings County. McDonald also is investigating racketeering, including gambling and corruption of public officials.

Before turning Halley over to Alfred J. Scotti, head of his rackets bureau, Hogar. said that in addition to cooperating with Halley on New York underworld figures known nationally, he also would give the committee's counsel information regarding other counties and "other States." The latter was understood to include New Jersey, where Erickson, as well as Joe Adonis and Longy Zwillman, has been operating for many years.

When Halley was asked if he were interested in Frank Costello, reputed overlord of the underworld, he replied:

"You can draw your own conclusions. I can't make any statement as to what I'm interested in. There's been no definite judgment or determination on any procedure, but I'll go wherever I am directed to by the committee."

Meanwhile, Harry Richards, $70-a-week Erickson "dummy," testified before the grand jury today. He was in the jury room for 35 minutes and is to be recalled later this week. He was "cooperating 100 percent" with Scotti, Vincent A. G. O'Connor, another assistant district attorney, and the jury, it was said.

Because he was allowed to testify without signing a waiver, whatever Richards, a grandfather and convicted bookie, tells the panel cannot be used against him. Richards has worked for Erickson for almost 40 years.

Richards was the first Erickson henchman to go before the jury. A material witness in the case, he has been in the Tombs in lieu of $100,000 bail since May 4. With another Erickson cohort, who is missing, Richards maintained two safe deposit boxes for Erickson. He also kept for Erickson, in the name of "H. Richards," a checking account that totaled $114,000 last April 25.

Still missing are 24 Erickson employes and associates for whom Hogan sent out a call last Friday night.

legislation to cut the heart out of the race-wire information business. He was called to tell about the Standard News Service, in which he and Gargotta were partners with others. The business grossed $40,000 last year with a net profit of $20,000.

It was testified that Standard got its race-wire news from General News Service Bureau in Chicago, a firm that a Western Union official earlier had said was tied to a Continental Press wire. But Continental officials denied the link. The Senate committee is still trying to find out the facts.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments on the gambling and racketeering front:

The House Interstate Commerce Committee decided to reopen hearings on the Senate-approved bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines. The windup hearings will be held on June 1 and 2 unless the House is in recess over Memorial Day. In that case they will be held June 12 and 13.

The special Senate crime committee obtained the promise of New York's District Attorney Frank Hogan to throw open to it the business records of Frank Erickson, the bookie's bookie.

Chairman McFarland (D., Ariz.) of the Commerce unit said it was "about time" to report out a race-wire bill "for Senate debate." He said he felt the committee already has enough information on which to act.

U. S. News and World Report magazine declared in its current issue that what it termed the 10-billion-dollar gambling racket is controlled by many separate but allied syndicates, which maintain "friendly relations" to avoid bloody gang wars.

The magazine declared that most of the syndicates, each with its own "territory," have strong ties with political machines that provide "protection." These syndicates, the article said, make up a "cartel" arrangement and are not controlled by any "single top organization."

Presbyterians Oppose Marriage With Catholics

Cincinnati, May 22 (AP).—The Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. today voted to join with the Protestant Episcopal Church in opposing marriages between members and Roman Catholics under conditions required by the Catholic Church.

The resolution was approved during the fifth day of the 162d General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

The Episcopal Church took such a stand at its general convention last October.

Objections referred to particularly are those which involve a promise that children of such marriages must be brought up in the Catholic faith.

NLRB Ignores Court Non-Red Oath Ruling

The National Labor Relations Board said yesterday that despite an adverse court ruling, it won't change its attitude on non-Communist affidavits from top AFL and CIO officers. It said it would wait until the Supreme Court rules on the question.

Its original stand was and is: Under Taft-Hartley, officers of individual AFL or CIO member unions had to sign non-Communist oaths if they wanted to use the NLRB. Officers of federations of labor—like CIO and AFL—were exempt.

The board stuck by its decision even though the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court ruled May 5 that the NLRB was wrong.

The court refused to enforce a board order requiring the Postex Cotton Mills Co. to bargain with a CIO union. The court's reason was that at the time the case originated, CIO President Philip Murray and other CIO officers had not signed the affidavits.

Murray and other CIO officers finally signed the affidavits December 22, 1949, more than two years after Taft-Hartley became effective.

The Fifth Circuit's ruling throws into legal doubt all cases won by the CIO that originated during that two-year period.

Robert N. Denham, the board's general counsel, always has contended the board's original ruling was wrong. But as the board's legal officer, Denham defended the board's position in the courts. Denham now has his staff studying the possible effects of the Postex decision on other CIO cases.

Yesterday's NLRB ruling came in a case between the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Sparrows Point shipyard, Baltimore, and the CIO's Shipbuilding Workers Union.

On April 12 the NLRB found the company had refused to bargain with the union and ordered the firm to do so.

After the Fifth Circuit's decision, Bethlehem appealed to set aside this ruling on the ground that its case ha doriginated at a time when Murray and other CIO officers were still refusing to file their non-Communist oaths.

In denying the motion, the NLRB said:

"With due respect for the opinion of the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, the board is constrained to adhere to the board's original view until the Supreme Court of the United States has had an opportunity to pass on the question."

CIO Marine Cooks Union Put on Trial

The CIO yesterday called on another of its unions, the Marine Cooks and Stewards, to answer pro-Communist charges.

A three-man committee headed by President O. A. Knight of the CIO oil workers opened hearings on charges against the seagoing union.

The same committee finished a similar hearing on charges against Harry Bridges' CIO longshoremen's last week.

The committee findings go to the CIO executive council, which is empowered to oust unions found hewing to the Communist party line. The CIO already has ousted six unions on that basis.

After the marine cooks, two more hearings are scheduled, one on May 25 against the International Fishermen's and Allied Workers Union, the other on June 1 against the International Fur and Leather Workers Union. The fur workers are headed by Ben Gold, a member of the Communist party's national committee.

Secret Record of 1945 Probe Of Amerasia Case Made Public

Amerasia case is being thoroughly investigated, and he declared:

"When a report is made. every pertinent question which has been asked about this case is going to be answered fully."

Tydings is chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating charges by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) that the State Department is infested with Communists and that the Amerasia case is the key to a Red network in the Government.

The wartime case involved the alleged illegal removal of State Department records and the subsequent arrest of six persons, including two State Department officials and editor Philip Jaffee of the magazine Ameraisia.

Two of the six were fined; Jaffee paid $2500. The other four were cleared.

Some Statements "Unwarranted"

On the House floor, the Amerasia incident cropped up when Representative Hobbs, who headed the 1946 investigation of the case, spoke out in reply to what he called "a large number of unwarranted statements which won't bear the light of day."

In declaring he believes there was a connection between Amerasia and Russia, Hobbs did not elaborate. He did say that when his subcommittee investigated the case, none of the material brought to its attention appeared significant.

For the first time, the Alabama legislator made the record of the House investigation a matter of public record. He did so by throwing on the table a thick file of photographed typewritten pages for the official House record.

"This is the sealed record of the Amerasia hearing," Hobbs said.

Representative Brown interrupted Hobbs to declare:

"There is a feeling throughout the Nation there has been a cover-up in the Amerasia case. More recently there have been dirty, sly little rumors floating through the cloakrooms that the fix has been put in again and that the whole thing will be covered up once more, and the whole thing whitewashed again."

No Attempt to Hide Facts

Brown demanded that Congress "go to the bottom of this—let the chips fall where they may."

Hobbs said he agreed, but he said there had been no attempt by his subcommittee in 1946 to hide any facts. He said the record was sealed at the request of Represenative Dondero (R, Mich.) to avoid endangering the national security. Dondero later denied this to newsmen.

Representative Cox (D., Ga.) told the House that "if the case had been properly developed. the State Department would have been in up to its head."

In related developments:

1. Senator McCarthy demanded a new probe of his charges and denounced the current Senate investigation as a "foul job."

The Wisconsin Senator said the Senate inquiry group is "deliberately" falling down on its assigned task of exposing alleged Communists in the Government.

As alternatives, he proposed either a Federal investigation directed by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover and Admiral R. H. Hillenkoetter, head of the United States Central Intelligence Agency; or, an independent inquiry guided by such men as former President Herbert Hoover and Federal Judge Medina of New York.

"Mystery Man" Not Involved

2. Chairman Tydings told newsmen his subcommittee knows the name of an "internationally famed" person cited by Frank Bielaski and that the man involved has no connection with the Amerasia case.

Tydings disputed statements made in a broadcast yesterday by Bielaski, chief investigator for the wartime Office of Strategic Services, who led the first raid on Amerasia's headquarters.

Bielaski said the name of one man involved in the Amerasia case "up to his ears" had not been made public. He said the individual was "of greater fame nationally and internationally than anyone who has been mentioned in this case."

But Tydings told newsmen that Bielaski had given the name of the "famed" person in secret testimony behind closed doors, and he said Bielaski replied "No" when asked if the man had any connection with the Amerasia case.

"We asked Bielaski if he was suggesting that we investigate this man and he said 'No,'" Tydings said.

Probe to End in Three Weeks

The Maryland Senator said the committee's investigators are working on the Amerasia case now and the inquiry may be completed in about three weeks.

3. Vice President Barkley directed that the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee consider an inquiry into charges that hundreds of sexual perverts are holding Government jobs. McCarthy has charged there are perverts as well as Communists in the State Department. The department has denied it.

Perverts of both sexes are regarded as poor security risks because they are potential targets for blackmail. Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) said impounded records of the Washington Police Department, listing about 3750 homosexuals in Federal jobs in the Nation's Capital, will be available for study.

The committee is expected to assign the investigation to a subcommittee headed by Senator Hoey (D., N. C). Senator McCarthy is a member of the subcommittee, but he told newsmen that in view of his charges he would not take part in the inquiry.

Accuser Again Calls Adler, Draper 'Traitors'

Hartford, Conn., May 22 (AP)—Mrs. Hester McCullough testified today that she still believes entertainers Paul Draper and Larry Adler are traitors, but not Communists.

On the stand to defend herself against a $200,000 libel suit brought by the entertainers, the Greenwich, Conn., housewife was asked in cross-examination:

"Do you still think that Mr. Draper and Adler are traitors?"

She replied: "I would say so—yes."

Frederick H. Wiggin, the entertainers' counsel, then asked her: "Do you now think they are members of the Communist party?"

A. "No, sir."

Q. "Do you think they are Communists?"

A. "I never did think they were Communists. I have always said they were pro-Communists."

Wiggin recalled that Mrs. McCullough was quoted as saying in a speech to the Greenwich Kiwanis Club on December 30, 1948, that "anyone interested in communism is interested in overthrowing our Government, and should be treated as traitors."

He asked her if she still felt this way.

"Yes," she answered, "I still do."

Wiggin then referred to a California legislative report on communism—a report Mrs. McCullough has cited as one basis of her charges of pro-communism against the entertainers.

Wiggin quoted the report as saying that "the acid test for both Communists and fellow-travelers was opposition to imperialist war during the Hitler-Stalin Pact of 1939-41."

He recalled Draper's testimony that he tried to enlist in the Canadian and United States Air Force and Navy before June 21, 1941, and asked Mrs. McCullough if this would not "be inconsistent with the Communist line."

"It's hard to tell," Mrs. McCullough said. "I wouldn't know. I wouldn't call it particularly following the line."

Mrs. McCullough said she felt it her civic duty to protest the appearance of Draper and Adler at a Greenwich concert.

Personal 'No Parking' Signs Are Threatened

All personal "No Parking" signs on Alexandria city streets may be abolished in the near future, members of the city traffic board said yesterday.

Affected would be physicians, visiting nurses, some clergymen and others who have been granted private parking spaces on downtown streets.

The traffic board is notifying all those who have been granted such "No Parking" havens in front of their offices that the board is contemplating turning over the spaces to the public and installing parking meters at the locations.

The move, part of an attack by city authorities on the parking problem, has been recommended by the City Council's traffic committee.

Major Edgar A. Sims, superintendent of police and a member of the traffic board, said there are 52 of the special private parking spaces in the city.

Under a board estimate that the average parking turnover in the downtown section is three automobiles per hour, the move would release potential space for parking a potential 1200 more cars a day, Major Sims said.

The traffic board said citizens could express their opinions on the proposed action at the board's next meeting on June 15.

Besides Major Sims, the other members of the board are Mayor Franklin P. Backus and City Manager W. Guy Ancell.

Producers, Dealers Back Egg Bill

Local egg retailers, producers and packers yesterday threw united backing behind a proposed law to regulate sale of eggs here.

The egg men met in a roundtable session with Walter W. Burdette, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Food Inspection, at the Municipal Center to consider the proposed legislation.

Burdette said he received unanimous approval from the tradesmen. The new regulations, which soon will be forwarded to the Commissioners for submission to Congress, would require the labeling of eggs by size and quality and permit inspectors to check them.

Presently eggs may be sold "just so long as they are edible," Burdette explained. "We figure one million eggs are consumed daily in the District, and the Health Department feels the proposed law is necessary for the protection of producers, retailers and the consumers," he said.

The legislation will not affect egg prices, Burdette stressed.

Representatives of the egg business agreed with health officials yesterday to omit the only controversial provision of the suggested bill—one which would permit sale of "unclassified" eggs, provided they are labeled. In its place was inserted a clause exempting producer - distributors from the proposed code The purpose of the section was to protect the small farmer who conducts fresh egg routes, Burnette said.

Police Still Stumped in Red-Head Case

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., May 22 (AP).—Police patiently checked out the slimmest clues but acknowledged today they are far as ever from solving the mystery of the strangled redhead.

"She has been positively identified six times," said Sylvester D. Helsley, Morgan County prosecuting attorney. "We still don't know who she is."

Helsley and Sergt. E. L. Rausch of the West Virginia State Police indicated they are convinced of this much: She is a woman who bought a bus ticket from Columbus, Ohio, to Hancock, Md., and got off a bus near Hancock about 12:35 a. m. on May 5.

The unclothed body of the redhead was found May 10. She had been tumbled 42 feet down an embankment across the Potomac River from Hancock.

A Baltimore woman tried to claim the body over the weekend after saying she was positive it is that of Ruth Maugher, Baltimore waitress and barmaid, who disappeared from her rooming house on New Year's Eve in 1941.

The authorities were skeptical.

'Back Truman,' Workers Told In Virginia

Roanoke, Va., May 22 (AP).—Support of the Truman Administration was urged today as the Virginia Federation of Labor opened its three-day fifty-fourth annual convention by seating 381 delegates. Better than 400 are expected before the meeting closes.

Ralph Wright Assistant Secretary of Labor, sounded the keynote at a meeting which has as its theme political and organizational education.

Promising that there would be a minimum of speech-making, President Jack Smith announced, "we are going to try to put a little vigor into our political action."

And Wright outlined what the labor leaders must fight.

"Our reactionaries, who are losing the fight against progressive legislation, are using the scare and slogan technique against further progress," he declared.

"Only by maintaining and advancing the New Deal and Fair Deal policies can we continue to expand American business prosperity and improve the American standard of living," Wright continued.

Delegates went into caucus tonight to prepare slates for Tuesday's nominations. Officers will be elected and installed Wednesday.

Resolutions are expected to be submitted to the floor of the convention tomorrow and Wednesday.

FBI Asked To Probe Ga. Death in 1921

The FBI was asked last night by the Georgia Bureau of Investigation to enter the case of a man who voluntarily confessed Sunday to Washington police that he had killed a man near Thomaston, Ga., 29 years ago.

As the request was made, the man spoke from a bed in the psychiatric ward of Gallinger Hospital to change his story to Washington detectives. He said yesterday that the victim's death was an accident. He declared the man fell overboard into the Flint River during a fishing trip on which "eight or nine of us . . . were all drinking."

The confessor is Harris L. Doke, an itinerant painter, who recently lived at 26 18th st. se. The victim, he said, was Jordan Rowe, Thomaston, Ga. Doke's first story, after he walked into police headquarters at 2 a. m. Sunday, was that he returned from the Navy in 1921, found Rowe "too friendly" with Doke's wife. He hit Rowe over the head with a rock, and when he found Rowe was dead, threw him in the river, Doke said.

Following this information, W. A. Ross, agent of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, was called into the case at Thomaston, Ga., yesterday. He told The Washington Post last night that he and Deputy Sheriff G. T. Gill, of Upson County, have requested the FBI to question Doke here to avoid a trip to Washington by Georgia investigators.

It cost him $50 plus court fees.

2 Men Indicted on Charge Of Second Degree Murder

Two men were indicted yesterday by the grand jury on charges of second-degree murder.

The Rev. William N. Martin, 52, of 615 Princeton pl. nw., "free lance" minister and plastering contractor, was indicted for the fatal shooting of his tenant, Eugene Bellfield, 29, during an argument at the Princeton st. address April 1.

Joseph B. Atchison, jr., 19, of 5207 Nye st., Deanwood, Md., was indicted for the fatal stabbing of A. C. Bradley, 32, of 1514 Trinidad ave. ne., during an argument on the street near Eastern ave. and Lee st. ne. March 24.

Among the 43 indictments returned by the grand jury were eight charging the following with robbery:

Samuel D. Wrightson, jr., 19, of 1214 N st. nw., and James A. Bell, 23, of 708 4th st. se., for the armed holdups of service station employes, Leslie J. Hoffman, at 3103 Rhode Island ave. ne.; Harry G. Nelson, at 1248 Pennsylvania ave. se., and Kenneth D. Hudson, at 2305 Pennsylvania ave. se., in April.

In addition, Wrightson was indicted for the $65 robbery of gas station attendant Donald M. Urbas at 6350 Georgia ave. nw. April 5.

George E. Taylor, 24, of 1109 6th st. nw., was indicted for the $197 robbery of an employe in the Barry Farms Dwellings office, 1230 Summer rd. se. on April 19. A charge of robbery against Everett P. Jones, 1524 6th st. nw., arrested in the same case, was ignored by the grand jury. Taylor also was indicted for the holdup April 3 of a grocery store at 523 Q st. nw., in which $650 was taken.

George McDaniels, 24, of 1536 5th st nw., Andrew C. Ware, 28, of 1333 10th st. nw., Clarence J. Baldwin, 19, of 624 Quebec pl. nw., and Nathaniel Anderson, 27, of 205 C st. nw., were indicted for the $652 robbery of three men in the Montello Avenue Pharmacy, 1609 Montello ave. nw., March 23.

Ware, Anderson and McDaniels, with another man, Russell L. Perry, 23, of 222 H st. nw., were also indicted for the $151 robbery of Henry C. Hogan, at his home at 638 L st. ne. April 8.

Luther L. Brantley, 32, of 522 Kenyon st. nw., was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon and mayhem.

Rossie K. Withrow, 32, and Henry M. Withrow, 32, both of 2209 West Virginia ave. ne., were indicted on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. Both were arrested on warrants April 28 after an undercover man made plays, police said.

Salesman Held Anew in Slaying

A second order that Luther R. Weakley, 49, of 1217 G st. se., be held for grand jury action in the fatal shooting of his former boss, Thomas G. Carnes, was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury here.

The action was taken after an inquest at the District Morgue.

Carness, 43, of 828 N. Edison st., Arlington, was Washington branch manager of Blue Plate Foods, Inc., 316 F st. se. He was shot to death Saturday morning in his office. Weakley later surrendered at the Fifth Precinct Station telling police he had done the shooting.

Weakley had been a route salesman for the company until Friday night, when he was discharged. Yesterday, four other salesmen for the company testified they had seen Weakley enter Carnes' office.

A short time later, they said, they heard a shot, followed by Carnes' call, "I'm shot, call police." Then, they testified, they heard two more shots.

Weakley was arraigned Saturday before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence and ordered held without bond on a murder charge, pending grand jury action. At that time, he testified he had a dispute with Carnes over a $17.44 shortage in his accounts and about a letter of reference. He claimed Carnes threatened him.

Detective Sergt. A. D. Clarke of the Homicide squad, said yesterday he was told by George Witmer, assistant branch manager, that he had discharged Weakley Friday night.

Clarke said Witmer told him one salesman had to be fired, and Weakley was picked because his accounts had been declining for a month. Clarke quoted Witmer as saying the shortage was not discovered until after the discharge, and Weakley made it good immediately.

Witmer and W. R. Prendergast of Atlanta, Ga., eastern division manager of Blue Plate Foods, attended the inquest yesterday but neither testified.

Make It Public

The resignation of Daniel Maher as special assistant corporation counsel points up the fact that the report on the Richitt affair which Mr. Maher wrote is still bottled up by the District Commissioners. That report, as readers may remember, was prepared as the result of charges by Police Capt. Anthony Richitt that he had been transferred to another precinct because he had given information to the House District Subcommittee investigating crime here. In the welter of countercharges that followed, Police Superintendent Barrett claimed that precinct records had been erased and altered.

If this smelly business warranted an investigation, as assuredly it did, then certainly it warrants public release of the findings. Two and a half months have passed since the charges; the Maher investigation reportedly has been in the hands of the Commissioners for six weeks. Meanwhile the integrity of law enforcement has been impugned, and the citizen is left puzzled as to what to believe. The affair cannot be sloughed off without inviting the inference that the Commissioners have perpetrated a whitewash. What is holding up the release, Commissioner Young?

Maritime Scandal

The new and searing blast at the Maritime Commission by the House Executive Expenditures Committee has had immediate impact in the acceptance by Congress of the President's reorganization plan abolishing the commission. The unanimous committee report covering Maritime Commission ship subsidy and sales operations, though temperately worded, is crushing. It chronicles a record of incompetence, procrastination and evasion rarely equaled in a Government agency. Some of the statements are disturbingly reminiscent of the Black report of 1935 which exposed the then current scandals and led to the passage of the Merchant Marine Act.

The Hardy subcommittee conducted lengthy hearings at which commission members testified in detail. These hearings, stimulated by the findings of the Comptroller General, probed into the contention that higher ship subsidies than the law contemplates were justified because virtually every case was "exceptional." It concludes that: (1) Maritime Commission administration has been "deficient"; (2) better information on foreign costs could have been obtained for construction subsidies; (3) aid for reconstruction and reconditioning has been based on "unwarranted assumptions and error"; (4) operating differential subsidies are "inadequately supported"; (5) the record is replete with "inordinate delays" and "administrative lassitude"; (6) there has been reshuffling of personnel of "doubtful qualifications and competence."

In light of the commission majority's efforts on behalf of shipping companies which complain about profit recapture provisions, the figures on one company's benefits from tax advantages under the law are most interesting. Since 1936 that company has paid $570,000 in Federal taxes; without tax benefits the same company would have paid $13,846,000. That record speaks for itself in showing the real nature of the huge subsidies, and it supports the recommendation that the tax advantages and intent of the 1936 act be restudied.

Particularly shocking is the trap Chairman Fleming made for himself when he wrote a letter justifying past subsidy excesses while pretending a short time later that the matter was still being studied. This letter is described by the report as "merely an attempted defense of the commission action which your committee concluded on the basis of earlier hearings to be fraught with error; characterized by administrative incompetence and ineptitude of the worst order; and unsupported by facts of the record." Indeed, the only member not coming in for censure is Commissioner McKeough, who has a consistent record of dissents. Along with the recommendation that the Civil Service Commission examine qualifications of Maritime Commission personnel (who, incidentally, have been under supervision of the Maritime chairman) the report calls upon the chairman and the commission to devote themselves to "remedial endeavor" instead of justifying "past actions found to be faulty."

Congress has done its duty in approving the reorganization plan. It is now up to the President to staff the revamped Maritime Board and Maritime Administration with the "fearless, uncompromising men, unsusceptible to the insidious influence of selfish interests" which the Black report called for 15 years ago. That cannot be done by carrying over to the new setup men who, with the conspicuous exception of Commissioner McKeough, have shown themselves unable to discharge their public responsibilities.

Filipino Reaction

Our editorial of May 9 entitled "Philippine Scandal" created a stir in the Philippine Senate and the Manila press as well as in the United States Congress. Several Manila newspapers carried front-page stories on the editorial and the reactions to it. The Manila Chronicle printed a front-page cartoon showing The Washington Post inscribing "Handwriting on the Wall." In addition, the Chronicle published the editorial in full and urged Philippine officials "to read it carefully and well, savoring every detail and understanding the terrible implications it contains." The strength of The Washington Post's warning against corruption in Manila, the Chronicle said, "lies in the truth of its analysis and assertions."

It is encouraging to note this response—which comes from many private communications from Filipinos as well as from the Philippine press. A vast number of Filipinos are disgusted with the state of affairs that is coming to light at Manila and are using their influence to compel the necessary reforms. These efforts deserve every encouragement. It is especially significant that many Filipinos recognize that the generosity of the United States since the war has stimulated venality and irresponsibility in fiscal policy at Manila. Apparently some officials have gotten the impression that there is no limit to American aid regardless of how egregiously that aid may be misused. But impartial Filipino observers see that the United States must not further abet corruption by pouring out benefits without safeguards as to their proper use.

In our opinion, three steps ought to be taken to help the Philippine Republic shake off its malaise, and though we have outlined them before, we shall repeat them. First, the United States could buy up the arms that were left in the hands of guerillas after the war. Many of these weapons are now being used by the Communist-led Huks, who have terrorized the populace around Manila in recent months. But the surrender of arms in return for reasonable payments would obviously have to be carried out by an American commission, guided by Filipino experts, to make certain that the funds would not be dissipated without accomplishing the purpose of disarming the Huks.

Second, the United States is eager to send an economic mission to the Philippines to help the government work out a program of economic development. A big deficit in the Philippine treasury, lagging tax collections and an alarmingly unfavorable balance of trade attest the need for strong guidance in bringing stability out of the postwar chaos. Secretary Acheson announced two months ago that this country was ready to offer such aid to the Manila authorities, but President Quirino's quibbling over the nature of the mission is understood to have held up the undertaking. It may be that, tactically, the best way to get acceptance of Step No. 2 is to concentrate on Step No. 1.

In the third place, the United States ought to aid the Philippine authorities wherever possible in their efforts to get to the bottom of the scandals that are sapping the strength of the government. The worst of these scandals, the Buenavista-Tambobong deal, reaches into our own country. The checks for 1,500,000 pesos, which are believed to have been used for corrupt purposes, were drawn to Ernest H. Burt, former American general, who is now in this country. He is reported to have written a letter to high Philippine officials disclosing who got the money. The chairman of the investigating committee in Manila said the other day, moreover, that United States Senators Myers and Martin made representations in 1948 to Ambassador Elizalde here with a view to persuading the Philippine government to accept Burt's offer to compromise. If Congress could find a way of bringing to light the facts that are available in this country, the cause of clean government in the Philippines—"the show window of democracy" in the Far East—would be notably aided.

Good And Bad Talk

President Truman hit a realistic note in his letter to Congress submitting the State Department's report on the United Nations. "The year ended with a deepening of the tension which has marked international relations throughout the postwar period," he said. His report is a frank recognition that a shooting war can be avoided only by creating sufficient moral, economic and military strength in the free world—sufficient to indicate to the Soviet Union that cooperation and respect for agreements is to its advantage. This is a welcome relief from both the Pollyanna statements that the President broadcast across the country on his recent trip and the irresponsible talk that is coming from many high officials.

When he spoke face-to-face with the voters the President seemed to think that all was right with the world—that Americans had nothing to think about but the vistas of prosperity, peace and governmental bounty that stretch before them. Walter Lippmann has pointed to the irreconcilable contrast between the President's sweetness and light and the dark picture of increasing tensions that Secretary Acheson has been sketching. There is some comfort in knowing that when the President fixes his attention upon the serious conditions outlined in the State Department's report on the U. N. he comes to grips with realities.

It seems to us, however, that the people are entitled to candor and responsibility in every utterance of the President and other high officials. The other day he said, speaking off the cuff, that if the country had accepted the universal training program that he proposed back in 1945, "there would have been no cold war." That belittling of the great conflict of our time tends to undo his more thoughtful utterances in reports to Congress and makes it appear that the President is willing to distort the public view of this grave struggle merely to claim a bit of credit for personal foresight.

Even less excusable, it seems to us, was Vice President Barkley's indiscreet belligerence at New Orleans. "There seems little prospect of a peace treaty," he is quoted as saying, "so we must maintain armed forces all over the world . . ." The Associated Press also reports him as saying that perhaps we will have to occupy more countries before the cold war is over. That sort of belligerence is the stuff out of which the most effective Moscow propaganda is made. It puts the United States in a false position before the world. We do not see why it is not possible to maintain our policy of safeguarding the free world without lapsing into the lingo either of Pollyanna or of Mars.

Obnoxious Rider

Budget Director Lawton sharply criticized a rider to the omnibus appropriations bill passed by the House prohibiting the use of funds by any Government agency or corporation included in the act to pay for annual leave accumulated by "any officer or employe" during the calendar year 1950. This proposal would force employes either to take annual leave as they earn it this year or lose it. Mr. Lawton told the Senate Appropriations Committee that it is by no means certain whether the prohibition on payment of accumulated leave includes members of the armed forces as well as civilian employes. If the rider is retained, it will require clarification to settle this question. He also pointed out that the Government might be liable to civil suits for leave earned but forfeited because of the restrictive provisions of the rider.

Stricter regulation of leave privileges is unquestionably needed, but it should be taken, as the Budget Director says, only after a thorough study of the leave system and with due regard for the fact that Government employes do not have the benefit of severance pay or unemployment compensation. Payment for accumulated leave often comes in handy to tide dismissed Government workers over periods of enforced idleness while they are looking for new jobs.

A certain amount of flexibility is also required in the regulations governing leave to take care of special cases. The Census Bureau, for example, is now confronted with the tremendous task of analyzing decennial census returns, and has been forced to curtail leaves for the rest of the year, and even to deny them to many of its regular employes. Not only the Census Bureau, but other Government agencies would be seriously handicapped if deprived of all discretionary authority to shorten vacations when emergencies arise and permit unused leave to be carried over to the next year. Hard and fast legislative prohibitions on use of funds to pay for accumulated leave would, therefore, be extremely harmful and we hope that this obnoxious rider will be deleted before the bill is passed.

Broader Hatch Act

Although the net effect of the "local party politics" amendment to the Hatch Act probably will be constructive, the manner in which it emerged from Congress was pretty high-handed. That amendment started out as a praiseworthy move to give the Civil Service Commission discretion in administering penalties for Hatch Act violations. The Senate Rules Committee, however, tacked on a section providing that Federal employes living in nearby Maryland and Virginia must be permitted to participate in local party politics if they are allowed to take part in nonpartisan activities. The broadened measure emerged from Senate-House conference with no public hearing at which opponents of the controversial clause could present their views. That sort of procedure saps confidence in the legislation, whatever its merits.

Actually, we believe the broadened scope of local political participation to be afforded Government employes will be a good thing. There, of course, need be no illusion about the intent of the "party politics" section. It is said to have originated with the Arlington County Democratic Committee, which is worried about the success of the independent movement there. Nevertheless, even if the amendment is looked upon as a means of combating nonpartisan activity in Virginia, it also will serve the salutary purpose of encouraging Federal employes to take part in local government in Maryland, where they are excluded by present regulation because local elections are partisan.

This newspaper believes in nonpartisan local government. There is no real connection between local issues on the one hand and State and national issues on the other. Party machines, of course, often do become involved in local issues, and we can appreciate the difficulty the Civil Service Commission will face in defining the precise limits of permissible activity by Federal workers. Laudable as the nonpartisan movement is, however, we question whether a Federal law ought to be used as a vehicle to extend it—and that would be the effect if Federal workers were allowed to take part only in nonpartisan campaigns. It is only fair to permit Federal employes to engage in local party politics where nonpartisan elections do not exist—with the Civil Service Commission remaining on guard against abuse. Nonpartisan advocates will by no means be estopped from working to spread the movement. Meanwhile, the broadening of the Hatch Act may also serve to clear up some of the misconceptions on the part of Federal workers that they somehow are prohibited by law from taking an active role in their communities.

Lincoln And Jefferson

Perhaps David Rankin Barbee (letter published May 19) is correct in believing that Lincoln avoided showing himself to the people, but Walt Whitman repeatedly saw him riding about Washington in an open carriage and I have in my possession a letter written by Gen. (Secretary of the Interior) Ethan Allen Hitchcock on April 15, 1865, reading in part: "It is useless now to speak of it; but now, since Lee's capitulation, has been the very time to guard against the madness of individuals, the public cause of the South having failed. Mr. Lincoln has constantly been too careless about exposing himself. Many and many a time I have wished to speak to him about it, but it did not appear altogether proper."

Again, Mr. Barbee may be justified in quoting Gen. James Shields to the effect that Lincoln was "incomprehensible," but the word applies to Jefferson quite as definitely. Dumas Malone in the Dictionary of American Biography speaks of him as "this most enigmatical . . . of great Americans." And Thomas E. Watson, in his Life and Times of Jefferson, declares: "His manner to strangers seemed cold and reserved; and he developed a capacity for hatred which would have satisfied Dr. Sam Johnson."

McCarthy And China

In his speech at Atlantic City to the Sons of American Revolution, Senator McCarthy charged that, in effect, what the State Department is doing through Owen Lattimore and Dean Acheson is to push China into the hands of the Reds and that the downfall of Nationalist China is due to the State Department policy.

This to me is just a continuance of many unfounded and unsupported charges which would be thrown out of a court of law without any ceremony. It is very easy to criticize and destroy. It has been said that "the loud shouts and trumpets caused the walls of Jericho to crumble, but no such walls were ever rebuilt in the same manner."

I, along with millions of other Americans, should like to know if Senator McCarthy has any plan or policy which will save Nationalist China and to ask him if he would (1) send more millions of dollars to go down to the bottomless pit of the warlords of Nationalist China; and (2) send thousands of our boys into battle to save China. In all of his blatherings, Senator McCarthy has offered no plan, but destructive criticism.

Subsidies And Trade

When Congress originally adopted the idea of farm subsidies, it did so with the belief that agriculture was a "special" case where the Government had the right and the duty to support farm income. This was done because the effects of an unstable farm price system were too much for the country to withstand. The farmer as a consumer was too important to be allowed to alternately starve and stuff as in the past. At the same time that this was done the party in power embarked on a long overdue revision of the tariff. The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act and the few downward revisions have had a very beneficial effect on world trade and should continue.

But to allow this policy to undermine our subsidy program is uneconomic, to says the least. The present potato debacle is a prime example. The United States cannot afford to support the world potato market. However, this is precisely what we are trying to do. Either we should drop potato supports entirely, thus opening the way to withdrawal of all subsidies, or we should adopt some form of trade restriction on further imports.

Certainly, if such a policy is followed the world cannot call us hypocrites. Even the ITO charter makes provision for such trade agreements, when they are deemed essential to a domestic subsidy program. Paul Hoffman and the State Department are against raising the barriers on farm goods. Economically, however, it is the only answer. Low import rates can have but two effects. We will go bankrupt trying to support world prices or we will be forced to drop our own subsidies. This would drop domestic prices to the point where efficiently farmed American produce would lower the whole world price structure.

Here is a vital case of conflict between internal and foreign policy. Legislation should be not only just but also dependable enough to enable an individual to "plan." This is not present today. A clarification by Congress would not only be in the interest of farmers and the Government but also of world trade.

"Accumulated Leave"

Re your May 17 editorial concerning annual leave of Federal employes, I should like to point out that one of the major reasons why many Government employes accumulated leave is because we have no unemployment compensation and this is the only thing we have to fall back on. Considering the state of present affairs with respect to the welfare of Federal employes, it is my opinion that this matter should be held in abeyance until the Congress passes legislation giving us unemployment protection.

Parade Congestion

The acme of stupidity was displayed by the planner or planners of the massing of units for the parade Saturday and, particularly, in the moronic manner in which traffic was rerouted from assembly areas.

As one who spent more than one hour lingering in bumper-to-bumper traffic in isolated and congested streets in order that bands and troops might gather on key avenues for the Armed Forces Day parade, I herewith offer my most vehement protest.

Why, with acres and acres of grounds and other suitable assembly points, should key avenues in the geographical center of the District of Columbia be blocked for nearly two hours? It was trying and sickening for persons not destined for any particular spot Saturday morning, but it was downright tragic and financially catastrophic for commercial vehicles, particularly taxicabs, which were forced to detour for miles into crowded, confused streets without the slightest chance of obtaining passengers or of discharging those they had picked up earlier.

Hereafter, parades and other worthy activities should be planned with some thought to the citizens who must go to work in the vicinity of the assembly area, and arterial streets should be kept open under all circumstances.

Reformed Communists

It is most refreshing to note that at last one section of the press has waked up to the strangeness of the phenomenon of rewarding the tardy and tarnished alleged loyalty of former Communist spies with such slavish adulation.

We should as well expect the bank that enjoys the services of an embezzling cashier to make him president because he confesses. This utter lack of any moral perspicacity on the part of our Un-American Activities Committee and the public at large, as manipulated by them through commentators in print and on the radio, has long amazed and disgusted me and it is heartening to find that some other thinking people agree with this point of view.

"Philippine Scandal"

Your May 9 editorial on the Philippines in connection with the Buenavista-Tambobong deal strikes us here as a fairly acceptable appraisal of conditions in this country.

Our people are particularly pleased to know that, as your editorial put it, "there has been a good deal of support both within Congress and among the American people for policies of aiding Philippine rehabilitation."

As to whether or not our government officials realize that "this sympathy is likely to be dissipated unless they carry out the rigorous housecleaning that the present situation demands," the matter apparently calls for some explanation.

I think that it would not be far from the truth to say that many Filipino officials realize that the present corruption in the government "tends to compromise the standing of the Philippine republic in the Far East and the cause of democracy everywhere."

Unfortunately, there are also those officials who are brazen enough to believe that corruption has not jeopardized the Philippine government's claim to sympathy of the United States Government, simply because the United States Government's attitude toward matters of this sort has been singularly lacking in both coherence and foresight.

They can point to the erstwhile American policy in China, before Chiang Kai-shek's expulsion from the mainland, where because of her pathological fear of communism the United States supported a reactionary, fascistic and undemocratic regime in order to halt the spread of communism, instead of lending its moral and material support to the establishment of true democracy.

Corrupt Filipino officials are familiar with this phase of the American foreign policy, and are taking advantage of it in the Philippines on the assumption that the United States Government is still too obsessed with the dangers of communism not to align its forces with crooked local officials whose credo is reactionism disguised as a battle-cry against communism.

These corrupt Filipino officials are in power today, and as far as I can see, there are no indications of their immediate removal from power.

But certainly the United States Government can hasten their removal from power by denying these officials the substance of its material aid and comfort of its sympathy, by actively lending its help to the democratic forces that are fighting graft and corruption in the Philippine administration.

Conspiracy Of Optimism

By Marquis Childs

Facing Defense Facts

"IF THE past undertakes to sit in judgment on the present, then the future will be lost."

Those words were spoken by Winston Churchill in June of 1940. It was England's gravest hour. The very existence of the British people was threatened.

Churchill, the supreme realist, was addressing those who wanted to assess the blame for the terrible mistakes of the recent past. The appeasers, the men of Munich, had failed utterly to understand the meaning of the times. But what Britain could not afford at that desperate moment, as Churchill knew so well, was the luxury of recrimination and punishment for past sins.

Anyone who looks candidly at the record of recent months in this country must see how large a part of our energies have gone into the quarrel between past and present. In its most virulent and vicious form, this is McCarthyism.

At the same time, one who examines candidly the trend of events can hardly fail to see that the present is a time of danger at least as great as June of 1940. The timetable is not as advanced. But it is the potentiality of disaster and destruction that weighs so heavily at this hour.

Yet even as we realize this, we must also know that we are doing far too little to avert it. We are doing too little to preserve the peace if it can be preserved. And certainly we are doing too little to win a war if finally it does come.

RETURNING from the Foreign Ministers Conference, Secretary of State Dean Acheson can have a sense of accomplishment. Decisions were taken at that conference that can mean much for the future security of the West. But they will be meaningful only if there is much, much greater action here, first, to convince the peoples of the world that we want peace and, second, that we intend to win the war should the worst come to the worst.

In the press here at home the observance of Armed Forces Day, with its display of military strength and speeches by Defense Department officials, seemed to obscure the significance of the conference in London.

Much of what was said was apparently on the assumption that a shooting war is bound to follow the cold war.

The differences in viewpoint between the Defense and State Departments have been an unhappy obstacle to a realistic approach to the issue of peace or war. One of Acheson's advisers, talking privately, put it this way:

"Over in the Defense Department they are making all their moves on the basis of what will be useful in the coming war. Here in the State Department, we are still working in the belief that we can keep the peace."

THIS division, and the disputes it engenders, hamper the effort to shape a coherent and rational policy. But if the Defense Department is actually making ready for an inevitable war, then here, too, the past seems to get in the way. The overconfident prophecies of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson hardly prepare us for the awful potentialities of a third world conflict.

There is the impression that we are being given only cautious and careful hints of what the future contains and what we must do to meet it. W. Stuart Symington, head of the National Security Resources Board, has come closer than any responsible official. In several recent speeches he has said that the Nation in another war may not have years or months in which to mobilize, but hours.

If that is true, and there is good reason to believe it is, then we are living in a fools' paradise that has a terminal date attached to it. Always in the past we have gone blandly and sometimes blindly on until events caught up with us. Then, under the shock of events, we rallied our forces. As Symington has said, we are not likely again to be allowed that rallying period.

The American people are being told something less than the facts of present day life, and they sense it. Documents are classified secret that should be on the front pages of every newspaper. It was not mere hysteria that caused the residents of South Amboy to run into the streets in the belief an atomic explosion had occurred. That could be an infinitely small rehearsal for things to come.

For reasons political and otherwise, a kind of conspiracy of wishful optimism prevails in Washington. That cheerful conspiracy, holding to the comfortable precedents of the past, may well be the greatest peril to the existence of this Republic.

Half-Citizenship

Senator Long (D., La.) declared his belief in freedom of choice as the great American democratic principle. He said this in debate on FEPC. But there is yet another great American tenet—payment for value received.

Under these two principles, then, I take it that I may choose to pay exactly half of what my white neighbor need pay in income and property taxes because I may live only in restricted areas, because I may be refused adequate employment by accident of color and because my children may be denied free and equal education.

Surely Senator Long would observe the freedom involved in this choice—to support the Government in proportion to the degree of citizenship enjoyed.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Japanese Conundrum

THE REASON why Washington is finding it so difficult to agree about the Japanese peace treaty is that the Chinese revolution and the Soviet achievement of the atomic bomb have changed the position of Japan so profoundly.

Lippmann

The State Department and the Pentagon are both having to reconsider and revise the ideas and the plans they had formed before these two revolutionary developments. Their disagreement, which is causing Secretary Johnson, General Bradley, and presumably Mr. Dulles, to go to Japan, reflects the difficulty of the problem much more than it does a conflict of purposes.

BEFORE the Soviets achieved the atomic bomb the notion of asking for "bases" in Japan proper had not been entertained seriously by anyone. The American advanced bases in the Pacific were to be located on small islands inhabited by primitive people, particularly Okinawa, where the problem of political independence and national pride did not arise. These islands were regarded as easily defensible by the Navy, and with the American monopoly of the atomic bomb they were a formidable deterrent.

But when the Soviets achieved the atomic bomb they achieved the power to knock out a base like Okinawa in one raid. Okinawa is too small to be defended and used in atomic warfare. What had been a strategic asset was suddenly a strategic liability.

THIS has led to the demand for "bases" in Japan. But there has been much misunderstanding about this. The demand for bases in Japan cannot be met—in the era of atomic weapons—by an old-fashioned concession in the form of a lease of a port for a naval base and of some land for airfields. Any specific "base" in Japan would be just as vulnerable as Okinawa. The area would be too small for interception and defense and the installations could be knocked out in one raid.

For these reasons to have "bases" in Japan really means having the right to set up military installations anywhere in Japan. That might permit the organization of some defense and would provide enough "bases" so that no one raid could knock out all the bases.

THE TROUBLE with all this is that it means taking over Japan itself as a "base." Since obviously we cannot propose a peace treaty which makes us the permanent overlords of Japan, there can be no peace treaty if Japan is to be an American base. Japan can be used as a base only by perpetuating the occupation. That is why those who want bases in Japan and are at the same time clear headed are opposed to any peace treaty.

They do not want a peace treaty. For no treaty can possibly give us military rights—in fact the sovereign power—which we have under the occupation. Yet in order to make a country like Japan a military asset in the atomic age it is necessary to have ultimate sovereign control over the whole territory and the whole nation and its government.

THE JAPANESE are beginning to make it increasingly plain to us that they want a peace treaty and an end to the occupation and American military control. There have been some Japanese officials in Washington recently, and their way of putting the matter was to say that up to now the relations between the Japanese and the Americans have been very correct, and that there is no anti-American feeling at all as yet, and what a pity it would be if anti-American feeling should now develop!

Now experience shows that in Japan, where the national discipline is incomparable, remarks like that are more than a hint. They are more than a prediction. They are notice that the real leaders of Japan have decided that the period of docile acceptance of the American occupation is to come to its end. But the occupation can continue only as long as the real leaders of Japan, who remain in the background, are willing to support it, and to direct the Japanese people to collaborate with the occupation. It is now reasonably plain that while they are continuing to collaborate, they expect us in the reasonably near future to bring about negotiations which will lead to a treaty of peace.

HERE we are confronted with the consequences of the other great development—the Chinese revolution. In our present relations with Russia and with China, a general peace treaty for Japan is not possible. Therefore, only a "separate" peace by the Western powers is possible. If we make a separate peace with Japan, then Japan, having recovered her sovereignty, will make a separate peace with the Soviet Union and Red China.

She will have to make peace with them. For her economic life is bound up with the mainland of Asia and, in the atomic age, Japan is almost impossible to defend against aerial attack. Not even we could promise, much less guarantee, Japan a reasonable defense in time of war. Japan alone could certainly not defend herself.

THESE are some of the elements of a problem which is so difficult that it may be insoluble in the atomic age and during a cold war.

Security Commission Plan Is Acclaimed

to go back to the people and to call upon citizenship leadership from the communities of America to join with their Government in leading us out of this modern-day wilderness of fear and confusion.

"The proposal as outlined in the editorial of a Commission on National Security warrants the immediate attention of the Congress. The Washington Post is right when it says the 'unpartisan citizens' committee would elevate current debate."

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee—"I read the editorial with a great deal of interest. The Washington Post put its finger on one very serious situation. Creation of a commission to study the relationship between national security and individual rights would be very helpful. I would limit the investigation to that."

Senator William Benton (D., Conn.), former Assistant Secretary of State—"I do not favor a commission set-up that would destroy the responsibility of the President or the Secretary of State. A commission usually tends to confirm the fears of the weakest member and hence doesn't think in bold, imaginative terms. Thus I tend to oppose an over-all security investigation by such a group.

"But I would wholeheartedly favor a commission set-up if its studies were confined to the McCarthy charges. I should like to see such a group of outstanding citizens set up to assess our internal security and the problem of safeguarding the rights of the individual. Such a group could do these three things:

"1. Find out the best techniques for cleaning out bad security risks. 2. Allay the deep fears of the public. 3. See to it that innocent men and women of high integrity and character are not exposed to reckless charges and protect individual rights."

Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio)—"The widespread interest in the McCarthy charges shows the public is deeply apprehensive about infiltration of Government jobs. There should be nobody on the Government pay roll who is not willing to have his whole story and the character of his services fully revealed to the public. It's a protection to the individual himself.

"If that can be brought about by an independent, bipartisan commission of citizens, without taking from Congress any of its power to investigate and check, I should certainly be for it.

"In fact, in my judgment, the Senate committee in the very beginning should have ferreted out facts and let the facts show whether McCarthy's charges were true or false. Too much emphasis has been placed on efforts to discredit McCarthy.

"If Congress would do its job, there would be no necessity for an outside commission. If Congress does not do its full duty, to the satisfaction of the public, then surely I would support an independent board of citizens to get all the facts."

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.)—"Given time, I think the situation will work itself out. Another committee might have the effect of prolonging the agitation."

Senaor George D. Aiken (R., Vt.)—"I have always thought that these things should be taken seriously, but should be handled impartially and decently. It (The Washington Post proposal) would be fine if it could be done. With the present atmosphere so charged with politics, I am not hopeful much can be done about it until after the elections."

Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.), of the House Foreign Affairs Committee—"I indorse the idea of a bipartisan commission on national security in principle. Only last night I drew up plans for a subcommittee on international trends and national security of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which naturally could work closely with such a commission."

Representative J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.), House majority whip—"I feel very strongly the need for any action that will bring us a better spirit of unity. It may well be that such a commission will help in this respect and if so I am for it."

Representative Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee—"I think there is a great deal of merit in the extremely long editorial and in my opinion it puts the most pressing questions before us in just about as concise and impartial a manner as possible. I think the idea of a commission on national security to look into all the questions raised is a good one. Something on that level must be done to bring the American people, both in and out of Congress, back on an even keel. The times call for unity in this extremely critical period."

Representative Abraham A. Ribicoff (D., Conn.), of the Foreign Affairs Committee—"I think the editorial draws together a lot of thoughts that need to be expressed. I think it takes a common-sense approach to some of our problems and makes us realize we have a lot of thinking to do. It points the way to a real world leadership in the American tradition. I think a Commission on National Security is long overdue."

Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz, (ret.), former Air Force Chief of Staff, said he considered the editorial "awfully good and very timely." He said he favored the suggestion for the appointment of a top-level commission to explore the broad security field.

"We've got to get the international situation out of the field of politics," Spaatz added. "It's perfectly ridiculous for us to indulge in a fight over criticism of the State Department the way things are today."

Seven newspapers in various parts of the United States have reprinted "The Road Back to America," and others have asked permission to reprint it.

North Carolina Fetes Advance In Agriculture

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Nashville, N. C., May 22.—This little community of 1500, hitherto famous only as a tobacco and cotton center and the place where Lord Cornwallis watered his horse on his way to Yorktown, went to town today.

A crowd estimated at 15,000 to 20,000 turned out to honor the town's most prominent citizen, Representative Harold D. Cooley, and witness the world premier of a motion picture, "Waves of Green." The picture, produced by Dearborn Motors of Detroit, manufacturer of Ford tractors, is a story of the work of the land-grant colleges for the advancement of agriculture.

About 100 members of Congress played hookey to take part in what Cooley told the crowd was "the biggest day for agriculture in the history of North Carolina." Half of them arrived on a 12-car special train, along with 50 newsmen and 60 other guests of the Dearborn company.

The train they came on was the first passenger to move over the spur track from Rocky Mount, 10 miles away, since the last trainload of soldiers came home from World War II.

It was such a novelty that at every crossing and farmyard groups gathered to discover that there still are railroads.

The visitors were greeted by the State College band's "If I'd Known You Were Coming." An impressive parade of 80 floats highlighted the day. All depicted the great advances North Carolina has made in agriculture in recent years. Several carried a challenge to the Midwest for the corn-growing championship. Others showed how this country, once devoted almost entirely to cotton and corn, is diversifying in farming, with dairying, cattle raising and hog breeding coming to the fore.

New Farm Program Is Urged by Brannon

Nashville, N. C., May 22 (U.P.).—Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan today said the Nation's farm program should be revised to guarantee farmers better prices and bring food prices "within easy reach of consumers."

The statement was interpreted as a new plea for the controversial "Brannan Plan." Chairman Harold D. Cooley of the House Agriculture Committee said recently the Brannan Plan is "dead" at least for this Congress.

Brannan said the farm program must be "strengthened" because agriculture is one of the most vulnerable links in our economic chain."

Baptists Warned on Witch-Hunts

Boston, May 22 (AP).—The forty-third annual meeting of the Northern Baptist Convention was warned tonight against "destroying freedom . . . in an effort to silence disturbers of the peace."

The warning was given by the Rev. Dr. Theron Chastain of Phoenix, Ariz., keynote speaker at the opening communion service of the meeting.

Some 2500 delegates, representing two million Baptists in 36 Northern States and Puerto Rico, attended the service in Mechanics Building.

"The fear of ghosts is destroying us," declared Dr. Chastain. "The Russians see all kinds of fearful ghosts when they look across at us and we see ghosts behind the Iron Curtain.

"The sad truth is that the church has excelled in finding ghosts instead of Christ. To some of us, everything has been a fearful evil to avoid and destroy.

International Cotton Group Hears of Greater Production

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan yesterday said programs are needed to place cotton at the disposal of millions of persons who need its products.

He said a prewar problem of cotton surpluses amidst shortages of clothing and other cotton products in many parts of the world is reappearing, now that peace is spurring greater production.

Brannan gave these views in welcoming delegates to the ninth plenary meeting of the International Cotton Advisory Committee, called to study the world cotton situation.

The committee is an inter-governmental organization representing 22 countries that account for about 90 percent of world production and 85 percent of world consumption.

Organized before the war, the committee has from time to time looked into the possibility of an international cotton agreement to help stabilize world supplies and prices. Such an agreement would divide the world market among cotton exporting countries and would set up a system of maximum and minimum prices.

Delegates expressed doubt, however, that the present meeting would make much progress in winning support for such an amendment. Instead, the meeting is expected to concentrate on methods of increasing world trade and consumption of cotton.

"At present," Brannan said, "we know there are still many places in the world where people need cotton and a great deal of it. Yet in the face of this need surpluses have again begun to accumulate."

He said the United States had been forced this year to curtail production because of surplus supplies.

Delegates said a shortage of international exchange was keeping many countries from buying cotton they needed.

Bayar Elected Turkish President; Names Premier

Ankara, May 22 (AP).—Celal Bayar, leader of the Democratic Party, was sworn in today as president of the Republic of Turkey.

His inauguration marked the end of the People's Party's 27-year rule begun under Kemal Ataturk in 1923 and continued under President Ismet Inonu.

The vote, by members of the Assembly elected May 14, was 387 for Bayar to 64 for retiring President Inonu.

After taking the oath Bayar told the Assembly he had asked Adnan Mendered to become premier and Fuat Koprulu foreign minister.

Premier Mendered said his cabinet had been virtually completed.

U. S. Sues General Electric To Halve Light Bulb Output

Trenton, N. J., May 22 (U.P.).—Government antitrust lawyers requested a Federal Court order today to require the General Electric Co. to reduce its manufacture of light bulbs by 50 percent.

Whitney N. Selmour, chief GE counsel, declared such an order would destroy his company's lamp business.

Federal Judge Phillip Forman set a hearing three weeks from today for further arguments.

The move by Federal attorneys was part of the antimonopoly action brought at the end of World War II against GE and seven other electrical concerns. Judge Forman previously has ruled that the group dominates the Nation's light-bulb business.

Today's Government action was an attempt to phrase an order sufficient to break up the alleged monopoly. The Government asked the court to make GE cut its lamp manufacture in half, force the company to dedicate to the public all its existing lamp patents, and order it to refrain from holding interest in any other United States concern that makes lamps.

Anglican Church Calls 'Red Dean' Unrepresentative

Wellington, N. Z., May 22 (U.P.).—The Archbishop of Canterbury told Anglican churches abroad in a letter made public today to ignore visits by Dr. Hewlitt Johnson, the "Red Dean" of Canterbury, because he was unrepresentative of the Church of England.

The church's strongest disavowal of the dean so far was in reply to a request for advice on how to treat Johnson as a visitor.

"My advice to Anglican churches overseas is that they should completely ignore visits of the Dean of Canterbury," the Archbishop wrote Jack Allum, Mayor of Auckland.

"It is unfortunately true that the Dean of Canterbury has so conducted himself as to create embarrassment and difficulty wherever he goes.

N. C. Vote Saturday Will Test Fair Deal

By The Associated Press

A North Carolina primary this week may show in more detail how Southern Democratic voters feel about President Truman's Fair Deal program

North Carolinians vote Saturday on a three-man Senate race after a hot campaign that has revolved around the issues of Communism, Fair Employment Practices Commission proposals and the "planned State."

Senator Frank P. Graham, friend of the President who is described by his backers as an outstanding Southern liberal, is seeking the party Senatorial nomination in a race that may show how the wind is blowing nationally in some issues.

Graham is opposed by Willis Smith, Raleigh lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, and former Senator Robert R. Reynolds.

Smith Aims at Graham

Aiming his campaign at Graham, Smith has stressed the communism, FEP and "planned state" issues. He has said Graham let his name be used by left-wing groups that later were marked on subversive lists. He said Graham once favored a compulsory FEPC. He has attacked what he calls the "planned state" of the Truman Administration.

Graham has denied that he ever was a Communist or a sympathizer. He said he is for a voluntary FEPC, but not the compulsory anti-job-discrimination proposal the Administration has been trying unsuccessfully to get before the Senate.

Graham wasn't on hand to vote when the Senate rejected a debate-limiting petition on the FEPC bill last Friday by a 12-vote margin.

Reynolds, a vigorous critic of the Roosevelt foreign policies when he was in the Senate, has called for an end to foreign-aid spending, is plugging for $100-a-month pensions for all over 65 and a halt in red-ink Government spending.

Graham supports most of the President's program, except for compulsory health insurance and a compulsory FEPC.

Backed By Daniels

He is backed by Jonathan Daniels, North Carolina Democratic National Committeeman and former White House aide, who told a Chicago party conference last week that regular Democrats in the South couldn't swallow FEPC.

If none of the three candidates gets a majority in Saturday's primary, the two highest will run it off on June 24 for the remaining four years of a term to which Graham was appointed. Senator Clyde Hoey has no opposition for renomination and thus is assured of the State's other senatorial seat for another six-year term.

Democratic nomination means election in North Carolina.

A defeat for Graham could be expected to encourage some other candidates to use the Communism issue in their campaigns.

His nomination would indicate that being a self-styled liberal Democrat in the South may not be as politically dangerous as was indicated by the nationally observed defeat of Senator Claude Pepper in the May 2 Florida Democratic primary.

As Monopoly Bar

Senate Unit Backs Curb On Mergers

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday approved a bill designed to tighten up Federal anti-monopoly laws.

The bill would forbid corporate mergers in which one company buys the assets of another if the merger would tend to create a monopoly.

The House already has passed the proposal. The Senate committee vote was announced as 7 to 2 in favor of the bill.

Technically the bill amends the Clayton Antitrust Law so as to provide that no corporation can buy the assets of another if the effect "may be substantially to lessen competition, or to tend to create a monopoly."

The law already prohibits mergers in which one company buys a controlling stock interest in another to reduce competition. Federal courts have held that under current laws mergers are legal if one company acquires the total assets—not just the stock—of another company.

The Federal Trade Commission testified that the loophole has made it almost impossible properly to enforce the antitrust statuties in cases involving mergers.

Take it out Beyond the BOULEVARDS

SPRING FEVER? Here's the never-failing cure—a Buick SUPER Convertible with that brilliant new power plant, the Fireballing F-263.

That's where the real fun is.

Where the land stretches free to the beckoning horizon, where the air is clear of city smoke and the highway's fumes, where a man and his family can really enjoy the pleasure a car can give.

"But the roads," you say, "—aren't they pretty rough?"

They don't have to be paved to be pleasant. Not to a Buick owner.

For here you've a car gifted with the special gentleness of soft coil springing all around. A car steady-keeled with a massive frame and rigid torque-tube.

A car that quicksteps silkily over washboards and rutty gravel, gives wavy black-top a fluent buoyancy that dresses each mile in rest and relaxation.

Even your mighty power plant—cradled against vibration and filtering its surge through Dynaflow Drive's* liquid cushioning if you like—even this is part of the picture.

A part of the special feel of riding in a Buick—a feel we do not think is equaled anywhere else on the highway.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

But why just go by that? As close as your Buick dealer there's a SPECIAL, a SUPER or a ROADMASTER that's itching to tell its own story—without any obligation on your part.

'Brigadoon' Glows Happily at Gayety

By Richard L. Coe

THIS FORGOTTEN whistle stop of musical comedy woke from its two-year sleep last night at the Gayety to greet "Brigadoon," a musical about an enchanted village which comes to life one day every hundred years.

And Cheryl Crawford's "Brigadoon" is worth waking for. Played by an excellent company, whose enthusiasm belies that 1947 premiere, it is as pleasant an evening as one could seek.

The dancing is "Brigadoon's" most beguiling spell. The swirling, colorful patterns Agnes de Mille has evolved to Frederick Lowe's skirling score and David Folkes' beautifully subdued costumes form stage pictures of exceptional loveliness. The dances, just as they were in our last musical ("Oklahoma!"), are part of the plot.

Fortunately, those dances are still finely performed. Precision, skill and zest carry them along. There are moving moments in Virginia Richardson's rueful scene in the glen and there are stirring ones in James Jamieson's splendid sword dance and that celebrated chase through the forest. And the supporting dancers, ever alert, are a kaleidoscopic delight to the eye.

Happily, too, the young hero who falls in love with a lassie who'll come back to earth a hundred years later, is in fine hands. Phil Hanna, who had this part in the still-current London company was brought back for the return New York engagement which closed Sunday night and it's good to have him still here. And Eleanor Early, once of the chorus and long the understudy, brings of voice of refreshing clarity to the enchanted lassie.

BRIGADOON, a musical play. Book and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner; music By Frederick Loewe; dances and musical numbers by Agnes de Mille; staged by Robert Lewis; scenery designed by Oliver Smith; costumes designed by David Folkes; vocal arrangements by Mr. Loewe; orchestration by Ted Royal; lighting by Peggy Clark; conductor, Ignace Strattoeff; produced by Cheryl Crawford. At The Gayety.

It's Gurrrrand

On the less attractive side is a thinnish orchestra, from which Ignace Strasfogel manages to cajole more, probably, than is in it. And, in so small a theater as the Gayety, what's the idea of using stage mikes? Mayhap acoustics in some places aren't so hot, but they can't be that poor. What's the musical comedy stage coming to?

Albeit, there is enchantment yet in Alan Jay Lerner's sentimental story, melody in Loewe's tuneful score and crisp wit in Miss de Mille's spirited dances.

A word, too, for Oliver Smith's settings which, miraculously, are fresh, clean and blessed with those muted colors folks so wisely chose instead of the louder reds and greens a Scotland setting might suggest.

Yes, it's gurrrrrand, indeed, to have a musical back in town.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL makes good! . . . That might be the headline for Davis Snow, director of information for the Public Housing Administration, who has just signed a contract with the Theater Guild, which will present Snow's latest three-act drama late in June at its Westport Country Theater. . . . The play, with a New England setting, is "The Long Days," though it's likely to have a new title. . . . Florence Reed is virtually set for the starring role. . . . Georgetown's Snow is a former newsman who, during his Army days Down Under, met and married Peggy Tait of the Australian theatrical family. . . . This evidently put playwriting into his ken, for "The Long Days" is his third work, completed only last tax day, March 15. . . . And the signing of the Guild contract came on the first anniversary of the Cohasset production of his second play, a comedy about Yank officers in Australia, "Officers and Gentlemen." . . . So, congratulations to the Snows, who've had about as speedy a progression from script to stage promise as there is on record.

ALSO REJOICING are Jean and Walter Kerr, whose "Touch and Go" has just opened in London to several extremely favorable notices . . . This is the revue presented a bit over a year ago at Catholic University as "Thank You, Just Looking" and went on to a Broadway season as "Touch and Go" . . . Since London looks set for a big theater season (June is THE month over there), the Kerrs should have quite a nest egg in L-s-d.

BACK FROM NEW YORK is Metro's young, able Jerry Adams, Washington branch manager for Loew's, and his associates Paul Wall, Fred Rippingdale, Sidney Eckman, Pete Prince and Francis Sharkey, who saw their company's latest under guidance of Dore Schary, Metro's production chief . . . The boys are exuding pleasure over "Annie Get Your Gun," "Father of the Bride" and "The Next Voice You Hear," a surprise item.

TONIGHT brings American University's annual Shakespeare-in-the-open . . . For this year, Director Severino Montano has directed "The Merry Wives of Windsor," using the lovely natural settings of the Grotto Theater, off Mass. and Nebraska aves. . . . Seats may be reserved for the run through Friday evening by calling Woodley 6800 during office hours or Woodley 6805 after 7 p. m.

Postlude

Program of German Lieder Is Sung by Frances Lehnerts

By Paul Hume

"The Nineteenth Century in German Song" would serve as a title for last night's Phillips Gallery recital.

Frances Lehnerts did the singing, with David Garvey as her accompanist. Nine composers found places on the program: Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Wolf, Strauss, Wagner, Reger, Mahler, and Marx. Of the 20 songs, only that of Marx was written in this century.

It was unfortunate that from each of these composers, we heard only their best known songs. One can except Brahms' "Och Modre," and the Strauss Befreit from this indictment. And the encores were even more stereotyped. In a field wide as one's tastes, and fertile as the Rhone Valley, other German Lieder could have been found to make the evening more challenging.

Miss Lehnerts possesses two fine attributes for this particular kind of singing. She dispenses a clear, natural, perfect German diction. And she knows the style in an innate way, although she often misses subtler inflections.

At her best in a big, flashing song of Strauss or Marx, she tends to overdo things in quiet gems. Der Nussbaum of Schumann, and the Litany of Schubert should be sung with little or no outer dramatics from the singer. The music is sufficient to convey all that poet and composer intended. This is even more true in Wagner's Dreams. If voice alone cannot interpret all that is in such songs, no amount of extraneous posturing or facial expression will do it.

Lehnerts, who has sung in Washington's most recent performances of the Verdi Requiem and Bach's B Minor Mass, has a rich natural voice. She still breaks it into three separate parts — lower, middle, and upper. Each part seems to have little to do with the other. In so gifted an artist, a smooth, evenly projected tone from bottom to top would make all the difference in the total impact of a program as promising as last night's.

Disciples Of Christ in Convention

The Rev. Glendale H. Burton yesterday called for moral and spiritual motivation of scientific, medical and educational achievements.

Mr. Burton, pastor of Wilson Boulevard Christian Church, Arlington, spoke at the opening session of the Capital Area convention of Disciples of Christ at Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne.

The church, he siad, must send to the schools and colleges boys and girls who are dedicated to spiritual principles.

During convention ending Wednesday the 500 clergy and lay participants will discuss a proposed 10-year plan of expansion and development of Disciples of Christ churches in the area, which includes the District, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia.

55 Start in GOP School of Politics

The largest class to date, 55 students, had enrolled for the fourth session of the school of politics starting yesterday under sponsorship of the Republican National Committee.

The "students," coming from 14 States, will be given training in such basic political techniques as registering voters and getting out the vote.

New Ballet School Formed In District

Marion Venable, founder and director of Ballet Soiree, confirmed yesterday afternoon the incorporation of a new ballet school in Washington.

The new dance company has been incorporated as National Ballet Society, Inc., and will be called the National Ballet. Trustees and administrative direction will be announced later, according to Miss Venable, whose Ballet Soiree will become the nucleus of the new organization.

An earlier announcement was made by Carter Barron, Loew's theater official, who disclosed the new group at the close of Ballet Soiree's performance Sunday night in the Gayety Theater. According to Barron, the new group will be "nonprofit and self-supporting" and will greatly increase opportunities for young dance artists.

Fete to Open Geico's New Home Today

By S. Oliver Goodman

Government Employes Insurance Co. will pass a new milestone today with the official opening of its six-story home office building at 14th and L sts. nw.

More than 1800 business and financial leaders have been invited to a reception between 4:30 and 6:30 p. m. Families of officers and employes will hold their celebration in the evening.

The new quarters, formerly occupied by the Federal Housing Administration, were purchased by Geico last August for $525,000. Under the direction of the architectural firm of A. R. Clas, the building was remodeled and modernized at a cost of $225,000. It contains 48,000 square feet of working space and is completely air conditioned. The building actually was occupied by Geico on March 1.

On the sixth floor are the executive offices, while the fourth and fifth floors are occupied by underwriting, claims and records divisions. Personnel, accounting and comptroller's departments are on the third floor. The life insurance affiliate and cafeteria use the second floor. The printing department, finance affiliate, stock and mail rooms are on the first floor, along with a handsome public lobby.

Geico, organized in Fort Worth, Tex., in 1934, transferred its headquarters to Washington in 1936. At the end of 1936 its net premiums written totaled $103,696 and policyholders totaled 3754.

Latest figures show that in 1949, net premiums written totaled $6,614,968 and policyholders totaled 115,853. Assets are now nearly 10 million dollars.

Leo Goodwin was executive vice president between 1934 and 1948. He was elected president in March, 1948.

Newhouser Trims Nats, 5 to 1, for First Victory

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, MAY 22.—What do you make of the Nats? To seven other American League clubs, they have been making a nuisance of themselves ever since April 18, all because they have been refusing to curl up and play dead, as properly they were supposed to do.

If you happen to be liking the whole idea, then you are holding your breath, exactly as is Bucky Harris. In that respect, Harris is a complete fraud, who isn't letting his ball players in on his own suspicion they may not belong in the first division. To them, he is expressing no surprise that they are tied for third this morning.

POVICH

On paper, it's still a rag, tag and bobtail team that doesn't belong higher than seventh place, but Harris has been squeezing a lot of baseball out of it. He has them thinking he's some kind of a genius, and they have him thinking he underrated 'em in Florida. It's a sort of happy situation.

The Nats are reacting like a team that is tired of having its nose rubbed in it for so many years, and has a new awareness of its own muscle. Now it likes the whole idea of acting tough.

IT WILL BE remembered in certain skeptical quarters, of course, that this is the merry month of May, and that as recently as last May, a Washington team had a nine-game winning streak, only to wind up in the cellar. But this one recommends itself as a different kind of Washington team.

Harris is no rookie manager who will permit a team to fall apart as Joe Kuhel did, when the Nats of 1949 won only 16 of their last 77 games. He has already pulled a couple of major miracles. He has made a raging terror out of mild Sam Mele, pulled an infield switch that got rid of the non-double-play-making eyesore at second base, and extracted some well-pitched ball games out of guys who rated as humpty-dumpties.

The transformation of Mele is one of the highlights of Harris' success. He took that shy, bewildered cast-off from the Red Sox and convinced him he is one of the league's better ball players. Harris didn't halt at merely patting Mele on the back. He practically caved him in with compliments, and Mele began to use all that natural ability he had going for him.

RIGHT NOW, Harris has his pitching squared away so elegantly, he admits he's quite thunderstruck at the results. In Florida, he could count only Ray Scarborough as the one solid guy of his staff and there were some reservations about that, too, because Scarborough was getting his brains beaten out in spring training.

But now look at 'em. Sid Hudson, who was in tears the day he hurt his arm at Orlando and wondered if he'd ever pitch again, has won four. Steve Nagy, Harris' sleeper from the Coast League, knocked off the Yanks in his first two starts. About Chico Marrero and his feats, you know. Even Lloyd Hittle has won his last two appearances. And Harris isn't averse to starting Dick Weik, either.

That's six starting pitchers Harris believes he can go with. Harris has been spotting 'em with care and patience. He wouldn't start Nagy against Detroit, and was rewarded handsomely on his theory that Marrero was the man to stop the Tigers yesterday. He had only brief instructions for Marrero. Through Interpreter Bob Ortiz, he asked little Chico to beware of Vic Wertz and pitch carefully to him. "Hokay," said Chico. He struck out Wertz the first two times he saw him.

THE 16 VICTORIES the Nats have won in their first 28 games are exactly as many as they won in the entire last half of last season. No matter what may befall 'em henceforth, those 16 can't be taken away from 'em, and the remarkable fact is that most of 'em happened while Eddie Robinson was in a hitting slump.

The person who might have suggested that the Nats could get as high as third place by May 21, without Robinson hitting, would have been hauled away to a batty ward. But there they are, and for Harris it's all very pleasant because Robbie has just started to connect again. In fact, the Nats threaten to be a better ball team before they get worse—if they slump.

Harris can look forward with some pleasure, too, to the return of Irv Noren when the club returns to Griffith Stadium, after that appendectomy. He's hankering to get Noren and Mele into the same batting order, and then he thinks he'll like his ball club real well.

8100 See Trot Races Open at Rosecroft

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Maryland's third harness racing season opened last night at Rosecroft Raceway and the feature event resulted in a split decision. The track was an undisputed winner.

A record crowd of 8,100 wagered $262,908 on the eight-race card. This marks a sizable increase over last year's opening handle of $164,501 and neared Rosecroft's top handle of $270,031.

The feature event, a classified pace, was raced in two divisions and Bellevue pulled a surprise in the first by registering a nose victory over Joanis, worth $21.80.

Joanis Gets Even

Joanis avenged the setback in the division, at a mile and a sixteenth, by scoring a 2½-length victory over Major Hal and Dublin. Bellevue, driven by Mark Insko, Bode, Iowa, was fourth in this one.

Despite her nose loss in the fifth race, Joanis, 10-year-old chestnut mare, went off at 3 to 1 and paid $8.

All the novices weren't in the banner crowd. In the third race, a pacing event for 2-year-olds, seven of the eight horses never had gone to the post.

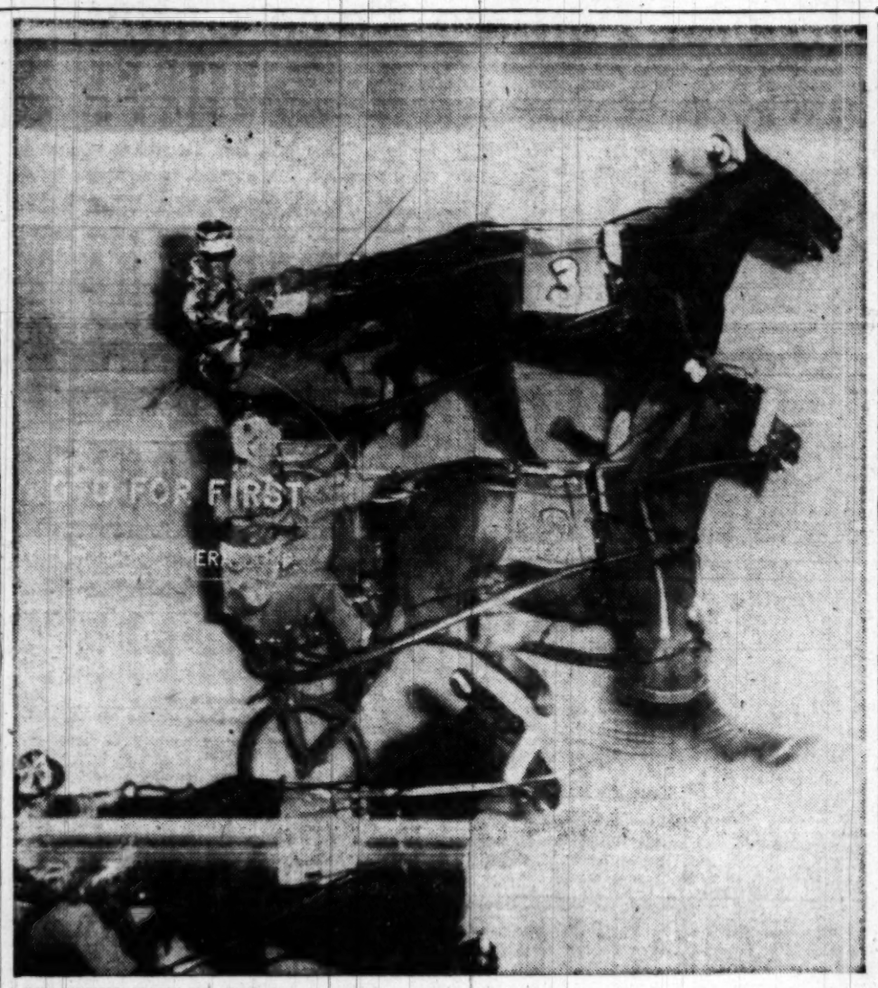
Hedgewood Fingo Wins

This practically established Hedgewood Fingo, two-time previous winner, a mortal cinch. Driven by Tom Lewis, he was. And his victory was worth $4.

Tar Heel and Chuck Volo, well-bred colts from established stables (William N. Reynolds and S. A. Wathen, respectively), trailed Hedgewood Fingo in the order the bettors established. Tar Heel was 3 to 1; Chuck Volo, 6 to 1.

The first daily double of the Maryland harness season paid $78.80, and there were 152 holders eagerly picking up on the 2-3 combination.

George Brenneman's Reaping won the first at $11.20 after holding off favored Carmen Hanover, and Rapid Hanover, $13 shot, won by a neck over Boga McElwyn in the second.



BELLEVUE WINS IT—Bellevue, No. 3, wins a close finish in the first part of the featured fifth event on the opening program of the trotting season at Rosecroft Raceways last night. Mark Insko drove the winner. Joanis (2), driven by Russell Wickersham, was second, and Dublin (1), driven by Tommy Walters, third

Bums Win, 5-1; Increase Lead

Brooklyn, May 22 (AP). — Don Newcombe once again proved that his shoulder trouble is a thing of the past when he pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers to an eight-hit, 5-1 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds tonight.

A four-run fourth inning against Howie Fox settled matters early and increased the Brooks' first place margin over the idle Philadelphia Phils to a full game.

Government Bigwigs Let Down Their Hair, Come to Honor Hogan, Thorpe, Didrikson

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP).—It may be just one man's opinion, but at least it has the stamp of legality. Attorney General J. Howard McGrath rates the comeback of Ben Hogan as the greatest in the history of American sports.

The Attorney General has invited the Mighty Mite from Texas to receive a special citation to that effect at the National Celebrities golf tournament at Washington June 3 and 4 in recognition of Ben's gallant comeback from near-fatal injuries to his former commanding place in the golf world.

Special awards also will be made to Babe Didrikson Zaharias and Jim Thorpe as the greatest female and male athlete, respectively, in the last 50 years as selected by the Associated Press poll.

There may be critics who have other ideas as to the greatest comeback, but none will dispute that Hogan's achievement rates right up there. Ben's recent performance on Sam Snead's own golf course when he outclassed a fine field just about clinches his place among the sports figures who were masters of their fates.

The celebrities tournament, an annual affair to combat juvenile delinquency, is unique in sports. Or in all fields, for that matter.

IT BRINGS together the great names of sport, official Washington, the stage, screen and radio in a two-day event which produces high entertainment, sometimes weird golf, and a general good fellowship among contestants and spectators brought together in the interest of a great cause.

Bus Ham, sports editor of The Washington Post and in general charge of the tournament, reports that the field this year will be bigger and better than ever.

Congressmen, Cabinet members, Supreme Court justices, the top brass of the service forces, great champions of the sports world, such renowned figures in various fields as Arthur Godfrey, Walter Winchell, Milton Berle and Gordon MacRae will donate their time and services to help make the event a success.

Bob Hope will emcee the big show in conjunction with the tournament, with a "Parade of Champions" one of the highlights. The marchers include such performers as Mrs. Zaharias, Thorpe, Gene Sarazen, Willie Hoppe, Chick Evans, George Mikan and Arthur Cook, Olympic rifle champion, among others.

AS ONE who has attended two previous tournaments, we can testify that the two-day affair is a grand show, replete with chuckles and guffaws as the fat and lean, the athletic and the sedentary, let down their hair to join the festive spirit. There even is a sprinkling of mighty fine golf.

When a Senator Taft, dressed as if he had just come in from weeding the garden, quakes over a putt; when a Jack Dempsey and a Gene Tunney play palsy-walsy around the course together; when a Supreme Court justice joins in the hilarity as he whiffs the ball on the first tee, and when an Army general good-naturedly studies the tactical problem of maneuvering his ball out of a gully, you get the idea there can't be much wrong with the country after all.

You can't hit a golf ball very well wearing a stuffed shirt and a high hat, so on these two days official dignity is checked in the locker room in the interest of a fine endeavor.

Cleveland, May 22 (AP).—Still on the rampage, New York's Yankees drove out 10 safeties behind Vic Raschi's five-hit pitching tonight to scalp the Cleveland Indians 7-2 and make a clean sweep of their three-game series. The Yankees exploded for four runs in the last inning.

Scarborough Hurls After Learning of Dad's Death

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Detroit, May 22.—On the saddest day of Ray Scarborough's life, the Tigers wrenched a 5-1 victory from the Nats' right-hander today.

Heavy of heart, but grim-set, Scarborough was pitching through the grief of the news that his father had died earlier in the day at his Mount Gilead (N. C.) home.

Informed of dad's death an hour before he set out for the park, Scarborough refused Manager Bucky Harris' offer to excuse him from today's pitching assignment. "Maybe I can win one for dad," he said. "He was going to listen on the radio today."

Tigers His Jinx Club

Oscar Robert Scarborough, 67, victim of a heart attack, wasn't listening in today as his son Ray's jinx club, the Tigers, compounded the pitcher's grief. It was Scarborough's tenth defeat in 13 clashes with Detroit since he became a major league pitcher.

Hal Newhouser outpitched Scarborough, barely missing a shutout victory in scoring his first triumph of the season. There was no evidence of the sore arm that had kept the Tigers' left-hander out of action for a month as he blanked the Nats for the first eight innings.

Scarborough enplaned after the game for the funeral services in North Carolina tomorrow, but he was a beaten pitcher as early as the second inning when a three-run homer by Dick Kryhoski gave Newhouser enough runs to win with.

Avoid Shutout in Ninth

The saddened Scarborough bravely tried to keep the Nats in the game from that point, allowing only one other run before he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. But against Newhouser, the Nats were never going to get those runs back.

They finally averted a shutout in the ninth when Sam Dente singled to right with two out for the eighth and last hit off the Tigers' southpaw ace. He scored pinchhitter Sherry Robertson who had beaten out an infield single and moved to second on an infield out.

The Nats were a beaten outfit after they muffed big-inning possibilities in the first and second innings whe they had Newhouser on the ropes and couldn't put him away.

Crowd Boos As Cooper Given Draw

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

They called the Charlie Titone-Jimmy Cooper fight a draw last night and the only persons in Griffith Stadium who agreed with the decision were Cooper and his seconds.

When Jimmy Lake announced the findings of the referee and two judges, it set off five minutes of protesting howls from the gathering of 4162 (gross receipts were $7,084.10) which would have done justice to a crowd of 40,000.

In practically everybody's opinion, including newspapermen, and two members of the boxing commission, Titone had won at least seven of the ten rounds.

Titone Dumbfounded

Referee Ray Bowen called it a draw, Judge J. E. Trigg favored Titone by a point while Judge Joe Bunsa cast his ballot for Washington's Cooper, by a one point margin also.

The decision left Titone and his coterie of handlers dumbfounded while Cooper and his entourage danced with joy after receiving the unexpected glad tidings.

On the Washington Post score card, Titone won from here to Oknawa, where he first laced on a glove. The Post's tabulaton gave the classy New York featherweght seven rounds and Cooper only three—the third, seventh and last.

Titone, who weighed 125 pounds, three less than Cooper, was in a bad way at the finish. Cooper, undoubtedly realizing that he had to knock out his rival to win after Titone appeared to have won five

Bob Wolfe Shoots Record 70, Wins Post Schoolboy Medal

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

A 13-year-old record was shattered yesterday in The Washington Post's Schoolboy Golf tournament as Bob Wolfe, Devitt Prep's captain, shot a par 70 at Manor Country Club to break the low 71 set in 1937 by Bobby Brownell.

The 19-year-old golfer finished a full six strokes ahead of the 130 youngster field.

Bob went out in two-over-par 37, but birdied the thirteenth and fourteenth holes coming in to make up the difference.

Bob's cousin, Bill Wolfe, 1948 Schoolboy champ, finalist last year and the overwhelming tourney favorite, shot a disappointing 78 to tie for sixth. He still qualified for the first flight which starts match play today at Indian Spring. Second flight plays Wednesday at Georgetown Prep.

There was a three-way tie for second among John Eisinger of Bethesda; Lee Edwards of Bullis, and Denny Bolster of Gonzaga, all with 76's. Eisinger was medalist last year with a 78. Bolster is Mid-Atlantic PGA junior champion.

Two highly regarded youngsters fell by the wayside in the qualifying round. Kay Fletcher of Roosevelt was forced to turn in a "no card" because of an injured shoulder. Don deLaski, Coolidge High's No. 1 player, couldn't hit his stride and shot an 87.

deLaski was eliminated from

Simmons Suspended For Run-in With Ump

Cleveland, May 22 (AP).—Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians reported tonight that Tribe Coach Al Simmons has been suspended indefinitely by American League President William Harridge.

The action was taken as the result of Simmons' vigorous protest against a decision by Umpire John Stevens in the second game of the Indians' doubleheader with the New York Yankees yesterday. According to Stevens' report, Simmons willfully pushed him and used "excessive profanity."

Basile Rides Sprinter to 2-Length Win

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, May 22.—R. E. Carter's Oriole who won a sprint race here recently after a number of tries was asked to go a distance for the first time this year on the Monday program. The son of Swing and Sway, a half brother of the once powerful Aneroid, made good with a bang—or at least an $8.20 mutuel.

Before a crowd of 10,000, Oriole led E. A. Stone's Rare Mineral into the wire by two lengths. The same margin farther back was Beverly Broun's Magna Charta.

Ridden by Jockey Mike Basile, Oriole stepped the mile and a sixteenth in 1.44 4/5.

McDermott Clicks

Jockey James McDermott who has not fared well since losing his apprentice allowance put up a strong ride to win the seventh race to bring A. S. Hewitt of White Post, Va., his second winner of the day. Desert Raid was the horse and he was up in the final strides to whip, among others, Little Bones, the favorite, and Prunor in a field of seven.

Desert Raid was clocked in 1:48 2-5 for the mile and a sixteenth and returned a $14.40 mutuel.

A disqualification marked the third race but it did not interfere with a $45 victory by Salaza, owned by S. W. Labrot, jr. The number that came down was that of Frank Wright's Witchway, which finished second but in doing so crowded P. A. Sullivan's Double Nip.

Meyerhoffer Set Down

After listening to Mike Basile, who registered the objection and Carty Meyerhoffer who rode Witchway, the stewards reversed the order of the second and third horses. Salaza, ridden strongly by Willie Downs, was clocked in 1:13 3-5 for the six furlongs.

The stewards suspended Jockey Meyerhoffer, a Washington boy, for the remainder of the meeting which closes on Saturday for carrying Double Nip wide entering the stretch.

The daily double payoff of $310.40 came on the seldom sucessful 12-and-12 combination. Mrs. C. D. Bills' Ariel Mark won the first race at $8 under Jimmy Lynch's handling and A. S. Hewitt's Gas annexed the second at $68.40 with Antonio Russo riding.

Mele with a pitched ball, loaded the bases in the first inning, but Ortiz struck out on a curve ball to end the rally.

And in the second, Evans led off with a single, and Combs was safe on Robinson's low throw to first before anybody was out. Scarborough attempted to sacrifice and Newhouser threw out Evans at third on a hotly disputed play. The Nats never again mustered any such excellent possibilities.

Eddie Yost did Scarborough a disservice with one out in the second when he cut over in front of Combs for Groth's grounder that went as a cheap single. Scarborough's only walk, issued then to Aaron Robinson, was followed by Kryhoski's three-run sock into the right-field seats.

Kryhoski was in the hair of Scarborough again in the fourth when he doubled to left center with one out. With two out, Johnny Lipon's third straight hit scored Detroit's fourth run.

Mickey Harris got the pitching job in the seventh, and was scored on after Dente messed up a double play that would have ended the inning. Lipton, who opened it with his fourth straight hit, eventually scored on Evers' single to left.

Crosby Wins Crowd, Loses Match in British Amateur

By Ben Phlegar

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 22 (AP).—Bing Crosby won everything but his match in the British Amateur golf tournament today.

From the moment the crooner ambled onto the sacred acres of St. Andrews' old course he owned the crowd of 4000 which broke all records for the first day of this 65-year-old tournament.

The spectators trudged through mud and prickly gorse in poor weather, leaving the other 90 matches by their lonesome selves.

It took a police escort to get Crosby out of the clubhouse after he had been beaten by James K. Wilson of St. Andrews, 3 and 2.

Bing played some respectable golf. He rattled off two birdies and a par to win the first three holes and didn't fall behind until the eleventh hole. But the terrors of the back nine trapped him and a 2-foot putt that wouldn't fall finally cooked his goose.

At one stage a spectator asked Crosby "Is he (Wilson) better than Bob Hope?"

"Hope?" was the reply. "He would never live in this weather."

The Hollywood star played in a tattered old maroon sweater and waterproof pants. Wilson observed of him:

"A proper gentleman and a grand golfer. I rather think he let me win it."

"It was a privilege to play here and I'm really not disappointed," he said as the match ended. "The real reason I came was to see if I could get a new wig from the labor government.

He planned to leave this seaside village tonight by train for London.

"This is a swell show," Crosby declared, "and I think this is the most wonderful golf course in the world."

While Bing was entrancing the galleries, the potent American challenge for the title strongly asserted itself in first and second round matches.

Among the winners were former Champion Willie Turnesa, Dick Chapman, Bill Goodloe, Bill Campbell and Frank Strafaci.

Frank Stranahan, who won the crown in 1948 and is a cofavorite with Turnesa to unseat Irishman Sam McCready, the present holder, did not play.

McCready, thrown into the same bracket as Stranahan and Turnesa, opened his defense with an easy 3 and 2 triumph over J. J. B. Henderson of St. Andrews.

Turnesa dropped a fellow American, James Knott of New York, 5 and 3, while Chapman piled up a 4 and 3 margin over J. Ellis Knowles, New York veteran.

Ninety-six matches tomorrow will compete the second round and cut the field to 64.

Cooper, Titone Draw

of the first six rounds, was trying to do just that.

He sprayed Titone with lefts and rights to the head in Cooper's corner in the liveliest action of the evening. Except for that brief flurry by Cooper, Titone was in charge practically every other minute of the fight.

In the fifth round, Titone caught Cooper in a neutral corner and belabored him for 30 seconds without an exchange. Cooper was holding on at the bell. In the round before, Titone took hard lefts to the head from Cooper and countered with four straight lefts to the side of Cooper's head to get the best of that exchange.

There were no knockdowns and the action was lively all the way, pretty much the same as in their three previous bouts, which ended with one victory for Cooper (by decision), one for Titone (knockout) and the third a draw.

Gene Smith, the District classy featherweight, won an eight-round decision over Nick Darby, of New York. It was Smith's eleventh straight pro victory.

ers, Government representatives, church workers, parents, social workers, then heard John J. Corson, assistant business manager of The Washington Post, declare:

"Government by pressure groups will certainly produce bankruptcy, never security. A Government that takes a substantial share of each citizen's income to spend as benefits for the people must, in fact, be a government of the people and by the people."

Corson declared the community must get a better understanding of what private agencies are and what they can do.

"They must learn," he said, "that voluntary health and welfare agencies are not in the business of giving charity. That job has been turned over to Government. The private agencies provide services that prevent need, prevent family breakdown, prevent crime and prevent suffering."

At the luncheon Frank R. Jelleff, president of United Community Services, received an engraved scroll and a standing round of applause for his work as a community leader. Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of the Supreme Court justice, also was warmly praised for her leadership in arranging the conference.

Members of the UCS board of directors also elected new members for the 1950-51 general assembly and board of trustees.

Conferees who sat through the group discussions heard little punch-pulling as community leaders and educators discussed the needs to be met.

Mrs. Meyer Cites Needs Of Disturbed Children

In a session on problems of disturbed children, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, told her listeners: "Your work is just beginning."

She sifted nine major objectives discussed as immediate needs in the District to help solve this segment of its child problem:

Teacher training in mental hygiene, smaller classes for small children, a larger staff at the D. C. Mental Hygiene Clinic, guidance counselors at public schools with a maximum of 250 to 300 children per counselor, consultation psychiatric service, 24-hour resident treatment for very disturbed children, expansion of adjustment classes for exceptional children, whether inferior or superior; a maximum load per probation officer of 50 persons, greater coordination of public and private welfare services, a pavilion in a hospital for seriously disturbed children.

Other speakers were Hugh Smith, principal of Jefferson Junior High School, who suggested appointment of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, permanent chairman of the group; Dr. Georges H. Lussier, director, Arthur Brisbane Child Treatment Center, N. J., and Dr. Mabel Ross, director of the Prince Georges County Mental Health Clinic.

Mrs. Meyer said none of the problems the conference considered is "more serious than ours." She said fear of another war is having a "harmful influence on high officials who should be economic security," she said.

"It is an alarming indication of the all-pervasive fear, unrest and insecurity with which we are contending. And the child gets the full impact of the fears of his elders . . . People need emotional security far more than they need economical security," she said.

"The disordered families and their predelinquent children must become somebody's business," Mrs. Meyer said.

Family Life First Essential To Children, Says Doctor

The largest single audience—more than 800—attended a discussion by Dr. Arnold Gesell, Yale University child development authority, on "Growing Up in the Family."

Dr. Gesell explained many of the stages through which youngsters pass, demonstrating some early actions by handling several paper cups.

The authority emphasized family life as the "first essential" for proper development of children. He told of infants who spent their first 8 to 12 weeks in nurseries and showed "diminished activity and a reduction in integrated behavior," compared with the child enjoying normal family attention.

He urged, too, that parents be philosophical about youngsters who enter the "difficult" stages and are slow completing them.

Then from his famous 34 age levels in the developmental cycle, Dr. Gesell listed these:

First 12 weeks—the child is scarcely fully born in the first four weeks. At six weeks, there is "mobility of the head." Then the eyes take the lead—the infant "will acquire visual hunger" and this will lead to use of his hands.

Twenty-eight weeks—Takes hold of things with the hands. He can move a paper cup from hand to hand, mouth it or bang it.

Forty weeks—Sits up without support and manipulates his fingertips, picking up crumbs from his tray.

One year—Develops ability to let go, to release something. Picks up cups and releases one by one—"which puts him in the field of mathematics or counting."

18 months—Beginning to walk and run. Likes conclusions—to close doors, say "all gone."

20 months—Empties dishes, develops pride of possession.

2½ years—Beset by dualisms—yes and no, in the auto—out of the auto.

4 years—Expandable, versatile. Holds the paint brush in an adult manner and "has lively language articulateness."

5 years—Conservative, "consolidating his gains."

6 years—"Has some atomic characteristics . . . makes thrusts in different directions." He has trouble adjusting his personal relations with his family and his teachers.

7 years—"The eraser age—rubbing out and doing better . . . He may even slip the eraser into his pocket and then you've got an ethical problem."

8 years—"A catalog from the mail order house becomes a magic carpet."

9 years—New interest in skills and ideals.

10 years—Reads the headlines and "if he is growing up in an alert family, those headlines will be discussed." Ready for hero worship.

Lack of Vote Called Bar to Medical Progress

On the medical front, Dr. Paul B. Cornely, Freedmen's Hospital medical director, declared the lack of home rule here results in "public lethargy" about improving facilities and service and leads to a failure "by those who hold the purse strings" to recognize such shortcomings.

Dr. Cornely said the medical profession's promises of comprehensive medical care do not apply to Negroes. He said medical schools—outside of Howard—do not admit them, several hospitals which accept Negro patients do not permit Negro doctors to treat them and the D. C. Medical Society does not admit Negro physicians.

Former Health Officer George C. Ruhland said much progress has been made in this direction and counseled "patience" rather than "emotional drives."

Another discussion centered on the merits of group health programs versus the D. C. Medical Society's surgical care plan. Dr. Frank D. Costenbader, president of the latter plan, defended it as giving free choice of physician to patients.

Dr. George Baehr, executive of the Health Insurance Plan of New York, differed, arguing that patients of such internationally-known units as the Mayo Clinic have no free choice, but have the knowledge that the clinic would not have any incompetents on its staff. Similarly the HIP board checks the qualifications of all participant doctors and is better able to do so than the general public looking for a physician.

Teen-Ager Urges 'Get Hep' Recreation Program

At a discussion of youth and leisure time Miss Helen Biren, a Western High School senior, told her elders a recreation program should be developed to "reflect the fads and fashions of young people. Planners must be hep to what's going on."

Milo F. Christiansen, director of the D. C. Recreation Department, declared there are 82 unscheduled clock hours per week for the average youth which need to be filled with constructive activity.

Harold D. Meyer, professor of sociology and director of the North Carolina Recreation Commission, declared the "essential responsibility for a recreation program to serve youth is definitely woven in a managing authority with legal powers and duties . . . The field or recreation is constantly increasing its body of knowledge through research, survey and study, planning and experience. Attempts are being made to approach the field scientifically for the best interest of the individual and the group."

Lack of Understanding Blamed on Segregation

A discussion of community influences on child growth brought a charge from Dr. Gladys T. Peterson, administrative assistant of the D. C. Public Schools, that half the children in the city's segregated schools learn about the other half only through "hearsay and rumors that aren't true at all."

This goes on for 12 years of school and then "we expect them as adults to join ranks in unity," she said.

Another fact which residents must face is that only half the children finish school, Dr. Peterson declared. Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, reported the Washington Federation of Churches social welfare department has been under fire for its stand for slum clearance.

He said influential citizens have called him and suggested less emphasis on this, but other "influential citizens are trying to get something done," in spite of attacks. "If you try to do something, you're a Communist and no telling what else you are," he complained.

The Rev. Mr. Rustin said that discussions of how to raise children started with the assumption that they come from "secure homes," but this is not true. There are many broken by divorce and some by economics forcing development in dwellings without running water or proper toilet facilities, he pointed out.

Jail Can't Help Alcoholic, Correction Group Told

On the District's correction system, Austin MacCormick, executive director of the Osborne Association, New York, warned the "alcoholic is entirely too difficult a problem to be dealt with in the penal machinery. We must await the development of adequate health services."

MacCormick, Dr. Walter C. Reckless, professor of Social Administration for Ohio State University, and G. Howland Shaw, chairman of the section on corrections, all had high praise for improvements in the District penal system under the administration of Donald Clemmer.

"The encouraging improvements that have been made in the District's agencies by the 1946 survey (of the Council of Social Agencies) have reached all parts of the field," MacCormick said.

"Particularly notable," he said, is the progress made by the new Department of Corrections, established in that year, under the leadership of Director Donald Clemmer. But there have been improvements made also in the probation services of the Municipal Court, in the parole services, and in the District's juvenile institutions, which are of paramount importance as combined preventive and correctional agencies."

Psychiatric Methods Aid In Religion, Says Robinson

Religious officials are contributing to the community's mental health, not only through the solace and inspiration of religion, but also through adoption of psychiatric techniques and help, Allyn P. Robinson of the National Conference of Christians and Jews reported.

He said many theological students are receiving clinical training and some ministers have psychiatric consultants for specialized problems.

A reason for creation of racial scapegoats is that "people don't feel good inside and have to look down on someone." Individuals have guilt feelings and church leaders should be able to help clear them, Robinson said.

Another contribution to mental health may be made by development of more psychiatric social workers for the principal purpose of "listening to people tell about their troubles," Miss Margaret Hagan, national director, service in military hospitals, American Red Cross, declared.

Miss Hagan said the "rarest privilege" for any individual is to have his troubles heard out completely. In such telling the solution comes out and the competent adviser can help the patient start toward it, she said.

Immediate Help Urged To Solve Old Age Ills

On old age, Ollie A. Randall, of Community Services Society, New York City, declared: "Old age has never been a popular topic for thought or discussion . . .

"The person who can no longer earn, whether because of illness or lack of job opportunity, is branded as surely as is the person who will not earn, even if he can. The stigma is even greater for the older person . . ."

"There is no community, large or small, which does not need its group of citizens who will make it their personal and special business to study and know what is happening to the old people in their midst. Once that is known, steps are bound to be taken.

"Aging and aged people are ourselves. They are our relatives, our friends . . . This task of improving the lot of older people is a must for social work, but is likewise a must for business and industry, for education, for civic groups, for the church, for the family, and for each of us as individuals. It is immediate; it is urgent."

Pearson Files Suit Over Pegler Column

Detroit, May 22 (AP).—Columnist Drew Pearson demanded $500,000 damages in a libel suit filed in U. S. District Court today against the Detroit Times division of the Hearst Publishing Co.

Pearson claimed he was libeled in a column by Westbrook Pegler of May 23, 1949, in which Pegler said Pearson evaded service in World War I.

P-TA Hears Of Problems In Atom Age

Long Beach, Calif., May 22 (U.P.).—The child of today must be educated for world citizenship because modern air transportation has shrunk time and space, Dr. John Harvey Furbay, director of air world education, told the 53d annual National Congress of Parents and Teachers convention.

"We are the first generation to bring up children in a 36-hour world," the explorer, educator and aviation authority said.

Executive Secretary Willard E. Givens of the National Education Association called for schools that would "produce political maturity, safeguard our democracy and help to build world understanding."

Givens, of Washington, said schools would be instrumental in teaching how to unite efforts of the world's people for peace.

Mrs. John E. Hayes, Twin Falls, Ida., national president of the congress, warned that today's school children are the first generation "who must learn to control and utilize atomic energy."

imports cost 25,000 miners and 25,000 transport workers their jobs and said these figures could be doubled in 1950 if the present trend continues.

They testified at the opening of the subcommittee's hearing on a resolution by Senator Neely (D., W. Va.) to investigate the causes of "increasing unemployment" in the coal, railroad, oil, zinc, lead and silver industries.

Kennedy said that if the present flow of imported oil increases, "as the prospect seems to indicate, we shall witness a complete disrupting and revamping of our American fuel pattern."

Loss of Textile Jobs Laid to Devaluation

New York, May 22 (AP).—American cotton textile men say their export trade has dropped more than 500 million dollars as a result of devaluation of foreign currencies and increased low-cost foreign competition.

This sum, they add, is equivalent to 52,000 American textile jobs and millions of wage dollars.

They compiled the figure in a battle against any further reduction of tariffs, claiming levies already have been slashed at least a third since 1935 and some items have been hit by 75 percent cuts.

The American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, Inc., the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, and the Textile Export Association of the United States joined in preparing the brief for coming tariff hearings.

They have filed a survey of their views with the Committee for Reciprocity Information in Washington. Their testimony will be presented at committee hearings for consideration in tariff negotiations in England in September.

As the textile men prepared their brief, United States Department of Commerce figures showed that exports of cotton cloth from the United States in the first quarter were 120,740,000 square yards, a decline of 57.5 percent from the first quarter of 1949.

Maritime Commission Now Functions Under Commerce Department

MARITIME: This is the last day for the Maritime Commission as it's now constituted. At midnight tonight, the commission will be transferred to the Commerce Department and its five-man commission cut down to a three-man board. Chairman Philip Fleming will be named either the new Maritime administrator or Commerce Under-secretary in charge of transportation.

REORGANIZATION: Several new reorganization plans are being drafted for the President to recommend to Congress. They would set up assistant secretaries for administration in Agriculture, Treasury, and other departments.

CEILING LAW: Congress again has been asked to repeal the law that requires the Budget Bureau to fix personnel ceilings each quarter for most Federal agencies. Budget Director Frederick Lawton told the Senate Appropriations Committee, that the new anti-deficiency rider in the House-approved budget bill would make the ceiling law unnecessary.

NOTES: Leonard C. Hall has resigned as information chief of the Military Air Transport Service to operate a weekly newspaper in Michigan . . . At General Services, Madeleine O'Brien has been appointed administrative officer in the General Counsel's office . . . At Federal Power, Mon C. Wallgren is slated to be elected its chairman . . . Edwy B. Reid is retiring from Farm Credit as director of information. He has spent more than 40 years in Government information work . . . Leo C. George, the effective president of the AFL's National Federation of Post Office Clerks, has been appointed as a labor adviser by President Truman to the International Labor Conference to be held next month in Geneva.

BOND BILL: Representative Karsten (D., Mo.) is the author of a compromise bond bill. He would have the Government purchase a blanket bond at a reduced rate to cover an estimated 600,000 Federal workers who are now required to carry surety bonds at their own expense. The bill is reported to have the informal o.k. of Karsten's Expenditures Subcommittee that is studying the bond problem.

UNDERCOVER PRESSURE: Several Federal officials worked undercover with members of Congress to bring about the defeat of the President's reorganization plans covering their agencies. They should be reminded—the President has a long memory.

SENATE REACTION: The reaction of Senators to the two major job-cutting riders voted by the House is varied. Agency officials who have testified before Senate Appropriations subcommittees on the subject report that individual members are usually astonished at the deep cuts in both personnel and services that would have to be made under the riders. On the other hand, they seem convinced that the committee will insist on some sort of an overall budget cut.

Aid of GOP Sought for Rule Petition

Citizens Groups Appeal for Help On Signatures

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington groups appealed yesterday to House Republicans for help in completing the District home rule discharge petition.

Some 38 signatures now are lacking of the 218 needed on the petition to bring the Senate-approved Washington home rule bill out of the House District Committee for vote.

In a direct move to step up the flow of signatures, representatives of Washington citizen groups sponsoring the home rule bill met with a group of House Republicans at lunch in the Capitol.

Angell Backs Bill

Representative Homer D. Angell (R., Ore.) reported he had signed the petition, and suggested that the best approach to obtaining more signatures might be through the groups "back home" in the members' districts.

Representative William B. Widnall (R., N. J.) said his first official action upon becoming a House member this year was to sign the home rule discharge petition.

Other members who attended the lunch included Representatives William Lemke (R., N. D.), Paul Cunningham (R., Iowa), John Sanborn (R., Ida.), and Chauncey W. Reed (R., Ill.).

Bishop Dun Urges Support

Harry N. Stull, past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations and civic affairs columnist for The Washington Post, opened the home rule discussion by reading the following telegram from the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington:

"I want to express my deep interest in and support of local suffrage for the District.

"I hope that the Republican Party will throw their full support behind the petition and bring this important legislation to a vote in the House during this session."

Herbert Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Woolsey W. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, both urged support for the bill and the discharge petition.

Lloyd N. Cutler, of the Washington Home Rule Committee, reported that a majority (134 of 266) House Democrats had signed the petition, although only around 30 percent of the House Republicans had signed. He said this was "strange" in the light of bipartisan backing for home rule, and its indorsement in the platforms of both major parties in 1948.

Gilbert Hahn, president of the District Young Republicans, took issue with Cutler, declaring that the "strange" thing was that with the Administration behind the bill, the measure still had not reached the House floor. He said later he favors home rule, and agrees that it is a bipartisan measure.

Carl Shipley, legislative counsel of the national Young Republicans, said his group had done what it could to win signatures for the discharge petition in the face of "certain opposition by senior Republicans" here.

House Vote Slated Today On District Budget Bill

$112 Million Fund Measure Expected To Pass With Cuts Urged by Committee

House action is slated for today on the $112,840,340 District appropriation bill for the next fiscal year.

Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.), in charge of the District bill, said he had been assured by House leaders the measure would come up for action this afternoon.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (A. L. P., N. Y.) said he is considering making a new attempt to attach to the District bill an anti-discrimination amendment.

Previous attempts have failed.

Bates Praises Bill

Representative Bates said he felt the bill, some six million dollars below the Commissioners' proposed budget, was a good measure. Indications were it would clear the House in the form prepared by the District Appropriations Subcommittee headed by Bates.

City officials, however, are preparing to ask the Senate to restore some of the cuts recommended by the House Appropriations Committee.

One of the cuts came in for discussion yesterday in the meeting of the Municipal Court judges. Bates' group had recommended a $28,400 cut in the Municipal Court budget, and this action was approved by the House Appropriations Committee in the bill presented to the House.

Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court said the judges had agreed the funds cut "will have a serious effect on operations." He said a letter would be sent to the Commissioners today or Wednesday urging them to seek elimination of the cut in the court's funds.

Would Eliminate Secretaries

Officials said the reduction in court funds would eliminate secretaries for the three new judges, two of whom have been appointed and have temporary secretaries. The funds cut would also eliminate three additional clerks asked for the civil division to handle a case load that has increased 50 percent in the past four years. Officials said the committee action would also mean no funds for furnishing two of the courtrooms that are now using folding steel chairs borrowed from the Armory.

The House yesterday approved and sent to the Senate the deficiency appropriation bill, which contains $6,638,400 in funds to cover pay increases for District employes during the current year, and $352,482.94 in other District deficiency items.

At the same time, a poll of the House District Committee showed majority support of the members for the bill to authorize 23 million dollars in Federal loans for expanding the District water system during the next decade. The poll, conducted by the committee staff, is a preliminary to forwarding the measure to the House.

Milk Group, Dairies Plan Court Appeal

The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, its secretary-treasurer and two dairies, found guilty last week of fixing milk prices in restraint of trade, are expected to file notices of appeal in District Court today.

The action was decided yesterday at a special meeting of the association's board of directors, it was announced by William E. Leahy attorney for the association.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff fined the association $500, and its secretary-treasurer, B. B Derrick, $100, but the latter's sentence was suspended. Lucerne and Richfield dairies were fined $100 each.

Five other dairies serving the local market were acquitted by Judge Holtzoff.

The group was indicted in March, 1948, on charges of conspiring to eliminate and suppress competition in the purchase and sale of milk. The indictment was thrown out by District Court and later reinstated by the United States Court of Appeals.

Bronzy, the Turtle, Decides Warm Weather's Here to Stay

Bronzy made her semiannual weather forecast yesterday. She said, in effect, that warm, if not summer weather is about to arrive.

Bronzy is a 39-year-old lady wood turtle, one of the pets of Mrs. Daniel W Knowlton, 1829 Phelps pl. nw. Mrs. Knowlton, who is an expert and has written a book on turtles, said Bronzy emerged from her warm, indoor pool and "asked outside," a sure sign of warm weather.

Comment of a Government forecaster was: "Hmpfff, she's a day late. Warm weather's already here. It came Sunday."

The high yesterday was 75, at 3:50 p. m., and the low, 53, at 6:50 a. m. Official forecast was for about the same temperatures today, but more cloudiness.

Judge to Order Guilty Verdict On Bottle Club

Evidence Favoring Organization Too Flimsy, He Says

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The United Nations Social Club, Inc., has never lived up to its charter as a social, benevolent, literary or musical society, Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut declared yesterday.

The District Court jurist said the evidence in the club's favor is so flimsy that today he is going to direct the jury to bring a verdict that the club has misused its charter.

The United States attorney's office brought this action among numerous others to drive the city's after-hours clubs out of business. The Government contends the clubs are nuisances and are used as a guise under which liquor laws are violated.

Officers Defend Club

Club officers defended their case with the claim that the more than 100 members use the organization to discuss questions of general interest, to express their opinions and to relax. They denied they ever violated the law at the club, located at 1132 18th st. nw., but acknowledged that members brought liquor there and drank it.

Judge Schweinhaut, at the conclusion of the evidence, said he failed to see how any charter provisions had been complied with, except in a "very incidental and infinitesimal" fashion. He said that the club was "possibly harmless" but was at any rate not operating legally.

He pointed out that in the charter, even the word "literary" was misspelled and that the only evidence of learned activity was a "bookcase." He said that so far as friendship at the club went, there was no doubt a "lot of fun" there. The only musical activities, he said were occasional when someone came in to "play a guitar."

Nobody Paid, Police Say

"Can't they get a charter to do what they've been doing—leaving out the hooch?" asked the judge.

After the Government charged that the after-hours club method was a violation of liquor laws, Judge Schweinhaut observed:

"The police testified that they visited the club on 50 or 60 occasions and the odd thing is they never saw anybody pay for anything. The obvious inference is that they paid afterward. I'm not very excited about it at all."

Assistant United States Attorney Ross O'Donoghue and Bruce G. Sundlun said the charter was used to "foil the police." Also, they declared that drinking at the club was tolerated at "3 or 4 in the morning when things got hot, if they got hot at all."

The defense attorney said that the organization was a "poor man's club and that is all."

Judge Schweinhaut said he would consider whether or not he will order the charter forfeited at this time or whether the club will be given another chance to see whether it can operate without violating the charter.

Alexandria Baby Badly Bitten By Neighbor's Dog

The baby is Shirley Mae Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Henry of Route 2, Alexandria, Va.

Her parents told police the baby toddled to the dog, which was tied, and was bitten at the back of her neck. At Arlington Hospital it was said Shirley Mae's condition was fair although she lost a considerable amount of blood.

Clown Sues Over Use Of His Picture in Ad

Moses Herzog, a professional clown living at 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., filed suit for $50,000 damages in District Court yesterday on the claim that his picture in circus costume was used in newspaper advertising without his permission.

He named as defendants the Capital Transit Co. and the Glen Echo Amusement Park management. He said the advertisements appeared April 7 in all daily newspapers here.

First Day of Postal Cut Passes With Few Complaints

Except for "20 or 25 complaints from businessmen," the city's first full day of single mail delivery was most satisfactory, Assistant Postmaster W. Gordon Bell said yesterday.

Bell said most of the complaints were about failure to get an afternoon delivery of mail, the result of an order by Postmaster General Donaldson designed to save $400,000 a year in Washington alone.

"All of the mail received in the postoffices before about 6 a. m. was delivered, and there were no jams at windows in city postoffices," Bell reported.

Letter carriers won't feel the heavier loads caused by the cutback until today, he pointed out. The mail that would have been delivered yesterday afternoon under the two-a-day schedule won't be dumped into their bags until this morning. Their rounds begin at 8:30 a. m., one hour earlier than usual.

Bell estimated that 85 to 90 percent of daily postal matter is included in the morning delivery, anyhow.

He said that the Postmaster General's order may eventually mean the loss of 81 temporary clerks in the department here and the transfer of 125 carriers to clerical duties.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, the lawmakers who curtailed postoffice expenditures and brought about Donaldson's economy drive were having their normal four deliveries a day.

Each house in Congress operates its own postoffice out of operating expenses in the appropriations bill. Officials said there had been a slight reduction in the number of bulk mail deliveries by truck under contract with the main postoffice.

21 Arrested In Six Raids On Weekend

Taking time out from his regular uniformed duty, Police Pvt. B. F. Bean staged a "sweep-up" over the weekend of alleged drinking spots and one reputed gambling place in the First Precinct.

Twenty-one were arrested in the six raids from Friday through Sunday.

Six persons were arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday and released on bond for jury trials on liquor charges, scheduled for June 12. Eleven others arrested in the raids were charged with disorderly conduct and elected to forfeit $5 collateral each.

And four others were released earlier on $1500 bond each on lottery and numbers slips charges.

Bean, working with four undercover men, obtained evidence and search warrants and made all but the Friday gambling raid. A large squad of other officers made that one.

The Sunday raids:

At 220 Indiana ave. nw.; Anna F. Toland, 27, arrested on four liquor law violation charges; bond set at $1000.

At 414 1st st. nw., Arlene Cherry, 24, and James P. Simpson, 59, arrested on liquor charges; bond set at $1500 each.

At 210 F st. nw., Edward L. Christman, 39, arrested on seven liquor charges; bond set at $1000.

At 503 New Jersey ave. nw., William H. (Big Dan) Williams, 28, alleged proprietor, and Johnny Robinson, 23, of 133 F st. nw., alleged bartender, arrested on liquor charges. Bond set at $800 on Robinson and $1500 on Williams. Three charged with disorderly conduct.

On all the Sunday raids, Pvt. Bean said, quantities of whisky, wine, or beer, or all three, were confiscated, including some moonshine whisky.

The gambling raid on Friday was at 39 Massachusetts ave. nw. Five women and nine men were taken to headquarters, but only four were charged. The others were released. Those charged were Helen Reed, 50, of 41 Massachusetts ave. nw.; Robert C. Thorpe, 45, of 609 nw.; Wilhelmina 6th st. ne., and of 15 Quincy pl. Porter, 20, of 320 New Jersey ave. nw.; Annis Wyche, 41,

Wife of Senator Taft Improving in Hospital

The condition of Mrs. Robert A. Taft, ill in a hospital here, "continues to improve," aides of Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said yesterday.

It was said Mrs. Taft requires further observation and treatment for high blood pressure, and will be unable to attend a reception the Senator plans Wednesday evening for Ohio's Republican members of Congress.

Accountants Group To Meet Today at 2

The board of governors of the District of Columbia Chapter, American Institute of Accountants, will meet at 2 p. m. today at the Indian Spring Country Club, Four Corners, Md.

Three new board members will be elected, and a date set for the annual election of officers, at the meeting.

Doubled Fee Asked for D. C. Dealer Tags

The District Commissioners yesterday asked Congress to double the present fees for automobile dealers' license tags.

The annual rate for dealers' tags now is $25 for the first three sets and $5 for each additional set. The bill would make it $50 for the first three, and $10 for each additional set. In a letter, the Commissioners explained that the present scale of fees is so low "that it encourages some dealers to apply for many more sets of tags than are necessary to carry on their business, with the resulting abuse of such tags by employes and other persons."

The Commissioners said that during the last fiscal year, 3977 pairs of dealers' tags were issued.

Another section of the bill would provide for revocation and suspension of dealers' tags. The Commissioners said present law provides for issuing the tags but not for suspending or revoking them. Their letter said there had been instances where dealers have lost their franchise by action of auto manufacturers, or have violated the local act or regulations, and the only remedy is to take the case to court on charges of using improper tags. The Commissioners said there should be administrative as well as judicial control over the use of the tags.

Along with the increase in the rate for tags, the bill would provide for a midyear reduction to half-price in the fees, and for the issuance of temporary tags at $1 for 10 days. The bill would also provide for the use of dealers' tags on trailers.

County to Get New Buildings For Recreation

Extensive Construction Program Planned For Montgomery

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday announced an extensive recreational construction program for the next six months, including three new community recreation buildings in Montgomery County costing $60,000.

Blair Lee 3d, vice chairman and park commissioner of the commission, said he considered National Park and Recreation Week—May 21 to May 30—an "appropriate time" to make the announcement.

The three new buildings, in addition to 11 now in operation, will be at Wood Acres Recreation Center, Lynnbrook (East Bethesda) Playground and Capitol View-East Kensington Recreation Center.

Modeled along the lines of the Rock Creek Community Building at Meadowbrook, they will include assembly rooms for meetings and parties, kitchens, toilet facilities, fireplaces and storage space.

Another feature of the current program will be the dedication, at 2 p. m. Saturday, of Pumphrey House, part of the recently acquired 20-acre Wheaton Recreation Center. &

The program calls for construction of two rain shelters at Nolte Playground, Silver Spring, and East Chevy Chase Playground on Shepherd st.

Lee said the Commission will spend about $20,000 this year on paving additional parking spaces and access drives in various parks and playgrounds.

Commission Accepts Maher Resignation

The District Commissioners yesterday accepted "with utmost regret" the resignation of Daniel B. Maher as special assistant corporation counsel.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, made public a letter to Maher praising him for "fearless and honest endeavors."

Maher last week submitted his resignation effective June 15. It was reported that Maher resigned because he was told by Commissioner Young to tone down his report on the dispute between Police Chief Robert J. Barrett and Police Captain Anthony Richitt. Both Young and Maher denied the allegations.

In the letter Young said that Maher had tried to resign several times since last year but that on each occasion the Commissioners had been able to persuade him to remain.

"In this present instance," Young wrote, "although I have asked you to change your mind about leaving, I know that I would be standing in your way in the fulfillment of your desire to devote full time to your private practice of law."

Young said that during the time Maher had served the Commissioners they had "thrown some tough assignments in your direction."

"But you have met each and every one as met with a and for the Corporation District of Columbia Government, which you have served so ably."

Boy, 18, Admits He Stole 30 Autos and Abandoned Them

An 18-year-old boy who, police said, confessed 30 auto thefts in the Northeast section since January, was ordered held for the grand jury yesterday by U. S. Commissioner C. S. Lawrence.

The boy gave his name as Leroy Jackson of 811 13th st. ne., a door-to-door salesman. Commissioner Lawrence set $1000 bond on a charge of unauthorized use of an auto.

He was picked up near his home about 3 a. m. yesterday by a Ninth Precinct scout car crew. Those policemen obtained no information from him, but sent him to a police lineup.

Later, under questioning by Detective Sergts. Charles I. Smith and J. G. Williams of the auto squad, police said, he confessed the thefts. He said he used the cars only for joyriding and abandoned them either the same or the next day. The detectives said he led them to the 1000 block of 51st st. ne., where they recovered an auto he said he had stolen Friday, used and abandoned.

D. C. Traffic Accidents Up 404 Over Last Year

Three Fewer Deaths Listed by April 30; '49 Crash Costs Total $4,236,500

Washington had 404 more traffic accidents in 1950 up to April 30 than it had during the same period last year, the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board was told last night.

There were 95 more injuries, 3 fewer deaths, and 10,507 more traffic arrests this year than last, according to a report submitted by Inspector William J. Cunningham, head of the Traffic Division.

Generally, Cunningham said, when enforcement increases, accidents go down.

Traffic Flow Increases

He attributed the apparent paradox to the fact that the traffic flow in Washington has shot up 10.6 percent over last year. The report lists 3938 accidents in the first four months of 1949, and 4342 accidents in the same period this year.

In his report Traffic Director George E. Keneipp culled the following facts from Washington's 1949 traffic experiences:

Last year's accidents cost Washington $4,236,500, on the basis of $11,500 for each fatality, $450 for each injury and $125 for each accident involving property damage.

One in every 14 accident drivers was a female. A "drinking driver" figured in every twenty-third accident. Five of the 51 pedestrians killed were under the influence of alcohol. Four out of five pedestrians killed were crossing or walking carelessly.

35 Accidents Daily

There was an average of 35 accidents daily and Saturday was the worst day in the week for accidents. The most dangerous hour of the day was between 5 and 6 p. m. One out every four drivers in accidents was not a resident of the District.

Half the autos inspected for the first time were rejected for failure to meet legal safety requirements.

Opening of the new Highway Bridge has brought a heavy tide of traffic to the 14th st. crossing, Keneipp's report showed.

A check in April (before the new bridge was opened) showed 65,107 crossings, while a check last week showed 87,000 crossings over the two bridges. Keneipp attributed this to curiosity seekers, experimenters and traffic which used to stay away because of heavy congestion.

3 Injured When Truck And Automobile Crash

Three persons were injured last night in the collision of a panel truck and an auto at 3d and N sts. nw.

They were William Brockman, 13, of 1326 6th st. nw., and his brother, Elmer, 12, of the same address, who were passengers in a car driven by Samuel D. Anderson, 65, a Government Printing Office employe, of 1234 6th st. nw.

Police said the Anderson car was in collision with a truck driven by Willie L. Joyner, 21, of 919 6th st. ne. Anderson was thrown out of his car. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for a knee injury. The two boys were admitted to Freedmen's for possible head injuries.

Joyner was charged with colliding, and $25 collateral was required.

In another crash, almost at the same time, a car driven by Miss Bernadette K. Gryska, 21, 501 1st st. ne., a student nurse at Providence Hospital, was in collision with one driven by Thomas Murray, 28, of 1617 5th st. nw. The accident occurred at 3d and C sts. se.

Meade Gets First Wherry Act Homes

Meade Heights, first housing development to be completed on a military reservation under provisions of the Wherry Act, was formally opened for occupancy at Fort Meade yesterday with appropriate ceremonies.

Col. Jesse L. Gibney, headquarters commandant, flanked by Construction Superintendent George Hart, cut a red ribbon stretched across the doorway of one unit to permit the first tenants to enter.

Standing by, eager to move in, were Lieut. Col. Joseph O. Sawyer and his wife.

The Sawyers, previously living in Glen Burnie, were notified recently that their lease would not be renewed on its expiration last Wednesday. Only by proving that he was to move into the new development was Colonel Sawyer able to linger the past five days in his former home.

Meade Heights is one of several such developments being constructed on military reservations by private capital under a long-term lease. It is being built by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph De Chiaro and Sol Silverman, of Baltimore.

When completed, it will have a total of 348 dwelling units, according to post headquarters. At present, 33 units have been assigned to tenants.

Under terms of the Act of Congress authorizing such construction, military authorities have 30 days in which to fill units after completion. After that time, the owners may lease to outside individuals.

Rentals at Meade Heights range from $61.25 a month to $105.

Colonel Sawyer, the first occupant, is a reserve officer on duty as registrar and staff member of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Meade. He has a total of 22 years of active duty, six as an enlisted man.

Frame Porches Defended at Code Hearing

Owners of property in congested areas testified before the District Commissioners yesterday that it would place undue hardship on them if they were forced to tear down enclosed frame porches.

One of the speakers, A. J. Haskell, 44 Girard st. ne., declared that the Commissioners would have to take him into court before he would change his porch closed in by storm windows.

The hearing at which six speakers appeared was called by the Commissioners for proposed strengthening of building code regulations.

The proposal would prohibit enclosure of frame porches in B, C and D zoned areas where houses must now be of masonry construction. It also would clarify present regulations on how porches may be built.

The Commissioners took the question under advisement after hearing the witnesses.

J. J. Ilgenfritz, deputy director of inspection, said that under existing regulations, open wooden porches may be built on houses in the B, C and D areas. If the frame porches were erected before March, 1932, they may be enclosed. Porches built after that date must be of masonry to be enclosed.

During the war many of the frame porches were enclosed illegally to provide additional living space by adding a frame room to a house in a district where masonry is required.

In calling the hearing the Commissioners said that owners of existing porches enclosed in violation of regulations are subject to prosecution.

Haskell said his frame porch had been enclosed with storm windows on a permit from the office of the District building inspector.

He declared that he and 20 other property owners whom he represented had no intention of changing their porches and thought they would win a case in court if the District brought action.

William A. Thompson, 54 Girard st. ne., said that during the war the District urged home owners to add storm windows to save oil. The only difference in the porches was that glass was substituted for screening, he said.

Citations Awarded To VFW Employes

The Veterans of Foreign Wars' national rehabilitation service last night honored four Washington employes for lengthy service to the organization.

They were: Charles E. Weickhardt, of 1239 45th pl. se., discharge review officer; Elmer P. Richter, 3235 Adams Mill rd., chief of claims; William I. Snyder, 427 Emerson st. nw., appeals consultant and Dr. H. C. Kincaid, 1641 Harvard st. nw., medical consultant.

They were presented citations at an informal dinner at the Hotel Statler in observance of the service's twenty-fifth anniversary. Also honored was Fred Beard of Detroit, field director of VFWs' Region II.

Among those attending the dinner were Veterans Administrator Carl R. Grey, jr., O. W. Clark, deputy administrator of the Veterans Administration, Clyde A. Lewis, of Pittsburgh, national VFW commander, and George E. Ijams, national director of the rehabilitation service.

The rehabilitation unit's services range from helping veterans to file a claim for disability to providing burial services. The rehabilitation service now handles 406,000 cases annually, according to Col. Ijams' estimate.

Earlier in the day, the VFW's national welfare and service committee voiced strong objection to any legislation that would transfer the $1,389,000 war-time fund paid to the United States Treasury by industrial firms in lieu of salaries to conscientious objectors to CARE for educational or other informational use in Europe, "in view of the needs of America's disabled veterans."

Too Controversial

Citizens Unit Tables Vote On 'Rule' Bill

The North Capitol Citizens Association decided last night that the Kefauver Home Rule bill is "so controversial" it didn't want to go on record on the issue at this time.

A motion was passed to hold the vote until fall after a speech against the bill by Thomas E. Lodge, a past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations. The month before Harry N. Stull, another past Federation president, spoke before the group in favor of the legislation.

Lodge praised the District commission form of government and said the Constitution had "delegated exclusive power to legislate to Congress, and a constitutional amendment would be needed to change that."

The group, meeting at the Lutheran Church of Atonement, 2 Rhode Island ave. ne., adjourned until September.

Georgetown Citizens

Brig. Gen. Karl S. Bradford (ret.) was elected president of the Georgetown Citizens Association at its final meeting of the season last night.

Others named in the balloting at St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O sts. nw., were Col. Percy G. Black (ret.); Frederick S. Hill, second vice president; Miss Emily P. Brown, secretary; and Martin O'Brien, treasurer.

Other business included a request for a traffic light at Wisconsin ave. and Q st. nw.

Shipley Terrace

The Shipley Terrace Citizens Association last night elected Gerald W. Russell president.

Also named at the final meeting until September were Walter J. Short, vice president; Mrs. Anthony L. Trunfio, second vice president; Mrs. H. B. Everett, recording secretary; Robert Borras, corresponding secretary; Everette C. Simmons, treasurer, and James W. Campbell, jr. and Frederick C. Belen, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations. The meeting was held at the Green Valley Church, 2621 Southern ave. se.

Mid-City Association

The Mid-City Citizens Association wrote President Truman last night to say they are "definitely in favor of" the Freedom Fair.

The association appointed Sotorios Nicholson and Brown Greene to attend a hearing of the Federation of Businessmen's Associations at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the District Building.

At its meeting last night at Thompson School, 12th and L sts. nw., the association received assurance of closer playground supervision by Second Precinct police.

Society of Natives

The Society of Natives last night elected Hugh J. McGee as president for the coming year, plus other officers as follows:

Mrs. Jane Bangs, first vice president; John Weber, second vice president; Walter Lydane, third vice president; Mrs. Irene Williams, corresponding secretary; Paul J. Plant, recording secretary; Fred Umhau, treasurer, and Mrs. Etta Taggart, historian.

Woman Declines To Attend Quiz On Army Center

By The Associated Press

House members investigating the Army's finance center resume public heaings today but a star witness probably will be absent.

Sally Dewey, who has made 112 allegations against the center at St. Louis, turned down a telegraphed invitation to testify again.

In St. Louis, Mrs. Dewey said she wired back that it would be a "further waste of public funds only to reiterate my previous testimony."

Mrs. Dewey told reporters in St. Louis that after reading accounts of the committee's proceedings thus far, she believes many of its members "are trying to whitewash the responsible high-ranking officers."

Man Indicted On Charge of Interne Pose

A 20-year-old man who, police said, pretended to be an interne and tried to examine patients in the emergency room of Freedmen's Hospital, yesterday was indicted on a charge of assaulting a policeman.

The District grand jury indicted Alfred Stewart of 1868 California st. nw., who was arrested March 26 by Pvt. George A. Wolfgang of the Thirteenth Precinct.

Wolfgang reported he tried to get Stewart out of the emergency room after he saw Stewart pretending to be an interne and touching several persons.

On the way out, Stewart struck and kicked him, and grabbed his service revolver from the holster before he was subdued by another policeman, who came to Wolfgang's aid, the policeman said.

Scrivner Blocks $600 Extra Cash For Legislators

Representative Scrivner (R., Kans.) yesterday kept members of the House from getting an extra $600 in expense allowances.

Scrivner objected to putting into a deficiency appropriation bill a total of $262,800 to give each House member $300 more for stationery and $300 extra for official telephone and telegraph messages.

House members already have received $500 for stationery and $500 for communications expenses for this fiscal year ending June 30. The deficiency bill provides extra money for various agencies this year.

House rules prohibit appropriating money for unauthorized purposes, and a single objection can block such action. Scrivner objected to the extra money on the ground that separate legislation authorizing it has not been passed.

Relief Asked For Highway Improvement

"A measure" of assessment relief for owners of property abutting Georgia ave., extended, in Silver Spring, for highway improvement was recommended last night by the Allied Civic Group, Inc., of Silver Spring.

It passed a resolution presented by Willard Morris, chairman of its highways committee, asking the Montgomery County Council to keep average assessments for the job on a par with those presiding for primary or secondary residential street improvement. The vote last night reversed the group's action at its March meeting when it defeated a similar resolution.

In other resolutions and votes last night, the group:

Went on record for an increase in Montgomery County police salaries, making them comparable with Washington.

Asked the County Council to build a gymnasium at Montgomery-Blair High School to be completed in the school year 1952-53, and an auditorium to be finished the following year.

Tabled a recommendation by the Montgomery County Safety Board for continuance of one-man operation of police cars in the county. The group will study the recommendation further.

At its meeting at the hearing room of the County Liquor Dispensary bldg., the Group reelected Robert T. Snure as president. Other officers elected were Louis A. Palmer, vice president; Mrs. Betty Ruth McDevitt, secretary, and Willard Morris, treasurer.

Favor Shown Montgomery Library Plan

A proposal for a county library system in Montgomery County met with generally favorable comment at a public hearing last night, although details of its operation brought conflicting views.

Spokesmen for the county's two largest library boards—Bethesda and Silver Spring—objected to a provision in the bill before the County Council which would abolish their local library tax on July 1, 1951. They said it would virtually force them to join the county system for want of funds.

They expressed a fear, on the other hand, that Bethesda and Silver Spring would pay until that date both a local tax and a county tax if they should join the proposed system.

The bill, as introduced by Mrs. Dorothy Himstead, would provide for a librarian to survey county library needs, negotiate with eight existing libraries to join the system and administer a Department of Public Libraries with a central book depository, branches, stations and bookmobile services.

Arthur W. Hilland and Roy C. Jacobson, the Bethesda and Silver Spring spokesmen, respectively, proposed a nine-man board with staggered terms instead of the seven-member panel set forth in the bill.

Voice Coach Advised Margaret to Rest

New York, May 22 (NYHT)—Helen Traubel, singing teacher of Margaret Truman, today said that it was she who had advised the President's daughter to cancel all her bookings this summer.

Announcement that Miss Truman had cancelled appearances at the Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia and Lewisohn Stadium in New York was made over the weekend by James Davidson, her concert manager.

Miss Traubel said there was "nothing mysterious" about the affair.

"Miss Truman has just finished a spring tour and is booked heavily for the fall," the Wagnerian soprano explained. "I advised her to rest—as simple as that. Seasoned veterans do the same thing—take rest periods."

Brother Assists In Capture of Bolling Escapee

A brother's phone call to military authorities brought an escaped prisoner from Bolling Air Force Base back into custody yesterday.

Pvt. John E. Wilkinson, 23, convicted of stealing dental equipment, had been missing from the base prison since May 15. He escaped while on an unguarded trip to the base hospital.

According to Bolling Field public relations officers, base authorities received a phone call Sunday night from the prisoner's brother, R. E. Wilkinson, in South Charleston, W. Va., who said he had just talked on the telephone to John in Bismarck, N. Dak. Police there picked up the prisoner at 2 a. m. yesterday in a bus station. The escapee is en route to Bolling Field under guard, officials said last night.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Elderly Man, Alone in World Except for His Grandchild, Formerly Apple of His Eye, Asks What To Do With Her; She Flouts Authority

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am an old man practically alone in the world with the exception of an orphaned granddaughter, 16 years of age, who has been the apple of my eye, especially since the loss of my wife seven years ago.

Gwen has always had everything a child should have, and our home has been made as pleasant as possible for her and her young friends. She returned this with love and obedience that made her very dear to me, until she entered high school—since when I have become merely an unreasonable and brutal tyrant.

I require that all new male acquaintances be presented and properly introduced to me before she is allowed to go out with them. Whenever they call to take her out, I require that they come to the door and not merely honk at the curb. The curfew hour is 10:30 p. m.

He's Consulted Doctor, Lawyer

I forbid her to smoke or drink alcoholic liquors, and I insist that she do the homework assigned by her teacher. I have largely given in to her taste in clothes; she selects and wears what she wants, and I seldom criticize her make-up. Without using any pressure, I have always encouraged her to attend church and Sunday school, but she has dropped both.

I am now in feeble health, and my doctor says I can't stand this situation any longer. Gwen has an uncle on the other side of the family, who is willing to take her into his family in return for the rather liberal terms I offer. They are good folks, but their home is humble and conditions quite different from what Gwen has known. I could also send her to a year-round boarding school.

Gwen assures me that she will run away from either arrangement. Just where to is the question, for I have definitely arranged to close my home and live in a nursing home. My lawyer says I am under no legal obligations to the girl, and I never want to see her face again. Have you any suggestions?

F. C.

Man's Rigidity Causes Friction

DEAR F. C.: In stating your case, you say with heavy irony that you have become "merely an unreasonable and brutal tyrant" since Gwen entered high school. There is a folk saying (maybe you've heard it?) that many a truth is spoken in jest, and I think your dry quip aforementioned is a revealing slip of that order.

Being an old man practically alone in life, as you ruefully say, it would be one of the world's eight wonders if you were a successful mother-substitute to orphaned Gwen, and were worrying along quite comfortably about the business of getting her safely through the teens.

For your encouragement and consolation, it should be remarked that even if you were a genial character, in excellent health and spirits, and cordially interested in helping Gwen grow to optimum social stature (which you're not)—even then, being a man, you are on the wrong side of the fence to do a bang-up job.

You can't help it if you're not mother-material, Heaven knows. But at least you might be more humble about your natural handicaps for the responsible role that Providence has assigned you in this relationship. And you should wake up to the truth that you are a terrible martinet, whose customary requirement of everyone is that they jump to please you. Even your doctor and lawyer are yes-men, it seems, to judge by their back-stroking utterances cited here.

Rub Is Age Versus Youth

HAVING revised your awareness on these points, you might then stop blaming Gwen for reacting unfavorably to your latter-day bumbling tyranny; and above all stop threatening to cast her off because of it—the most cruel retaliation you can muster to show "who's boss."

The rub is this: 1. You are feeling the weight of age just when Gwen is emerging (like a chick from its shell) and moving eagerly toward womanhood. Thus at a time when you are opposed to new exertions for any reason, she is at an age where her social mentors (chiefly you) should bring an open mind to all that concerns her, if said mentors are to advise and guide her constructively.

2. To evade the stress of trying to maintain a living, growing relationship with Gwen, you hand down a decalogue of "Do's" and "Don'ts" supposed to take care of your protective obligations to her—a gesture that tends to treat her as a dummy. And to the extent that she has life in her—undamaged health of mind and body—she will involuntarily fight that numbing trend. My suggestion is to stop hating Gwen for growing up, a natural process that she can't prevent, and that makes her a trial at times, of course. If you can't "mother" her adequately, make other arrangements for her care; but not in the spirit of shipping a traitor off to Siberia.

Wear It for Graduation And All Summer

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

FOR GRADUATION DAY . . . And for the whole summer through, a dainty whirl of white rayon marquisette made into a 1950 version of the shirtwaist dress. Bodice is lined with tucks and a row of pearl buttons reaches from the small, turned-down collar to the waist. Under $15. Picture hat, of white hairbraid, is trimmed with navy velvet ribbon. Available at Phillipsborn.

By Peggy Preston

NOW is the time of year when the girls in the senior class are concerning their pretty heads with clothes, clothes, clothes. A frilly dress for the prom, a tailored one for Class Day, and of course, a white one for graduation exercises.

The choice of the last named is very likely being given the deepest consideration. For a girl buys her dress for her last day in school with an eye to the future—for summer parties as well as for that thrilling moment when she receives her diploma.

Must Be White

This year's crop of graduation fashions run the gamut of silhouettes and summer fabrics. About the only thing they have in common is their color—clean, spanking white.

There are short, tailored dresses, the majority in pique, often with camisole or strapless bodice, and little short-sleeved jacket. On the more formal side are short-length, full-skirted cottons, with rippling collars or starched lace.

Sheers are playing an important role in this particular division of fashion, as well as in all the others. When styled as a shirtwaist frock, sheer rayon marquisette makes a charming "best dress" for summer. It is tailored enough for church, pretty enough for an evening party.

Popular Fabrics

Organdy and organza, either plain or embroidered are popular fabrics also. These usually come with matching white taffeta slips, but if you want to add some color later in the season, you can use a pale blue or pink slip with matching sash.

While the majority of girls will want short-skirted graduation dresses this year, a few will cling to the formal, long lengths. For evening ceremonies, the bouffant skirt is still the top fashion. It is equally effective in white chiffon, dotted Swiss, taffeta or nylon tulle.

Three More Parties for Perle

By Marie McNair

FROM Mrs. Max Gardner's luncheon in her honor yesterday U. S. Minister to Luxembourg Perle Mesta went on to the American Newspaper Women's Club for tea, also in her honor. And last night she was among the guests invited by Mrs. Richard McCreery for dinner.

It's been that way ever since Mrs. Mesta returned to Washington in April. Today there's but one party—Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross' luncheon which will be a farewell, as Mrs. Mesta leaves on Wednesday for New York.

Mrs. Gardner invited 24 guests for her luncheon at the 1925 F Street Club. More than three times that number turned up at the Newspaper Women's Club to greet Mrs. Mesta, who has long been an associate member.

At the Tea Table

Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador, and dean of the Diplomatic Corps, was there and was asked to take a turn at the tea table. Mme. Le Gallais, wife of the Luxembourg Minister, in bronze satin with bronze sequins in a band on her off-the-face hat, was in the receiving line with Mrs. Mesta and Miss Grace McGerr, president of the club.

Mrs. Mesta's smart black frock with elbow length cape, and the new shorter length skirt was worn with a white sailor banded in black. Miss McGerr in gray, brightened her frock with a hat of scarlet flowers.

Serving ice tea, hot tea and punch were Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, in a trim brown suit and flower hat; Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, whose emerald green and black print frock was topped with a black sailor hat; Mrs. Charles Stanley White, Mrs. Luther Sheldon, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Edward E. Gann.

From Capitol Hill

Mrs. Homer Ferguson, wife of the Michigan Senator, stopped in, and Mrs. Max Gardner with Mrs. Walter George, who were on their way to another party.

Mrs. Luther Sheldon's guest was Mrs. Homer Case, president of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club. Mrs. Mary Buford brought Mrs. McCeney Werlich, and others there were Mrs. Thomas McMillan, wife of the Representative from South Carolina; Mrs. William S. Culbertson in a white hat and dark suit, Mrs. Bruce Kremer, who had as her guest, Mrs. George White of New York; Mrs. Herbert Bingham, Mrs. Thomas R. Cowell and Dr. and Mrs. William F. O'Donnell with their daughter, Jeanne.

Former Ambassador and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck were there, and Mrs. James Macpherson, Mrs. Dale Collins, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Winant Johnston, and Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Palmer, jr.

Miss Jane Lingo is in New York visiting Miss Margaret Truman and will return to Washington this evening.

Biddles Entertain

Weekend Guests

COL. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle entertained at dinner last evening at Greystone, their home on the edge of Rock Creek Park.

Among the guests were Mrs. Peggy Hohenlohe, who is their weekend guest from New York, and Morton Downey, radio singer, also from New York. Mrs. Hohenlohe, former wife of Prince Alex Hohenlohe of Poland, is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Biddle, formerly married to Colonel Biddle.

Senator and Mrs. Owen Brewster were the guests in whose honor Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould entertained at dinner last evening at her home on Woodland dr.

Other guests included Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton, Senator and Mrs. Pat McCarran, Senator Clyde Hoey, the Spanish Ambassador-at-Large Feliz Lequerica and Senora de Lequerica, Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Littell, Miss Madeleine Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smith and Charles P. Clark.

Miss Anne Muse Gillespie, who will be married today to Dr. Jacques M. Kelly, was the guest of honor at a shower and luncheon given yesterday by Miss Romona North, daughter of the Postmaster of Washington Roy North, and Mrs. North.

The luncheon was held in the Palladian room of the Shoreham. The table was decorated with white flowers and miniature silver shoes were place cards. The guests included members of the wedding party in which Miss North will be a bridesmaid.

Arlington Grandmother Heads D. C. Federation After Heated Balloting

By Norma Lanum

IN a hotly contested election yesterday, an Arlington, Va., grandmother became president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Stuart E. Womeldorph, outgoing second vice president of the federation, won out over Mrs. E. Morgan Pryse, outgoing first vice president, in a contest which drew a near-record crowd of members to the polls.

The new president had the backing of two member clubs in the federation: the Pro Bonata Club, of which she is a delegate, and the Political Study Club, of which she has been a member for 15 years.

Voting hasn't been so heavy since 1938, members report. Of the 204 eligible voters, 172 went to the polls.

Others elected include Mrs. Harry L. Meader of Navy Mothers Club, first vice president; Mrs. Arthur G. Davis of Woodridge Book Club, second vice president; Mrs. E. R. Van Leeuwen of Takoma Park Women's Club, recording secretary; Miss Fanny Lamson of Women's City Club, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Oscar H. Nelson of Petworth Women's Club, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ernest C. Rowland of Capitol Hill History Club, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ernest N. Gore of the Women Auxiliary, D. C. Pharmaceutical Association, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence L. Woodward of Tuesday Women's Club, assistant treasurer, and Miss Irene Pistorio of Doliology Club, auditor.

Mrs. Womeldorph, whose husband is executive secretary of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, has been second vice president of the federation during the past year and a half. She filled the post following the resignation of Mrs. Tairo Erickson.

She's been active in the federation since 1945, having served also as chairman of the American Citizenship Department. Mrs. Womeldorph foresees no changes of federation policy during the three years of her term.

"I'll just follow Mrs. Magdeburger's lead," she said following news of election results.

Preceding balloting the outgoing president, Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, outlined the progress of the federation since she took office three years ago.

The federation's youth conservation program was "the bright thread of our achievements," she commented, describing the work of members at the Juvenile Court, Receiving Home and settlement houses.

The only resolution of the day was one asking Congress to pass H. R. 7722 which calls for restoration of the old stone house at 3061 M st. nw.

Congress of Parents Hears Atom Warning

Long Beach, Calif., May 22 (U.P.).—Mrs. John Hayes of Twin Falls, Idaho, opened the fifty-fourth annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers today with a warning that today's school children "quite possibly" may witness the destruction of civilization.

Mrs. Hayes, the president of the congress, delivered the warning in her presidential address, after 3000 delegates were welcomed to the five-day conference.

"We are guiding the first generation who must learn to control and utilize atomic energy, the most powerful physical force ever held in the hand of man," she said.

"We are guiding the first generation of youth who must face the necessity of building a world of peace and freedom or possibly—quite possibly—witness the destruction of civilization."

Mrs. Hayes said the congress must help relieve "a 1950-1951 emergency situation" involving the right kind of an educational program, more and better trained teachers, and remedying a shortage of school buildings.

Beyond that, she said, parents and teachers must do what they can to eliminate racial prejudice.

Defends Social Program in Democratic Club Talk

Ewing Asks Equality in Health, Education Costs

By Sonia Stein

FEDERAL Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing discussed some of the controversial aspects of social legislation yesterday in a talk before the Women's National Democratic Club. The Republican method of "helping the beggar to get more" would be to heap more food on the rich man's table so there would be more crumbs for the beggar, said Ewing; whereas the Democrats would "get him cleaned up and get him a job so he'd have his own dignity and stand for something in his community."

Mr. Ewing said that the idea that added social security benefits were designed to let people live in luxury was altogether false. The Government is only trying to bring the benefits in line with present day costs of living, he explained.

Even under the expanded plan, the single retired worker would get only about $45 a month and the couple only about $70 a month, he said; and added that he did not think those amounts would discourage anyone from working for more, nor would they lead to luxury living.

No Further Burden

The Security Administrator said that the National Health Insurance proposal was "so badly represented by the American Medical Association, that sometimes I don't recognize the child myself." The plan would add no burden on our economy, he insisted, since all the expenses are being paid today. "It's just a different way of paying for a burden that's already there," he said, and pointed out that the object of the plan was to get adequate medical care for the people and that if anyone came up with a better plan it would be heartily endorsed by the Government.

Forty other countries have some form of health insurance already, Mr. Ewing said, and it appears we need it here since 80 percent of the population falls into an income group which cannot afford normal medical care, or cannot afford long or serious illnesses. Only the 20 percent at the top of the income scale, and the indigent people, get good care, he said."

Problem of In-Betweens

"We just want to solve the financial problems of the in-betweens who suffer under the present system of paying," he said. "Nobody is trying to interfere in doctor-patient relations. We're trying to create a few more relations," he pointed out.

The overhead to run the national health insurance plan would not be great, Mr. Ewing claimed. It has been estimated at 5 to 7 percent of the total cost, which compares with 46 percent overhead for the average commercial health insurance company, and 17 or 18 percent for nonprofit health groups, he said.

The Government has already seen that it can run Social Security, "the biggest insurance job in the world" with a 3 percent overhead, and England is running its health program on a 3 percent overhead, he pointed out.

Explaining the plan, Mr. Ewing said that doctors will sit down with committees of nonmedical men and figure out how much they should be paid for their services. "I don't see how anybody can call that communism or socialism," he said, and added that a doctor may stay out of the plan, or enter it partially if he chooses.

On the subject of Federal aid to education, Mr. Ewing pointed out that although Mississippi spends a larger percentage of its income for education than New York does, it often spends less than $400 per schoolroom per year, while a wealthy State like New York spends $4000.

"To the extent we do not give equality of opportunity" to all the children of the country, "we are falling down on the job of democracy," he said.

In the matter of higher education, he said, for every student who is financially able to go to college, there is another who cannot afford it. "It is a tragic waste of talent and ability, and we need every ounce of it in this atomic age," he added. "No one wants to spoon-feed our population, but we do want to remove the handicaps and the inequalities," Mr. Ewing said.

"We are just trying to make life a little richer," Mr. Ewing said in summary. "We want to give better education and remove some of the anxieties that haunt men and women. We want to do something to make them healthier and happier."

Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, vice president of the Club and chairman of the Education Committee, introduced the speaker.

Getting House Ready for Summer, Reader Wants to Save on Storage Of Rugs; Anne Makes Suggestion

DEAR ANNE:
Would you advise placing a fiber rug over a wool rug during the summer months? I would rather not go to the expense of having it stored, but would like to save on its wear somewhat by using a fiber rug during part of the year. I would clean both the pad and the rug thoroughly with my electric sweeper and also spray moth preventive over both. Would you have any other suggestions?
M. S., Washington.

I wouldn't put the fiber rug over the wool one as the hard fibers will damage the nap. If you feel that it is absolutely necessary to do so, it would be better to turn the rug over, with nap down, rather than have it against the fiber. If there is any closet or attic available to you where the rug could be housed for the summer, you can cover it with paper, add a liberal sifting of moth crystals and roll it up. Wrap the outside with papers and tie up with string. Sealing the edges of the paper with gummed paper tape will further insure against moth invasion.

DEAR ANNE:
Recently you mentioned a Peter Hunt booklet as a possible source for decorating flat irons. You gave a telephone number only for the place where it could be obtained for 25 cents. For the benefit of readers who are too distant to profit from the telephone number, would you please give an address.

PETUNIA!

My chocolate sauce
Is always funny . . .
A lot too hard,
Or a lot too runny.
But here's a sure-fire delicious sauce,
Petunia! Just melt 2 squares of sweetened chocolate in the top of a double boiler, along with a little salt and 5 tablespoons of cream.

DEAR ANNE:
Can you tell me how to make cheese blintzes, which I have eaten at local restaurants featuring foreign foods? I should like to make them at home.
W. W. M., Silver Spring.

Here is a recipe which Mary Dahnke, well-known expert on cheese cookery, calls "blintzes without tears." She says it works every time if you do the pancakes exactly by rote and have faith.

CHEESE BLINTZES

1½ cups flour	2 cups cottage cheese
¾ teaspoon salt	2 tablespoons sugar
1¼ cups cold water	½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs	1 egg
1 cup milk
Butter or margarine

Blend flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, and water to smooth paste. Add eggs and beat thoroughly. Add milk and blend to a smooth, thin batter.

Pour about one fourth of this batter into a hot skillet, well greased with butter or margarine. Cook slowly for 2 minutes or until pancake is lightly browned on one side. Turn out onto a large plate or absorbent paper, browned side up. Continue with the remaining batter (this recipe makes 12 6-inch pancakes), stacking the pancakes.

Blend the cottage cheese with the sugar, ½ teaspoon of salt, and the egg. Spread the pancakes on the top of the stack with this mixture. Fold two opposite sides of the pancake to the center; then, beginning with one of the other sides, roll up like a jelly roll. Continue until all the pancakes have been spread with the cheese mixture and rolled. Return the rolled pancakes to the skillet and brown them on all sides in butter or margarine. Serve hot, plain, or with jelly or sour cream.

Peach Salad

CRISP FRIED RICE:

Ingredients: 3 tablespoons rendered beef or other fat, 1½ cups diced green celery, 3 medium-sized mushrooms (thinly sliced), 3 cups cooked converted-type rice, ½ teaspoon onion salt, 4 teaspoons American-type soy sauce.

Method: Heat fat in large skillet over low heat. Add celery and mushrooms and cook 5 to 10 minutes, stirring often; add rice. Sprinkle with onion salt and soy sauce, stir well and heat thoroughly, mixing often. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Note: Add a few teaspoons more fat with rice if mixture seems dry.

Big City Spring

Spring roams the city on angel's footsteps, and a fabulous metropolis is touched by its magic. There are sights which challenge the genius of painters and the imagination of poets . . . Each day is warmed in the middle, and brisk winds add a crisp edge to nights . . . The daily rhythm of life quickens and pulsates with the unmistakable melody of joy. The atmosphere sings . . . Just as spring revives the forests and meadows—so does it renew budding hope in the hearts of humanity.

Visual wonders gleam along every waterfront. The rippling waltz of the ocean and the rivers dancing toward shore . . . Waves swirl their white petticoats and embellish the sands with foamy lace. Even grimy tugs turtling across the East River take on a stately grace during the sun-kissed season . . . Anchored skiffs in the Hudson bow to the majesty of gentle breezes. Massive trans-oceanic palaces cruise by . . . The steady slap of waves bruising themselves against piers invites repose . . . And when twilight shades the sky, the luminous cobweb of the George Washington span displays its electric jewelry.

The city offers numerous unique touches of spring: The musical tinkle of glasses at sidewalk cafes . . . Ice-cream pop hawkers who peddle hot chestnuts during the icy months . . . An array of multihued posies at Rockefeller Plaza . . . Simians frolicking in open-air cages at the zoo . . . Bird-nests in subway nooks . . . Amidst the 10th Ave. poverty are patches of spring charm—flower-boxes on window-sills.

The parks are alive with the exuberance of the balmy season . . . Shrill notes of feathery sopranos mingle with the taffeta rustle of leaves . . . Bicycle-riders skimming over cement paths flanked by sun-splashed lawns . . . Bench-squatters absorbing sun, scanning newspapers or just pulling a daydream over their heads—and staring into nowhere . . . Romancers touch lips in a toast to their love.

The season of serenity casts its spell over centers of finance and industrial marts. A languorous note is added to the pell-melody. The kettle-drum tempo of business loses some of its nerve-shattering pace . . . Sunshine ignites offices and factories—lighting up spirits as well. There are more friendly chats than hurried hellos. People seem to have more time for each other . . . During lunch-hours in Wall Street and the Garment District sidewalks are clogged with humans slanting their faces sunward—growing roses in their cheeks.

Children bubble out of school chattering, chuckling—fizzing with energy. Spring makes the streets of the city a playground . . . Pig-tailed darlings are skipping rope, and knee-pants sportsmen are busily engaged in flipping marbles. Stick-ball enthusiasts dodge passing cars while scooting around the bases . . . Uncertain toddlers learning how to walk question the ground with each faltering step . . . Young Rembrandts scribble chalk doodles across sidewalks . . . In the fairyland of youth—happiness is king.

The sounds of the city flow through open windows of cliff-dwellers . . . A silly symphony of traffic: The groans of gears, grunts of horns and shrieks of brakes. A discordant mechanical band . . . Fragments of a million sounds clash and explode . . . Neighbors argue and radios blare and blare . . . Listen intently after midnight and feast your ears with the whispers of racing winds humming their lullabies.

The scenic highlights of springtime in the Big Town can be enjoyed while motoring along the West Side Highway. Witness the lovely green fabrics woven by nature's busy fingers . . . Gaze down from the heights of the Empire State edifice and see the jagged carpet of stone and steel drenched with sunlight . . . Lady Liberty—a visual hymn . . . The skyscraper graph when the fingertips of lanky buildings hold the fiery reflections of a bright day. Like diamonds—which mirror the sparkle of a blue-eyed sky.

Spring finery is on exhibition along Fifth ave. Shopwindows glitter with rainbow-dipped hues . . . The sharp tattoo of high heels clickety-clacking across sidewalks blends with the roar of traffic . . . Streets are almost paralyzed with cars oozing along in Indian file . . . Buses crawl from corner to corner like icebergs . . . Hustle meets bustle in dep't stores. There is an incessant hum of gab. And the energetic revolving doors continue their dizzy journey . . . Dolls parade in gaily-colored frocks. Swaying charms and rippling beauties, ah! . . . Playful zephyrs toy with skirts and hold tight to torsos. Winderful.

The sun strips Broadway of its glamorous reputation and exposes its hag-like features. All of its grime and ugliness are emphasized by the spotlight of the sky . . . Old legit theatres seem run-down and as dated as the handlebar mustache when compared with movie palaces . . . The sunless sidestreet canyons have a dungeon-like quality. Even occasional streaks of sunrays fail to brighten the atmosphere . . . Dust and gas fumes swirl in the air . . . Marquees which light up with a million twinkling eyes at night—are bland and somehow depressing . . . The Big Street is only alive when its electric pulse begins throbbing. When the protective cloak of darkness invites the evening carnival—and the mazda inferno blazes in the night.

Sabbath morning in spring floods the burg with solitude. The drowsy quiet quivers with the peaceful clanging of church-bells—communicating beautiful messages to the spirit . . . Business areas are hushed. Footsteps of occasional passersby punctuate the stillness. Grotesque shadows zigzag across the streets . . . Families in residential sectors are promenading—stopping to say howdy to neighbors. Pictures of serenity . . . This is the one day in the week when the thunder of a tumultuous town settles down to a restful whisper.

In a world ripped by fear and torn by threats of war—the tranquil glories of spring seem like strangers. But they are greeted like old friends by ever-hopeful humanity . . . There are no boundaries to gentle winds, no nation has a monopoly on flowers, the moon speaks the universal language of the heart and nothing is more international than the sun . . . When spring fulfills its promise to mankind there is reason to be encouraged: The mighty redwoods have seen tyrants come and go and even the bloodiest battlefields are eventually hidden by a grass carpet . . . Spring's eternal reunion with the world offers the assurance that all tyrants are just a stitch in His tender embrace . . . This is spring, and God holds the world in His tender embrace. It is a timefor Dreamers and Poets . . . And Lovers.

Science Looks at Gambling

No Clever Bookmaker Ever Goes Broke

The American Academy of Political and Social Science, with headquarters in Philadelphia, has collected from hundreds of sources facts about gambling that have long escaped the layman. The Washington Post presents the academy's findings in a series of six articles of which this is the second. They are excerpts from a 133-page report by the 16 specialists which is published in the current annals of the American Academy.

Today's article is a study of bookmakers' "sure thing" methods.

By Louis A. Lawrence

CHAPTER II

The bookmaking industry in the United States occupies an unusual place in the national economy.

Illegal in all the 48 States with the exception of Nevada, the "bookies" conduct an annual business amounting to some eight billion dollars.

Various surveys have placed this figure as low as three billions and above 10 billions. It is of course impossible to establish a completely accurate figure because of the very nature of the enterprise.

Recent inquiries and checks from large as well as small cities point to eight billion dollars as acceptable as a minimum.

The horse-racing business, now legalized in 26 States, is in itself an enterprise of major proportions.

The most recent statistics show a total of slightly over $1,600,000,000 bet through the mutuel machines, accounted for by paid admissions of 25 million persons. Revenues to the States permitting betting came to $95,803,000.

Back of the actual track activities is the breeding industry, with its tremendous investment in plants and their upkeep. It comprises some 800 farms led by the King Ranch of Texas, whose area exceeds that of the State of Rhode Island.

The number of employes who make their livelihood at the race tracks is over 33,000. All in all, racing is definitely "Big Business," and there is every likelihood that it will remain so in the foreseeable future.

Many approaches have been used in trying to estimate the number of bookmakers operating in the United States and in determining the scope of the operation.

The best estimates come from the figures showing the number of "books" subscribing to the wire services. There are in the neighborhood of 20,000 subscribers. In addition, there are some 40,000 books operating without wire services.

The number of people who bet away from the track is a subject of conflicting estimates. They range from 3 to 15 million persons who wager with some regularity. The true figure, though necessarily an unknown quantity, is an extremely large one.

It can be stated as a positive fact that no well-managed booking establishment has ever gone broke.

The off-track book is in many respects in a more advantageous position than the book that formerly operated at the track.

The factor which contributes most heavily to the off-track book profits is the tremendous diversity of play on races not at one track, but at four, five or six tracks a day during the height of the racing season.

An indication of the profits expected by the book may be shown from the percentage the book is willing to expend in order to get business.

Apart from whatever sums are to be used for the buying of protection from the local law-enforcement agencies, any book is ready to give up 50 percent of the profits to his agents for procuring business.

Each agent's total monthly returns are tabulated, and 50 percent of the net losses of the customers dealing directly with him provides his compensation.

Once the agent has contacted a prospective bettor and furnished him with the telephone number of the book, the customer merely calls the book and places his bet, mentioning the name of the agent who is to receive credit for the transaction.

In a few localities the agent's commission is 35 percent, but 50 percent is the general rule. An agent with an active clientele among the fairly well-to-do class has a sinecure which is hard to beat.

Where the bookmaker is handling his own customers, he will often propose to his larger clients a rebate of 50 percent of their net losses each month on condition that they do all their business with him.

These facts might well give the prospective bettor pause to consider just what his chances of winning are likely to be. In addition, there are wire expenses, telephone charges, office rental, and salaries to clerks, and the very considerable expense of protection.

Player's Disadvantages

The average horse player is at a tremendous disadvantage on the point of his available capital as contrasted to that of the bookmakers.

Even under the most favorable auspices—that of an even chance—a person with $10, tossing a coin with $1 bet on each toss, would be an almost certain loser if he played long enough against another with $50.

As the greater part of all betting with the books is done on credit, with settlement the following day, a glance at a customer's betting sheet tells the whole story.

In the case of a small to moderate bettor, the first few bets made will be in amounts of $2 to $5 each. As the day goes on, and if the customer is losing on the balance, the bets increase until the last few races will show bets of $10, $20 and $30. There are no calculations which show a bookmaker's "edge" in terms of the breakdown of morale which is experienced by an enormous percentage of horse players.

A player at a race track may well lose all the money he has brought with him and that's the end, for cash is required at the track. But with his book the temptation to bet beyond his intentions, in order to get even, is ever present and he plays on credit.

In the course of any year, every bookmaker expects that some of his clients will close the year owing him money which he will never collect.

"Self-Defeating" Game

While it is true that uncontrolled betting habits play the major part in the player's inability to cope with the bookmakers, the question remains as to what the outcome would be if the betting public were to become suddenly endowed with self-control and a more accurate method of making their selections.

This would undoubtedly cut into the book's profits, but it would by no means solve the problem, as there is a third factor mitigating against the player's chances. Unlike most forms of gambling, betting on horse races is a self-defeating proposition.

As the weight of moneys wagered in the mutuel machine sets the final pay-off prices, any sudden increase in the public's ability to select the winning horse would drive the price down to such a low figure that the increase in the number of winning transactions would be offset by the lower odds.

The other contributory factor which makes the bookmaker's operations more secure is the mass of conflicting, and generally worthless, information to which the race player is exposed. Tipping services and essentially fraudulent touting bureaus surround the horse bettor. Systems all purporting to be infallible are published by the thousands.

While every conceivable difficulty besets the bettor, the book need but observe the most elementary method of procedure. He needs solely to have working capital commensurate with the average-size bet handled, and the horse player will do the rest.

Betting on horse races is a self-defeating proposition—but the bookie and the tax collector always win

Henry Morgan Takes A Look at the Press

By John Crosby

HENRY MORGAN, a sardonic, sometimes misguided but always honest man, lumbered to his feet before reporters, columnists, editors and publishers at the annual dinner of the New York chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalistic fraternity, and delivered a speech. It lasted all of a minute and a half, a fine length for a speech, and it was a fine speech.

In that minute and a half, Morgan, one of the more thoughtful radio comedians, summarized his opinion of the American press.

This is a difficult assignment for a radio comedian. His listeners— reporters, columnists, editors and publishers—could crucify the man in print if they didn't like what he said. A radio comedian needs the support of the press. He'd have great difficulty existing without it. Still, Henry spoke his mind about us freely and, while there were some barbs in this small essay, it was on the whole a flattering and (I hope) intelligent estimate. I'd like to pass it along.

"Average Warped Man"

"I WAS asked here this evening," said Morgan, "mainly because it's common knowledge that I am an authority on this stuff. A number of people here work on newspapers. That isn't nearly as bad as what I do. I have to read them. Some people produce radio programs. I have it much worse than they do. I work for them—newspapers and radio—the two greatest influences of our time, I figure. You see before you the creature you have made. I am the average warped man.

"Because of you people in this room I believe Owen Lattimore is a Communist. I also believe he is not a Communist. Because of you people I believe F. D. R. was a genius and also that he ruined the country. I believe that there is more crime in this country then ever before and that our police are the best in the world. I believe that Eisenhower would make a great President except that I have read that military men don't make good good Presidents and besides he will run if enough pressure is brought, he will not run, he can't run, he refuses to run, he doesn't want the job, you can talk him into it, he's trying very hard to make it look as though he doesn't want it, he's happy at Columbia, he's miserable, he's got a cold, he feels great.

How About a Bureau

"YOU HAVE made it possible for me to take 5 cents and buy, in one package, a new picture of President Truman, my horoscope for the day, 15 comic strips and the stock market reports. And I've read some terrible things about you. You work for money. Advertising dictates your policy. The department stores dictate your editorials. Don't you think you'd be happier with some other system? Wouldn't it be nicer to have a bureau of some kind supervise your work? Then, if the bureau didn't like it, you could adjust or get killed.

"Still in all, it's better than having people point at you and say: 'There's a man who works for money.' Somehow it's getting to be very un-American to work for money. It's also unAmerican not to work and to live on unemployment insurance. It's un-American to have social security and it's un-American to have such a small amount of social security. I strongly suspect that this is all your fault.

"In short, you people in this room have put me, the average man, in a peculiar position. I now have to make up my mind for myself. As long as you keep doing that, as long as you keep forcing the man in the street to make up his mind for himself, that's as long as we'll have the only working definition of democracy that's worth a damn.

"Thank you."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Besides, You Can't Take It With You

I guess that I will always be . . . A guy who spends his silver free . . . And prays, some day, to own a shroud . . . Where big hip pockets ain't allowed.

Or should I try to save and scrimp . . . Until I'm feeble, old and limp . . . And when I'm in that other spot . . . Just watch it melt? I'd rather not!

A LITTLE LEARNING

On the rare occasion when my 14-year-old relative gets an "A" on a school paper, he makes a point of bringing it home for display, with full ceremonial honors.

The other day I was looking at a test paper in which several relatively simple words had been badly misspelled. "I'm surprised that your teacher didn't catch those," I said.

"Oh, that's all right," came the prompt reply. "This isn't supposed to be a spelling paper, so it doesn't matter."

I console myself with the thought that if he grows up to be an ignoramus it will be that much easier for him to get a job as a columnist.

PERSONAL NOTES

Jimmy Wyckoff, Fairfax Station, Va.: You're right; WTOP is the CBS radio station in Washington, WOIC is the CBS television outlet here.

Bill Pritchett, U. S. Naval Air Station, Patuxent River, Md.: I don't know about those lifetime guarantees, pal. You should see my plastic fountain pen that was inadvertently left on a hot radiator shield last winter. It now has that tired look.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

A few months ago I printed a complaint from a motorist who charged that diplomatic cars illegally parked on 34th st. nw. during the morning rush tied up traffic trying to get into Massachusetts ave.

The Ambassador in question immediately instructed his chauffeurs and other drivers to obey the law, and for a long time I got no further complaints. But here's a beaut that arrived in the morning mail:

"They're at it again. A diplomatic car was parked where it shouldn't have been, turning a two-lane street into a one-lane street.

"I guessed at the cause of the tie-up, and stayed in the long left-hand lane. But a gray Plymouth with Minnesota tags fell for the booby trap, and passed me in the right lane.

"Many, many minutes later, I edged up far enough to find out how he'd fared.

"I found him stuck behind the illegally parked diplomatic car, trying to get back into the lane that was moving. But nobody would let him into line.

"I don't know how he finally made out, because he was still struggling when I turned into Mass. ave.

"The funny part of the story is that the Plymouth bore Congressional tags. If its driver didn't have apoplexy, he probably rushed right down to the Hill to pass a law or something."

ADD NAMES

Vera M. Sabin of 3018 Porter st. nw. was long troubled by the "Stetson & Adams" sign she saw from the window of her L-5 bus.

Curiosity finally triumphed, and she had to find out if Stetson and Adams are in the hat business. They're not. They're interior decorators.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Wonder why it is that people who type, or write legibly, spell out their telephone exchanges in Give-Away letters—but the ones with the most undecipherable scrawls love to abbreviate?

OVERHEARD

"I don't know exactly whom he married but I think she must be a foreigner. I heard Ethel say she's a zombie."

ADD SIGNS

There's a Plymouth taxicab in town which displays a neatly printed sign saying:

"Positively No Smoking, Please."

"IF AT FIRST . . ."

G. R. Simcox of 262 N. Barton st., Arlington, Va., tells me that when his 5-year-old granddaughter, Arlene, said her prayers the other night, he overheard:

"I prayed and prayed for a baby sister, and all I got was a darned old brother. I think I'll go back to praying for a television set."

Hoover Angry at GOP Deserters

By Drew Pearson

Herbert Hoover is angry and hurt at the way Republican Senators deserted him on his great engineering plan for Government, the Hoover report.

Hoover

In private talks with Washington friends and in a talk before the Sales Executives Club in New York, the former President complained bitterly about the "pressure groups, paid propagandists, and organized minorities" which killed his reorganization plans in the Senate.

It is the conservative GOP Senators who have long held up Herbert Hoover as their symbol of Government efficiency. It is also the GOP Senate conservatives who have repeatedly preached Government economy. Yet when Hoover worked out a plan to save the Government several billions, and President Truman urged its adoption by Congress, it was these same GOP Senators who thwarted their former leader. On the other hand, liberal Republicans voted with him.

This is the record on the four Hoover plans now stopped by the Senate:

Plan No. 1—Transfer functions of the Comptroller of the Currency to the Secretary of the Treasury. Opposed by the American Bankers Association and every GOP Senator except three—Aiken, Vt.; Lodge, Mass.; and Williams, Del. The GOP leadership, Robert Taft, Ken Wherry, and Gene Millikin, all voted against Hoover.

Plan No. 12—Abolish the general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board. Fought by Senator Taft (though he was for it a year before) the National Association of Manufacturers, and the United States Chamber of Commerce. Only five Republicans voted with Hoover: Aiken and Lodge, Ives, N. Y.; Langer, N. D., and Tobey, N. H.

Plan No. 7—Give executive powers to the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Bitterly opposed by the Association of American Railroads and the Railway Labor Executives Association of American Railroads and the Railway Labor Executives Association. Only two Republicans, Knowland of California and Williams of Delaware, favored it.

Plan No. 11—Give the Federal Communications Commission chairman executive authority. Fought by National Association of Broadcasters and American Bar Association. Only eight Republicans voted with Hoover: Aiken, Ives, Knowland, Langer, Lodge, Smith of N. J. Thye of Minnesota, and Tobey.

Hoover Explains

Explaining his defeat to the Sales Executives Club Hoover said: "All the pressure groups have got in their work on the reform that would affect them, while they proclaim their endorsement of all the other reforms. I promise you that, before we fail, I shall name by name and describe them (the vested interests) by the use of all the English language of which I am capable."

Note: One outfit that has done a bang-up job for the Hoover report is the lively Junior Chamber of Commerce. Clifford D. Cooper, the national president, has visited every State, organizing grass-roots pressure for Government reform.

Balloons to Russia

Theodore H. Sloan of Washington, Pa., who was chief development engineer for the council of defense during World War I, has written me a letter about his experiences in floating small balloons into hostile territory—such as Russia.

Mr. Sloan worked out a plan in 1917 for floating balloons into Germany carrying fire bombs to set fire to German forests. Eventually, Woodrow Wilson stopped the plan as inhuman.

"The balloon was about 60 inches in diameter, carrying an automatic ballast tank and release mechanism for the fire bomb," wrote Mr. Sloan. "The balloon would rise to about 60,000 feet, at which point the ballast held it at about this altitude, the prevailing wind causing it to travel easterly at about 100 miles an hour.

"A large number of these mechanisms were built and tested. On one test, 80 were sent up from Nebraska and dummy bombs were dropped along the Atlantic Coast. We had attached a notice of a reward for each dummy bomb returned, and by this means got about 60 per cent back.

"The whole outfit," continued Mr. Sloan, "can be built for about $2 each and will carry about 10 ounces of dead weight. It has the following advantages:

"1. It is the cheapest method of transporting printed material into an enemy country.

"2. Human life is not jeopardized.

"3. The balloons are practically invisible at 60,000 feet; therefore, cannot be shot down."

Note—Many patriotic Americans have written this columnist offering to help get propaganda balloons into Russia.

Merry-Go-Round

American Export Lines will soon launch two new luxury liners, the SS Independence and the SS Constitution, a tribute to American flag initiative on the high seas. After the war, in view of the world shipping surplus, many predicted no more passenger ships would be built for years . . . A detective has been working under cover in the Senate, posing as an employe, to catch the bookie who is supposed to be operating there. So far, all the detective has uncovered is one numbers bet . . .
